Vander Zalm Abolishes Last Resources Board

Legislation abolishing the Vancouver Resources Board, the last of the NDP-established resources boards left in B.C., was introduced Wednesday by Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

The Community Resources Boards Amendment Act, 1977, specifies that as of Wednesday, all Vancouver Resources Board (VRB) transactions must be approved by the director of social services in the ministry of human resources.

Vander Zalm said he's abolishing the VRB to increase the accountability of the social services in Vancouver to his ministry.

"We do not need the VRB," he said. "We cannot afford that luxury."

Vander Zalm said the average Vancouver-area resident using social services through the VRB, won't notice the change.

But Ron Fenwick, chairman of the VRB, said the board's abolition will unleash a storm of citizen protest.

Fenwick said the great advantage of the VRB is the availability of the policy makers, who meet at least twice a month in public so individuals and community groups can bring their problems directly to them.

"The community of Vancouver is going to resent the takeover and the service is going to degenerate if the policy is going to be set in Victoria by the bureaucratic structure," he said.

Ald. Harry Rankin, who was VRB chairman for two years, said he was not surprised by the move.

"Vander Zalm's philosophy is clear — he wants to save money and the way to do that is by being directly in control," he said. "Mr. Vander Zalm has resolved to reverse the trend of giving something to the people and is looking after his rich friends."

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said he will recommend the federation meet union representatives of the board and other community groups to find ways to per-

S.A. POLICE SHOOT BLACK

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Police shot and killed one black and wounded another in Soweto today and arrested about 130 others in central Johannesburg as black students protested the continued preventive detention of their leaders by South Africa's white government.

Police sources said large groups of students were gathering all over Soweto, the segregated township of more than one million blacks.

OTTAWA HOLD BACK

25% Bond Penalty Without SIN Card

By KEN POLE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Failure to present a social insurance card after July 1 when cashing interest coupons from any kind of bond will result in the cashing agency holding back 25 per cent of the money.

This will not be refunded until the person files an income tax return the following year. And, when it is refunded, it will be without any interest, according to advertisements placed by the revenue department.

"This new procedure," the ads explain, "has become necessary because some taxpayers have not been reporting the full amount of bond interest received."

Officials at National Revenue were unable to say how big a problem it has become "because that's like asking how many people got away with it." It was, however, "a significant number," enough for the government to spend a fair amount of money on it advertising.

They were unreceptive to the argument that not everyone who has title to bonds also has a social insurance number, such as wives and, in some cases, children.

"There's absolutely no reason why they shouldn't have numbers; even children can have them too. Look at it as an incentive for the individual to have a SIN."

It's true that the majority of Canadians have SINs — 18 million have been issued since the program began in 1964.

Virtually every one of them still is active although about a million of these are registered as being held by dead people.

That might sound strange, but it evidently comes in handy for pension plans that pay out benefits to survivors.

And, as far as children are concerned, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association requires all its players to have a SIN, as do more and more school boards for their students.

At least one province — Prince Edward Island — has even gone so far to require that its residents be issued a number at birth.

"Everyone is using it as an identifier," says an Unemployment Insurance Commission spokesman. "Why shouldn't the government?"

A logical question, but critics see something dehumanizing and distasteful about it, regardless of how the statisticians love it. Everyone in his or her neat little slot in society, filed away for future reference.

DOUR VICTORIANS GET 20,000 SMILE BUTTONS

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The provincial government is distributing up to 20,000 smile buttons in the Victoria area in hopes of turning dour Canadians into bubbly Americans.

There will be smile placemats distributed to restaurants and smile advertisements in the media — all to be launched by what is billed as a giant smile rally 3 p.m. Wednesday in Centennial Square.

Conceived by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy and organized by provincial convention director John Plul, the promotion is designed to make tourists feel welcome.

The buttons read: "We have a special smile for you" with the "smile" in big letters.

"The program will really get rolling after the rally on Wednesday," Adamson said.

"The mayor (Mike Young) has agreed to be there and Mrs. McCarthy will also speak.

"Vancouver is having a similar rally at 8:30 a.m. Monday but I held out for an afternoon meeting. Quite frankly I don't feel like smiling at 8:30 Monday morning."

Adamson said he is urging Victoria hotels and restaurants to give some staff members an hour off work Wednesday to attend the rally.

"We would like to see a crowd of people there in waitress uniforms or whatever they work in. We hope there will be 1,000 people there."

Adamson said Americans complain because Victorians are "too dour and unhappy looking."

By wearing a smile button, he said, thousands of them may remember to be more open and welcoming when dealing with visitors.

"When you wear a smile button you have to smile. If you wear the button and look like a grouch, a visitor will say — well, where's my smile? It (the button) will act as a conversation starter and will get a dialogue going.

"When you travel in the United States you see the difference. When you are in California and a bubbly girl comes over to take your order and she says 'How're y'all' or 'have a nice day,' you can't help but feel good. That's the feeling we are trying to capture in Victoria."

NEWS BRIEFS

Injunction Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Telephone Co. Wednesday applied for a B.C. Supreme Court injunction to prevent further picketing of the company's downtown office by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Union.

Talks Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — With negotiations stalled on money matters, the Letter Carriers Union of Canada has applied for a conciliation board to assist in contract talks with the government. The current contract expires June 30.

Superprize Won

DUBLIN (CP) — Gordon Curran of Tacoma, Wash., won the 250,000 pound ($430,000) superprize today in the Irish Sweepstakes draw for Saturday's running of the Irish Derby.

Crime Drops

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crime dropped 11.5 per cent during the first five months of 1977 compared with the same period last year, according to statistics released Wednesday by the city police department. Biggest decreases were in fraud, robbery and auto theft.

Laetrile Legalized

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) Gov. Edwin Edwards signed the bill making Louisiana the 11th state in the U.S. to legalize use of Laetrile by cancer patients, but added: "I'm absolutely convinced there is no scientific evidence whatsoever which supports the contention that Laetrile either prevents or cures cancer."

SEVERE QUAKE DAMAGES TONGA

NUKUALOFA, Tonga (UPI) — A severe earthquake rocked the Kingdom of Tonga in the southern Pacific for three minutes around midnight Wednesday and sunk part of its wharf, authorities said today.

Police reported "several" injuries but no loss of life.

The U.S. National Earthquake Information Service measured the earthquake's intensity at 7.2 on the Richter scale, qualifying it as a major quake, and said it hit at about 8 a.m. EDT.

Severe damage was reported in the Vuna wharf area where the terminal building floor sank into the sea and the front of the wharf was cut off from the road and sank about two feet.

The side tower of the prime minister's residence was partly demolished and a tower on the Free Wesleyan church was also extensively damaged.

Damage to shops, government buildings and private residences is not yet fully assessed. The quake measured between 6 to 8 on the Mercalli scale indicating it could have caused slight to moderate damage in well-built ordinary structures.

A South Pacific Island Airways plane was asked to fly over volcanic islands nearby to see if the quake had been triggered by a volcanic eruption.

Second Inmate Dead After Riot

Ernie Stefanuk, Victoria Union Hospital administrator, said the cause of death has not been established, but a post-mortem would be conducted.

An inquiry was opened and adjourned Wednesday into the death of another prisoner. Officials have said they suspect drugs were involved in both deaths. Names of the victims have not been released.

Herman Rolfes, Saskatchewan social services minister, said Wednesday he was considering a full-scale inquiry into the riot.

In a statement issued from his Regina office, Rolfes also commended city police, the RCMP and the prison guards for calmly handling a potentially explosive situation.

Authorities said a total of 24 prisoners were sent to hospitals suffering from drug overdoses.

The disturbance at the medium-security institution, which houses more than 300 prisoners, started shortly before midnight Tuesday night and ended Wednesday when the prisoners released the second of two guards taken hostage.

Simpler Land Laws

Attorney-General Garde Gardom Wednesday introduced a three-bill package designed to simplify and speed up the land dealing process in B.C.

The 115-page Land Titles Act will replace the 1921 Land Registry Act, streamline the registration process and phase in computerized systems at the province's land registry offices.

Gardom said the three-bill set, including the Land Titles Act, and amendments to the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act and the Execution Act, will not proceed beyond second reading stage at this session.

This is a procedure normally adopted with complex bills and gives the public the opportunity to study and comment on the legislation.

—Repeal of a requirement that a tax certificate accompany the transfer of land within municipal boundaries. It would be up to the purchaser to determine the state of the tax account;

—The Land Titles Survey Fund, created to offset excessive survey fees incurred by land owners through no fault of their own, will be increased from $10,000 to $100,000;

—A compulsory single-page form of transfer will be introduced;

An amendment to the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act provides for the abolition of some ancient rules affecting land transfers, one of them a "livery of seisen" which set up a common law procedure where a person could mark the transfer of land by such things as the delivery of a clod of turf, a twig or a key.

If Break-In Claim True Ottawa Will Act: PM

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday further action will be taken if there is truth to a former RCMP corporal's comment that illegal entry is nothing new to the federal police force.

Trudeau said in the Commons that the assertion by Jack Ramsay, who retired from the force in 1971, obviously contradicts assurances from former RCMP commissioner W. L. Higgitt that an illegal raid on the offices of a left-wing Montreal news agency in 1972 was an isolated incident.

"I am still going on the assumption that the RCMP acts constantly within the framework of the law and that the incident in Montreal was an aberration . . ." Trudeau said.

Ramsey, who lives in Wainwright, Alta., said in an interview this week that branches of the force specialize in lock picking, wiretapping and bugging.

In 1971, he said, the rules were changed so that an installation requiring a break into premises needed approval from the commissioner's office.

Meanwhile, a Liberal source told United Press International that the government will call an election if the Conservatives move adjournment of Parliament on grounds debate about RCMP activities prevents it from working.

In the Commons Wednesday, Trudeau firmly rejected opposition demands for a federal inquiry into the allegations, saying Parliament is able to deal with a large part of the issue.

FLQ HIJACKING RAID MOTIVE?

TORONTO (CP) — The Sun says police sources have confirmed that the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) planned to hijack an Air Canada jet in 1972 and hold its passengers for ransom in exchange for the release of FLQ terrorists in prison in Montreal.

In an Ottawa story, the newspaper says the planned hijacking explains why members of three police forces, including the RCMP, broke into a Montreal building containing the offices of a left-wing news agency Oct. 6, 1972.

The Sun says it also explains why a judge last week praised the "noble and disinterested" motives of the three top-ranking officers who ordered the illegal break-in.

The Sun says police had placed an informer among the jailed terrorists.

The story says the informer told police a DC-8 would be hijacked between Dorval and Ottawa and held on the ground in Ottawa until the federal government agreed to free the FLQ terrorists.

The newspaper says the federal government knows the reasons for the break-in, but has been unwilling to come to the defence of the police forces.

However, it also says a second objective in the break-in was to prove a link between terrorists abroad and terrorists in Quebec and their relation with at least one foreign country, Cuba.

Gasoline to Rise 14 Cents

OTTAWA (CP) — Gasoline will rise by 14 cents a gallon and heating oil by 12.4 cents in the next two years as a result of higher crude oil prices announced today by Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie.

The minister said in a Commons statement the increases will come in four six-monthly stages starting July 1. Passing the increases along to consumers will be delayed 60 days beyond those dates.

Natural gas prices will increase by 17.5 cents a thousand cubic feet effective Aug. 1 and a further 17 cents next Feb. 1. Further increases for 1978 will be discussed with the Alberta government, the major producer, next spring.

The price of crude oil will increase by $1 a barrel this July 1. Gillespie said the oil companies will again be asked to delay passing the increase along to consumers for 60 days to use existing stocks of lower price products.

Further crude oil increases will come next Jan. 1, July 1, 1978, and Jan. 1, 1979.

Gillespie also confirmed in his statement the federal government intends to offer a national program to help insulate existing housing.

The program, to be outlined Monday, will cost about $1.5 billion in the next seven years. Homeowners will be offered grants and loans to help pay for the insulation.

Vandal Naphtha 'Bombs' City

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A series of explosions, apparently triggered by 3,000 gallons of a highly volatile liquid dumped by vandals at a strike-bound rubber plant, roared through part of the city's sewer system today.

"Those streets look like they were bombed," Lt. Robert E. Lord, of the Akron Fire Department, said.

There were no reports of injuries although a section of the west side of the city was evacuated as a precautionary measure, said police dispatcher Sgt. Hugh Bennett.

Lord said the liquid, naphtha, which is used in the repair of tires, was traced to the Patch Rubber Co. where employees are on strike.

"The owner called us this morning and said three, thousand gallons of naptha, which is highly volatile, has been dumped by vandals," said Lord.

"They tied off the valves and it went into the city sewer system. Anything could have touched it off, a spark, a cigarette, anything."

"I saw a crater 80 to 90 feet across right after the explosion," said Police Capt. David Whitmire who was at the scene."

Whitmire said the explosion also broke a large water main and a gas main in the area. He said the sewers were flushed with water to clean them out.

Another fire department spokesman said the explosions caused "major damage" to the streets, damaged a church and blew manhole covers into the air.

"Some of the streets looked like a bomb was dropped on them" said the spokesman.

"We were in the basement of city hall and we heard one of the explosions down there," he said. "Manhole covers are blown all over the place."

Mammoth May Come Here

If the skeleton of an extinct mammoth unearthed at a dam site on the Peace River is in good condition, it will be brought to Victoria.

Tom Loy, assistant curator of archeology at the provincial museum said today the skeleton would then be re-assembled and put on display.

"But if it's in poor condition, the bits and pieces of the skeleton will be taken to Vancouver to be sorted out by the Canadian Conservation Institute which has the facilities for such work," he said.

"It seems to be a complete specimen," he added. "And if that's the case it's very rare. We've found odd bone scattered around B.C. before but never a whole mammoth."

Loy will leave this weekend for the Peace River dam site to look at the skeleton unearthed by construction workers.

Museum archaeologist Ross Brand, who visited the site last weekend, said only the front of the section of the skeleton had been unearthed.

"But it seems that the rest is lying in the gravel bank and it may be more complete than anything we've ever found before," he said.

The state of the skeleton should be known in two or three days, he said.

If the skeleton is in good condition it will take a year to put it together for display, Loy said.

He observed no one knows for certain why the mammoth that roamed North America millions of years ago became extinct.

Some researchers believe that a combination of natural causes and predation by man led to the animal's extinction.

"The mammoth was hunted by man," he explained. "And man in those pre-history days seems to have been an efficient hunter."

Loy said workers unearthing the Peace River skeleton are looking out for evidence to determine how the animal died.

"If there is evidence that it was killed by man, the find will be major," he said.

Vander Zalm Plans End To Last Resources Board

suade the government to withdraw the bill.

The 1,200 employees of the VRB will be transferred to the ministry of human resoruces, although they will not leave the Vancouver area or essentially change jobs, Vander Zalm said.

The legislation guarantees that no one will be laid off as a result of the move and all employees will become members of the B.C. Government Employees Union, without loss of seniority or status or salary.

Vander Zalm said if he is to be responsible for the programs in the Vancover area, he must be directly in charge.

The VRB, he said, is just another layer of bureaucracy and "I don't know why Vancouver needs another level of government."

Community resources boards were set up in various communities in B.C. by the NDP government in 1974 as an attempt to promote community involvement in social services.

The Social Credit government eliminated all but the VRB in February, 1976.

That community involvement, Vander Zalm said, will be provided either by advisory boards set up in communities such as the one operating in his home constituency of Surrey, or by local MLAs.

"It will probably mean some extra work for the MLAs but I don't really feel too bad about that," he said.

Vander Zalm said he had basically decided earlier this year to eliminate the VRB, but that decision was delayed for unspecified reasons.

The VRB is operating on a $96 million budget for the current fiscal year. That money will be transferred to the general human resources budget.

NDP human resources critic Rosemary Brown asked Vander Zalm in the house if he's abolishing the VRB because of his run-ins with the outspoken group.

"Is any organization which questions the conduct of the minister to be wiped out?" she asked.

Brown served notice later she's prepared to filibuster forever in the legislature to prevent the abolition of the board.

The Vancouver-Burrard MLA told a meeting of the VRB a few hours after Vander Zalm's announcement:

"I'm the first person to speak on the bill (to abolish the VRB) and I'm going to speak forever. I can handle a filibuster of five to 10 years or at least until the next election."

She said the filibuster tactic is the only way the opposition can stall legislation once the government has it before the legislature.

And she appealed to Tory leader Scott Wallace and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson to join the NDP in fighting the legislation.

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said today in "doing a hatchet job" on the board, Vander Zalm is attempting to turn the clock back to "the negative and wasteful bureaucracy of the first Bennett government."

He said the board had been a sound approach in attempting to involve the community in the decision-making process.

Guy said the federation will be working with VRB employees and other community groups in an effort to have the government withdraw the bill.

He said there is no doubt that Canadians are more reserved than Americans, which may be all right in some things but is wretched as far as the tourist business is concerned.

Adamson, 36, is conducting what amounts to a 12-day blitz. He was hired June 17 and his main work will be completed with the rally and button distribution on June 29.

He began by writing letters to businesses and to municipal officials explaining the program and announcing the Wednesday rally.

Now he is following up by distributing buttons and placemats where requested.

A test run in a downtown restaurant proved very successful, he said, and owners of other restaurants began asking for buttons.

"I think this will spread across the city and we hope to distribute as many as 20,000 buttons. We would like all Victorians to wear the button but especially those working in restaurants, hotels and in stores."

He said it would be difficult to calculate the budget for the promotion because the buttons and placemats are being distributed from a central office in Vancover and are not part of the costs of the Victoria operation.

Adamson is working from the office of Victoria Chamber of Commerce at Fort and Government and is being assisted by the chamber staff.

THEFT EVIDENCE 'JUST TOO GOOD'

A 28-year-old man today was acquitted of theft after a county court judge indicated evidence against him had "all the earmarks of a plant."

Judge E. J. C. Stewart in finding George David Clause not guilty of theft of $400 and a pair of boots from an apartment above his own at 614 Esquimalt Road last March, said he could not imagine a man planning a theft and leaving such damaging evidence.

He noted the boots had been found in Clause's apartment and commenting it had the earmarks of a plant, said: "No one could be convicted on this kind of evidence. I acquit you."

The theft was alleged to have occurred from the apartment of Ralph Hargreaves, which also housed a German Shepherd dog, while people were sleeping in the suite after a party.

Added the judge: "This dog seems to be undoglike.

"It never barks and never makes a commotion when anyone comes around," said Judge Stewart.

The judge said the Crown's case was "strong and everything fitted in."

Inspector Con Game Returns

Victoria police have issued a warning to beware of a bank inspector con game that may hit this area.

An elderly woman in Eastern Canada was defrauded of $2,300 by two men, both between 35 and 45 and of medium build, who may be heading for other Canadian cities.

In the fraud, one of the men will phone and say he is a bank inspector checking on the honesty of one of his employees. He asks the person to co-operate by drawing a sum of money from his account and turning it over to the inspector who will take it back to the bank. The inspector then disappears.

The men study city directories, voters' lists and other data to get background information on their victims. They tend to phone elderly couples or widows.

CRASH HURTS FOUR SAILORS

Four sailors from HMCS Yukon were injured — one seriously — when their car went out of control on Esquimalt Road early today and slammed into a power pole.

Derek Carr, 19, is in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Victoria General Hospital.

Ronald Slater, 20, is in satisfactory condition while no condition was available for Ronald Cooper, 22.

Driver of the vehicle, Robert Steeb, 19, was treated and released. The accident occurred at about 2:15 a.m. in the 800-block Esquimalt Road in front of the Cordon Bleu restaurant, Esquimalt police said.

Phillips Vows Fish Worker Aid

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said Wednesday he will call an emergency meeting of the B.C. Development Corp. if it's necessary to save the jobs of 1,000 people put out of work by the closure of two Vancouver area fish-canning plants.

Phillips met Wednesday with a delegation from the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union concerned about the closure of the Queen Charlotte plant in Richmond and the Bingham plant in Vancouver.

The union wants a government commitment to either take over the operation for the remainder of the salmon season or help arrange funding to keep the plants open.

Phillips said he has had meetings with the development corporation officials, the federal Enterprise Development Program, bankers and the owners of the plants.

The minister refused to release the contents of a confidential report given to him on the sudden closure.

Everything possible will be done to help the plants reopen, he said, including the possibility of calling an emergency meeting of the BCDC board of directors.

"I am satisfied there was no external pressure and no monopolies involved. It (the closure) was simply a value judgment made by the bank involved," Phillips said.

Union spokesman George Hewison said earlier he's afraid the closure is part of a "squeeze play" by the two large fish packing companies in B.C. — B.C. Packers and Canadian Fish.

Phillips is expected to make a further statement on the situation later this week.

A request by NDP MLA Graham Lea that the legislature adjourn into emergency debate on the state of the fishing industry in the province was refused by Speaker Ed Smith.

Redekop Acquitted In Death

VANDERHOOF (CP) — Richard Redekop, 23, was found not guilty Wednesday of negligence in the traffic death last year of Coreen Thomas, 21, of the nearby Stoney Creek Indian band.

Provincial court judge David Lewis ruled that on the evidence of the dead girl's sister Marjorie, 16, Thomas made a grave error in judgment in darting across the road in front of Redekop's car July 3, 1976.

Thomas, nine months pregnant, was struck and killed on a road from this north central British Columbia community to the Stoney Creek reserve, nine miles southwest. People she was walking with had testified that she had been drinking beer and smoking marijuana at a street dance before the accident.

At an inquest into the death last September, Indians used the accident to publicize human rights issues in the community. None of those issues became part of the trial this week.

The trial began Monday as a preliminary hearing but was complicated by defence lawyer Sid Simons reserving the right to change his client's election of trial by judge and jury and ask that the hearing be converted in midstream to a trial by judge.

Simons, of Vancouver, made that move Wednesday after the crown had presented its case. After Redekop re-elected trial by judge, Simons moved for a dismissal.

He argued that the death occurred because of circumstances in which a group of people acted foolishly and Redekop became a victim of their actions.

Crown prosecutor Don Clancey argued that another car had passed through the group on the road without hitting anyone because it had slowed down and because Redekop hadn't slowed down indicated a wanton disregard for the safety of others.

Although evidence of witnesses, mainly native people, was contradictory in details of what happened all denied that Thomas had been playing "chicken" when she was hit. The game involves standing in front of an oncoming car and daring its driver to either avoid the player or hit him.

Witnesses told police that a game of chicken was being played but denied the statement at the inquest and at the trial.

Thomas' sister testified Tuesday that she and Coreen were holding hands as Redekop's car approached with Coreen "more in the middle of the road."

She said Coreen had taken her hand and said she wanted to cross the road but "I said I didn't want to."

"The car was pretty close when I let go of her hand," she said.

"I thought I might get hit if I didn't run. When I looked back Coreen was on the pavement."

Judge Lewis said he considered Marjorie Thomas the most reliable witness and on her evidence Coreen Thomas "made a grave error in judgment in leaving the hand of her sister and deciding to cross the road at a time when a vehicle was so close an accident was inevitable."

8 Escape Oakalla: 6 Nabbed

BURNABY (CP) — Eight prisoners escaped from the Lower Mainland regional correctional centre Wednesday night, but six were quickly recaptured by guards.

Prison authorities identified the two escapers still at large as Darell Gordon, 18, and Edward Killings, 17. Neither is considered dangerous.

A prison spokesman said the prisoners escaped through a hole in a fence which appeared to have been pre-cut for the prisoners' bid for freedom.

Earlier this week, John Topley, escaped from the institution while on a swimming party. He also is not considered dangerous.

Pensioners Split $100,000

MERRITT (CP) — Three old-age pensioners in this south-central British Columbia community will share $100,000 prize money from Sunday's Loto Canada draw.

Addie Goldie, 72, says she has stopped worrying about a forthcoming rent boost on her one-bedroom apartment.

Mrs. Goldie, Jean Slater and William Hooson will celebrate their win as soon as Mrs. Slater gets out of hospital.

But the fact she was in hospital with ankle trouble didn't keep her from spotting the fact she was a winner of one-third of a substantial prize.

"It's a good thing she did," Mrs. Goldie said. "I had completely forgotten that we had bought a Loto Canada ticket."

ISRAELI N-ARMS CITED BY HUSSEIN

KUWAIT (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan has accused Israel of introducing nuclear weapons into the Middle East, according to an interview published in the daily Al Qabas today.

"I'm almost sure that Israel has nuclear weapons and it had them during the 1973 Middle East war," Hussein was quoted as saying. "This is why Israel refused to sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. Jordan may take the necessary measures on the international level to expose Israel's introduction of nuclear weapons to the region."

Hussein called on the Arabs to build up their military strength in case peace moves collapse. He warned "it could be a catastrophe" if the Geneva peace conference were reva peace conference were reconvened and then broke down.

He declared that "Jordan will not be an alternative at the conference for the Palestinians."

Asked if he thought U.S. President Carter meant the East Bank of Jordan when he referred to a homeland for the Palestinians, Hussein said, "I don't believe that he was referring to the East Bank. I think he was referring to the (West Bank) territories occupied by Israel."

If it doesn't fit, it's the wrong color, or you get two of them as gifts—What do you do? Drive all over creation for a refund or an exchange?

Not if you've shopped right here in Victoria.

Here, you are doing business with retailers who depend on you as a customer and are eager for repeat business from you.

The total value of any new purchase is measured in more than just the listed price.

You must also be sure that should you need further information or should you have some problem, that the salesman or businessman is available for fast action—whether for warranty work or even a friendly refund.

And the most convenient thing about shopping at home is that you can check out information on products in the comfort of your own home — Through the pages of your two Victoria Daily Newspapers.

The advertisements, inserted by businesses, large and small, keep you informed of the latest market prices, the opening of new stores, special offers, credit terms, hours of operation, parking facilities etcetera.

The progressive Victoria retailers who advertise their goods and services in your daily newspaper not only offer competitive prices and good selection but also back up their sales with on-the-spot availability should you need more information, parts or servicing, or—dare we say it, should you have any complaints to make.

Uphold the Right

After several days of tortuous debate — even in the printed Hansard it is difficult to follow some MPs' lines of questioning — parliament seems to have come round to the nub of the issue in the illegal police break-in at the Agence Press Libre du Quebec.

That is, the abuse of power by the RCMP and the active cover-up by top-level members of the force. The question of former solicitor-general Jean-Pierre Goyer's involvement was a red herring, the same sort of extraneous detour that got the U.S. senate Watergate inquiry sidetracked for a while. What did he know and when did he know it?

As much as the opposition in the House of Commons would have loved to tie the October, 1972 break-in directly to a member of the Trudeau cabinet, the answer to the two questions seems to be nothing, and not until years later.

Goyer has been an inept fumbler in almost every portfolio he has held, but it seems clear he had nothing to do with the break-in, in fact, wasn't even informed after the fact. That much has emerged, despite the silly attempts of Prime Minister Trudeau to protect his weak colleague, at first letting him hide behind a statement delivered by Solicitor-General Francis Fox and refusing to allow questions to be asked directly of Goyer.

Now that the opposition has more or less established Goyer's ignorance of the RCMP's machinations behind his back, Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Crediters must continue to press the government for an inquiry to determine who in the force was responsible for the RCMP cover-up.

Clearly, Canadians cannot depend upon the courts to see justice done. Not after a Quebec session court judge gave unconditional discharges to three senior police officers — one of them Donald Cobb, chief superintendent of the RCMP in Montreal — after they pleaded guilty to the break-in.

Why did it take 4½ years after the break-in to bring charges against the police involved? Why did the RCMP ask Goyer not to acknowledge a letter sent to him as solicitor-general accusing the Mounties of having conducted the break-in? Who approved the break-in? How high in the force did knowledge of the break-in and subsequent cover-up extend?

These are some of the questions still unanswered after the furore in parliament has begun to die down. They must be answered, and the Trudeau government has a moral duty to see that they are.

It is not enough to say, as the judge who discharged the three police officers did last week, that they were acting in a period of political turmoil and unrest, and thus their special and extraordinary actions were justified.

It is particularly in times like those that the rule of law must be observed. If it is not, it makes a mockery of the whole system of justice. The police, especially the RCMP whose every member pledges to Maintien le Droit — Uphold the Right — cannot be above the very laws they are supposed to enforce upon the rest of Canadians.

Undesirable Necessity

It is impossible to be enthusiastic about the provincial government's new plan to provide places to lock up hard-core juvenile delinquents. The government itself is not enthusiastic about the plan, terming it only "an undesirable necessity." Indeed, that is the best that can be said for it.

There are those who would argue it is not a necessity, that all delinquent children can be dealt with in their home communities through strict probation orders, restitution programs, group homes and the like. But these optimists seem to be slightly unrealistic. Nearly every policeman, prosecutor, and probation officer can tell of one or two delinquents he has known who have been a real danger to the community because of their violence and aggressiveness. Innocent citizens must be protected from the outbursts of these children.

Given that assumption, the government has probably done the best it could in setting up a program. It is aiming to put as many of the children as possible in forestry camp settings where isolation, rather than bars, can be used for security. It is ensuring that all those incarcerated will receive education and, where necessary, special help to overcome learning disabilities and previous school problems. It has made it mandatory that all children, once released, be subject to a period of supervision, rather than simply having them turned loose on their own again. It is insisting that only children over the age of 14 and convicted of serious crimes be sent to the new facilities.

It is hard to see what more the government could do. But that is not to say that the new system is going to work well; rather it will be subject to a myriad of dangers. As in any jail, the grouping together of several hard core delinquents under the same roof is liable to turn the place into an advanced school of crime. The institutions will also be subject to all the other problems of adult jails — contraband, sexual abuse, escapes, even riots.

Even more worrisome is the possibility that the facilities will be used as a dumping ground for juveniles who are a nuisance in their home communities but who are not really dangerous. Frustrated judges and prosecutors, especially from the more remote communities, may use the camps and jails for the simple expedient of getting rid of the nuisances, rather than giving them the help they need.

There is little the government can do about the general problems that arise in jail-like facilities. Only the skill and dedication of the staff will keep those under control.

However, the government can help prevent the dumping-ground problem. Increased resources to help communities, especially smaller communities, cope with their difficult children should be as much a part of the program as the camps and jails themselves.

HAROLD GREER

A Scatterbrained Report

TORONTO — There is so much that is weird in the Judy LaMarsh report on violence in the communications industry that one hardly knows where to begin. Perhaps the scatterbrained thinking that has gone into its recommendations can be best reflected by examining one or two key proposals, rather than the whole grab-bag.

One such proposal is that the federal parliament legislate a Freedom of Expression Act which would "specifically outlaw pre-censorship by government authority of all public communications, either broadcast or printed."

Indeed, you may say, and what is wrong with that? Nothing at all, except that there is no government censorship, now or threatened, that has to be outlawed. The real purpose of the proposed act would be to restrict expression, as the report itself makes clear:

"The act would also define the limits of free expression: libel, obscenity, breach of the Official Secrets Act, matters affecting the defence of Canada, treason, sedition, or promulgating information that leads to incitement of crime or violence."

Incitement

Now with the exception of that last item, and taking libel to mean criminal libel, all of those things are in the criminal law of Canada now and there is nothing in the LaMarsh report which says they have to be redefined. The whole point of the proposal is to add "promulgating information that leads to incitement of crime or violence" to the criminal law.

Here perhaps a disclaimer is necessary. I am as concerned as the next man about the problem of violence in the media—TV or print—and I am a journalistic heretic in that the idea of prohibition, inhibition or restriction does not per se disturb me. But surely we are entitled to expect a modicum of intelligence from a royal commission (that's Miss LaMarsh, newspaper columnist Scott Young and family court judge Lucien Beaulieu) that has spent two years looking for answers.

So where is the intelligence in a law which would prohibit the promulgation of "information that leads to incitement of crime or violence?" Those words are nowhere explained in the LaMarsh report and we must rely on how she and her colleagues explained it on releasing the report.

It would work this way: if a crime or act of violence could be proven to have been incited by the perpetrator's having read, seen or heard of a previous crime or act of violence, then whoever published information about that previous crime or act of violence would be liable to prosecution and conviction.

Thus, a report in a newspaper about a successful bank robbery could subsequently be indictable if it should turn out that someone, having read the report, decided he would like to be a bank robber too. A TV newscast of a burning building could be an offence if it was subsequently proven that a viewer, having seen it, was incited to become an arsonist. And so on.

I assure you I do not exaggerate. That was how the proposed law was explained and it apparently had its genesis in the similarity between two shootings in 1975 at high schools at Brampton and Ottawa. The similarity was drawn to the commission's attention by many people who felt that newspaper accounts about the Brampton event led to a repetition in Ottawa.

It is true the psychiatrist at the Ottawa inquest said there was a possibility of "contagion" and it is true that the Ottawa youth who committed the crime kept a diary in which the Brampton tragedy was recorded. But he recorded and planned a number of things and his mental condition was such that his crime could have been triggered by anything.

Granted there is a possibility, even a probability, of contagion when crime and violence are reported in the media, is it intelligent to make the media vicariously responsible for what the mentally-imbalanced people in the world may do? The intelligent response to that problem, surely, is simply to prohibit, period, the reporting of crime and violence, not propose a law which says such reporting is a crime if it is subsequently shown to have caused more crime and violence.

Given the number of sick persons in the world, the effect of such a law, if passed, would be to scare every publisher away from printing any crime news at all. That would be news censorship by indirection. Why not do it directly? The answer, of course, is that Miss LaMarsh and company are all against censorship.

Depravity

How much against it may be seen by their recommendation that film censorship be abolished in Ontario and replaced by a film classification system rigidly enforced at the box office so that children and youths under 18 would only be allowed to see films considered suitable for them.

The net effect of this would be that films now prohibited, and parts of films now deleted, would be available to anyone 18 and over for the price of a ticket. If you think that many of the films which pass the censor now are pretty bad, you should see these prohibited ones. They are sheer depravity.

Yet Miss LaMarsh and company, for all their concern that the promulgation of crime and violence may lead to the commission of crime and violence, would let the crazies of the world see such films for the price of a ticket, subject perhaps only to the ability of the police to get a conviction for obscenity.

Miss LaMarsh was asked at her press conference if she did not see some inconsistency in these two approaches. She replied forcefully that she did not.

Fluoride in Milk

Mr. A. Giffard LeBlond, if he will forget his understandable reaction to Mr. George Malysheff (May 5), might think for a moment of the need to do something about the increasing problem of dental disease.

There is an alternative to fluoridating the public water supplies through using milk. Milk contains calcium, protein and vitamins too, which gives it a nutritive bonus.

Children do not drink all that water anyway, and where there is a certain repugnance for the taste of raw milk, this can be overcome by the simple expedient of addition of popular milkshake flavors.

The degree of fluoride absorption between water and milk is practically identical. Other advantages include the more readily given consent of parents to a method which offers individual withdrawal or control of the quantity taken, both of which are impossible with indiscriminate fluoridation of the entire water supply. The purpose of the fluoride is to develop and strengthen the teeth in their formative period, particularly in the final hardening of their protective enamel. Once that has been completed, normally by 12 years of age, no reason remains for drinking it. The saving in cost to the community will be obvious, at least half that of the water method which involves so much needless waste and friction among unwilling participants. There is no wastage and no fear for embarrassing effects on the environmental vegetation.

The Borrow Dental Milk Foundation (a non-profit trust dedicated to finding a solution to the dental caries menace) supported pilot schemes in eight countries. They are being carried out by universities and dental schools. Its address is Padnell Grange, Padnell Road, Cowplain, Portsmouth, Hants, England. — Phyllis Deakin, Waterlooville, Hants, England.

Export Eggs

Surplus of eggs in Canada today, overproduction by hundreds of thousands of dozens, and the Egg Marketing Board is ready to take drastic measures by recommending mass slaughter of egg-producing hens at the peak of their laying cycle.

Here we are with a fabulous reserve of the richest food, one of the top sources of natural proteins, vitamins and minerals, ready and fresh for human consumption in its natural state, (not synthetic), and yet so many people abroad are starving.

Some years ago, especially during the war years, eggs were processed here in Canada by dehydration, packed in powder form by the ton, and shipped abroad to feed millions. Why not again?

Surely the recommendation to cut down production is not the solution that egg producers expect from their government. Why reduce production which automatically leads to a cut in farm employment as well, and then almost at the same time, increase the foreign aid program to the poor and undernourished of the less developed nations by sending them vast sums of dollars. — R. J. Moreno, 169 Beach Drive.

Bridle Paths

I recently read an article about the "damn disgrace" that youngsters were being allowed to ride horses on busy streets. I could not agree more, but perhaps the reason they are riding there is that everytime a new subdivision is built, bridle paths are being destroyed, or made impossible to get at.

In the seven years since 1970, the horse population in this area has risen by at least 800 per cent. The majority of these horses are owned by children who live on small acreage and have no riding ring, so they have to go to the paths, which are becoming fewer and fewer. Not only are the bridle paths being cut off by subdivisions, but the Capital Region Board has stated that the remaining bridle paths are going to be changed over to bike and foot paths in the next two years. Where are our children going to go, but to the streets and roads when all paths are gone?

The different levels of government sponsor sports for the youth, but seem to forget that caring for and the riding of a horse is both a sport and a teacher of responsibility for a living being.

Saanich school board this year has heard the pleas of these children and is sponsoring an eight week course in practical horse care and management to teach these people how to manage their horses, so now I feel that it is up to the municipalities and Capital Region Board to help maintain what little we have left.— Betty Thomas, 4853 Townsend Drive.

Contract Abused

I am writing concerning a proposed subdivision in the Cadboro Bay area known as Minnie Mountain. This is a unique area and has similar characteristics, topographically, as both Mount Douglas and Mount Tolmie, the summits of which are designated as public recreation areas.

I was under the impression that the zoning regulations in Saanich limit the height of apartment dwellings to a maximum of four stories. The proposed subdivision has an eight and a five-storey apartment complex on their plan. The land-use contract, as I understand it, is being abused in this case.

I would like to ascertain how the project continues under a land use contract, when the apartment proposal is contrary to the community plan, and I might also add, the wishes of most residents in Cadboro Bay.

According to the developer, he is using the apartments as a trade-off between recreation areas — or smaller lots. I might point out that some of the so-called recreation areas, as shown on his plan, are designated danger areas on the municipal plan.

I would be very much reassured if Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis could perhaps check and see if, and what, negotiations have transpired between Saanich municipality and the developer.

There are numerous residents who feel as I do on this matter — Margaret Vey, 3886 Cadboro Bay Road.

Separate Burrows

In regards to Bill 33 which Premier Bennett is so anxious to push through the legislature, it is evident that in his secret meetings with Trudeau he has been cleverly manipulated into accepting Trudeau's policies on the support of private schools.

Once again the Liberals are using their power and patronage to establish their eventual dominance in B.C. What better way than through the schools? The net result will be a proliferation of separate burrows within the school system, with a climate created for the influx of French-Canadians whose increasing numbers will encourage them to demand even more recognition and special privileges. This Pandora's Box that Premier Bennett will open will be nothing but a total disaster for this province with the costs of education becoming prohibitive.

It's time the people demanded a referendum on this vital issue before it's too late.

While Quebec is being given more autonomy to follow its political pursuits we in B.C. are becoming increasingly dominated by the Liberal government. It's time we woke up. — Muriel Kennedy, Metchosin.

Foundering Fathers

The "foundering fathers" at city hall, the "house of ill decisions" are at it again. They were not content with turning an illustrious voyager into a voyeur peering into Empress bedrooms instead of facing seaward as any resolute sailor would. They are now using the famous navigator's name and fame to scuttle and give the deep six to a small home-grown business.

A tourist service which, curiously enough, provides sea-going excursions into Victoria's own maritime history and incidentally does not interfere with traffic. An enterprise that provides employment for seven persons, including three summer jobs for students. Moreover, a concern that not only pays a business tax to the city but also pours a goodly sum into the city coffers for wharfage at the city floats.

Where else but in Victoria would one find a situation where the city charges a business tax plus charges for the use of their facilities, then binds and gags the business so that it can but fail, putting people out of work? These are the same dodos that want to spend more of your money to attract other business here. What a fatuous idea!

If one operator is to be banned from the upper causeway because it may be offensive to Captain Cook's environs, then all those on the causeway, particularly those concerned with transport, should also go, for they certainly offend the good citizens of Victoria especially those who get caught behind them. — H. Shergold, 1102-360 Douglas.

Be Kind to Tourists

Victoria is one of the finest cities in the world and as a result tourism has evolved as its largest industry. Most of us know that, but too few come foreward as hospitable and courteous hosts to our city's tourists.

In recent years, competition for tourist business has become very keen and it takes more than the physical charm of Victoria to leave a favorable impression of our city with its visitors. People who come to Victoria should leave with a commitment to return again for a longer visit. Departing tourists should go back to their own cities talking about the good time they had in Victoria, about the first rate attractions, the beautiful weather, the old English charm, but most important, they should remember friendly, helpful Victorians who assisted them with directions or suggested a good place to dine or smiled at them when they walked down the street.

Tourism means a lot to our city and if everybody helps, the industry will grow, providing more jobs in existing restaurants, hotels, shops, and transportation systems as well as additonal jobs upgrading and expanding the industry.

Everybody in Victoria should be reminded that the tourist dollar is spent over and over again in our local economy by all of us. So let's appreciate its source our tourists. Be kind to them; help them when help is needed. This is not only a wise way to be but a very human way. — Bill Wellburn, president, Victoria division, B.C. Hotels Association.

Issue of Choice

I find the recent pamphlet of the Pro-life Society lacking in credibility. It dwells upon a sensational aspect of our society without reviewing the situation as a whole.

Should I believe that it is my right as a human being to NOT use my system to support a non-self-sustaining organism (especially should I deem it detrimental to my mental or physical health), the pamphlet insinuates that I am anti-life and get my kicks from abortion. Neither insinuation is true. Doing away with an organism that threatens my well-being is none other than self-defence. Seeing it as self-defense brings up what this issue is really about: the fact that when it comes to poverty and denial of rights, it is women and children first. The rights of children will never be gained until those of women exist.

Pro-Life's efforts would probably help the human community more if it focused its obvious concern, energies and finances upon providing a more supportive environment for the many women who are now struggling as the sole support for their families and on providing better sex education and childcare courses for the many males who have fallen for the pitch that the playboy-consumer role is normal for men and the only fulfilling way to live. (Let's remember that when an abortion occurs, a male and female have not been responsible for their actions: there is no mention of the male responsibility in the pamphlet.)

These statements lead to another area in which the pamphlet is unacceptable. It is blatantly sexist. Enough studies have shown that every building block of language, even small pronouns, create a society that offers either bias or equal opportunity. In the pamphlet the aborted fetus is always a he. The pronoun he-she would show that you realize that females are aborted too and are of equal concern.

And there is the woman who carries the fetus. She is more than a vessel that bears children. To be legally opposed to letting her choose to have or not to have an abortion is to say that a woman cannot make survival judgements about her own body. It also implies that she can be discarded for a potential new life. When legal abortion is not available, many women are forced to use unhealthy and harmful means to defend themselves. Let's take care of what lives we have before we laud and create an ill-planned future.

The argument that there are not enough babies for those who want to adopt is also highly questionable. There may not be enough white babies, but certainly if we're looking at the human situation, we must consider the many who need homes and don't fall into that colour category. Such prejudice is racism. And what about the great lack of adequate foster homes? Again, we have more than enough to deal with when it comes to childrearing.

The degradation of women can also be seen in the idea that women "can just have the baby and give it up for adoption". This is to consider that a woman or female child is just a machine for producing babies without feelings after carrying a fetus for nine months. Women do have feelings and often don't want to give up their babies shoud it live to full term. But what does this society offer a single parent? Poverty and pity. That's the problem to hit! But the pamphlet shunts it to the last page and obscurity.

It's a nasty subject when some are trying to dictate that others cannot choose what is healthy for themselves, and certainly supporting another organism may be detrimental to one's well being. The question is not pro- or anti-abortion; the question has to do with choice. The issue is one of changing the focus from a society that commercializes sex with babies as a by-product to a society that plans its future generation with mutual respect for females and males, children and adults. — C. J., Victoria.

Unwanted Children

The motto "Every Child a Wanted Child", is an excellent one — as it was originally intended. Thirty years ago it was coined to encourage responsible family planning within the structure of marriage and with this goal Pro-Life has no quarrel.

However, in the 1970s this phrase has acquired a new meaning—seldom spoken but nevertheless very much a reality. It should read "Every Child a Wanted Child—and if unwanted, killed", for in the light of present abortion policy that is exactly what it means. It is with this aspect that Pro-Life is in total disagreement.

Since the distribution of the pamphlet "What is a Baby Worth?", it has been interesting to observe the complete change of attack by the local pro-abortion (or pro-choice as they prefer to be called) movement. No longer do they refer to the fetus as a "clump of cells", a "blueprint", a "blob of protoplasm" or a "biochemical process". To reduce the unborn child to this level in light of the scientific data published would be folly.

Now the cry is for a life of "quality and purpose"—whatever that may mean. The unspoken part of this new slogan states that those who may, at some time or other, not measure up are expendable.

The issue of abortion is much more serious than the average citizen may realize because the acceptance of this practice strikes at the very core of our human dignity. We have taken human life out of the category of an inalienable right and hung a price tag on it.

Recently a Vancouver Pro-Life physician related the case of a young woman whom he had seen through the first five happy months of her planned pregnancy. When her husband unexpectedly won an all-expense paid trip which coincided with the baby's delivery date that unborn child was suddenly labelled unwanted. When her doctor refused to terminate the baby's life, the mother simply shopped around until she found a physician who would.

Of course this is an isolated incident, (unfortunately such reasons for abortion are becoming increasingly common), but it does show the ludicrous aspect of the unwanted child theory. Did the unborn baby suddenly become less human because he was unwanted? Of course not, his status had changed only in the eyes of others. Yesterday a planned, wanted human being — he was protected by our laws. Today an unwanted nuisance — he is exterminated.

It is interesting to note that Germany legalized abortion in 1927 on the grounds that the fetus was a parasite. The next step was to do away with any parasite such as the senile, the deformed, the retarded and eventually anyone who disagreed. The key to their strategy was to "label" the fetus and then define the label.—Arla Rendle, Chairman, Victoria Pro-Life Society, P.O. Box 225, Victoria.

Facing the Fire

There has been a sigh of relief following the announcement that the development of the Kitimat oil port has been postponed. However, I would hasten to warn the people of Victoria that although they may have escaped the frying pan they now face the fire.

The Strait of Juan de Fuca is about to be used as a major access for supertankers. To date one tanker — of about 125,000 tons — has passed our shores roughly every seven to ten days. Very soon tankers will be carrying about two million barrels of oil per day within view of Beacon Hill Park. (A ton is about 7.2 barrels.) They will be discharging at Cherry Point and Anacortes. This increased volume of traffic will add to the hazard of grounding and collision. We are used to seeing the odd tanker of a modest 125,000 tons, but already two vessels of 165,000 tons are projected to add to the traffic. The Shell Oil Co. has asked for additional dredging at Anacortes to take tankers of 190,000 tons. So it goes up and up, and bearing in mind that the more oil carried in a vessel the higher the profit, where will it end?

Much of Victoria's domestic development and recreational facilities is just above the high water mark, and a disaster to one of these big ships would be catastrophic. Any one could release more oil on our doorstep than was discharged from the defective well capping in the North Sea. It would depreciate property from Sooke to Sidney in a few hours. The ferries would experience a boom from people fleeing the stench.

There is some doubt about the Thompson inquiry continuing its work, but we need it. Dr. Thompson stated plainly during his visit to Victoria that his terms of reference extended to the West Coast and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. So a continuation of the inquiry would be of immense benefit to Victoria. It would bring out the dangers we face and we would be told, at last, what equipment and plans are available to get rid of the inevitable mess. — A. G. Coning, president, Bluepeace Victoria, 3152 Richmond Road.

Pious Protection

I read with interest the article in the daily newspaper dealing with Central Saanich council's condemnation of Dr. Howie McDiarmid and others for finding a loophole to circumvent zoning laws on lot size. Again I am amazed by this pious protection of the majority rights professed by a judas council who several months ago would not support recreation facilities for a large group of teenagers. This same council hoodwinked us into a community plan and have continued to adjust the original version. I refer to the three-storey low-rent housing constructed in the village of Brentwood that has to be two-storey townhouses according to the plan. In the next few months this will create another influx of teenagers hanging around with nothing to do, not to mention the devaluation of real estate for blocks around it.

This project will eventually become a burden on the taxpayers, requiring additional services and police protection. Now comes Dr. McDiarmid on the scene wishing to divide into smaller two-acre lots a piece of land that has no agricultural value, and turn it into a beautiful subdivision of fine homes providing a good tax base, and council condemns him.

In the last three years this council has allowed hundreds of arable acres to come under developers' machines and the building of subdivisions where every fifth house is the same. If this council is truly concerned with the aesthetics of our area, perhaps a second look at that open pit mine by Mount Newton school should be first on their list and let the good doctor get on with his development. — G. D. (Boots) Gurr, Box 164, Brentwood Bay.

Special Duty

I wish to endorse and support in every possible way the Attorney-General's present campaign against those thoughtless perpetrators of so much human suffering and misery — the drinking drivers. Nothing other than the fear of being caught is so likely to restrain a motorist from excessive drinking right from the outset of an evening or to encourage him to go home by taxi if he has taken rather too much liquor.

As for the completely heedless, the police must simply be on hand in sufficient numbers in sufficient places sufficiently often to catch them and to rule them off the road.

The availability of alcohol on every hand and at practically every social occasion these days imposes a special duty on all of us who use it to drink moderately and not to drink if we intend to take control of a motor vehicle, which has been likened by the courts to a lethal weapon. — G. C. B. Baillie, President, B.C. Safety Council.

Gays stage demonstration outside Bryant performance in New Orleans

Anita Should Quit With a Key Victory

By WILLIAM SAFIRE
New York Times

Militant leaders of the gay rights "movement" cannot minimize the defeat they suffered at the polls in Miami.

The gays wanted national publicity on this and got it; they wanted a big turnout at the polls and got it. As a result, Dade County, — ordinarily the most liberal bastion in Florida — voted over two to one against the gays in favor of Anita Bryant's "crusade" against sexual permissiveness.

Homosexuals framed the issue as civil rights versus outright bigotry. The overwhelming majority did not see it that way at all.

Nor was the majority vote a demonstration of redneck power, or machomania, or the unreasoning fear of child molestation by hated "queers," or a wave of fundamentalist morality — although a little of all of those appeared.

Most of the voters framed the issue, as I did, between tacit toleration and outright approval of homosexuality. Most Americans are inclined to let consenting adults do what they like, short of injury, in private, but the gay activists wanted more: the basic "right" they sought was the assertion by society that what they were doing was right.

But they are wrong. In the eyes of the vast majority, homosexuality is an abnormality, a mental illness, even — to use an old fashioned word — a sin. Hmosexuality is not the "alternative lifestyle" the gay activists profess; it may be tolerable, even acceptable — but not approvable.

This don't-ask-for-respectability judgment is not limited to homosexuality. Adultery is gleefully if guiltily practiced by — who knows? — perhaps a majority of married persons, but if an approving statute were proposed by Activist Adults for Adultery, voters on their way home from trysts would vote it down overwhelmingly.

Hypocrisy? No, civilization — the understanding that certain moral standards are worth recognizing and perhaps even striving for, even in the knowledge that most people, one time or another, fall short.

Gay activists want more than this: they want the seal on their housekeeping to say "good." That is a moral judgment they have the right to make but not to insist upon from the rest of society which has the right to make its own contrary judgment and to persuade its children of its value.

Part of that persuasion by society takes place in school. Many of us think that gays should be permitted to teach, provided they do not avow their homosexuality. Gay activists counter by asking: "Why lie to the children?" One reason is so that private homosexuals can have jobs. If avowed gays were to be teachers, the example they would set to children might well induce some toward emulation of their abnormality, which society wants to discourage.

But the gay militants did not want privacy, they wanted publicity; not content with toleration, they wanted approval. And so the voters reacted the way most of them do when war resisters refuse pardons until the U.S. government admits it was wrong — by digging in heels.

The trouble with Miss Bryant's victory is that she now intends to treat the Miami landslide as a licence to launch a vast national crusade. That means that the ringing answer given to the activists' demand for moral legitimacy might lash back into an invasion of their legitimate civil rights.

No bluenose moralizer should have the power to tell consenting adults of the same sex they cannot live together in public housing. Gays pay taxes; if they want to love each other, society should get away from the keyhole; if they want to profess their love, that's their free speech. As long as "straights" are not forced to underwrite a homosexual sales message in the classroom, the straights have no right to penalize private citizens for their personal behavior.

Let Miss Bryant and her own militant crusaders not misinterpret their victory. No mandate has been given to put the gays on the run, or to repress their right of free expression. She has turned back a danger posed by wrong-headed gay activists, and deserves credit for that; she does not deserve to be the matriarch of a new movement that would pose a new danger to those homosexuals who want only to be let alone.

That new danger would be the justification of the issue as the gay activists originally (and wrongly) framed it: civil rights versus bigotry. If Miss Bryant's nationalized crusade were to take on the trappings of a political party (here comes the federal funding), and if private homosexuals were intimidated to pay for gay militants demands, martydom would be theirs, and libertarians would be forced to their defense.

So ease up, Anita Bryant. you were given no vote of confidence, not a flaming sword. Most people do not want to be pushed too hard in either direction. A significant part of your support was resistance to gay extremism, and is ready to switch to resist any manifestation of extremism on the part of the straights.

Clark Plan Might Work

THE PROVINCE
An Editorial

While the federal government waffles about how and when to end wage and price controls and the B.C. government talks about introducing an impossible program of its own for when the controls are removed, Conservative leader Joe Clark comes up with what seems to be an eminently workable alternative.

His plan has one outstanding advantage over all other suggestions — it's simple, concrete and ready.

In the year following the end of controls he would have the cabinet act as a watch-dog with teeth enough to bite if necessary. The cabinet would have power to disallow excessive price or wage increases. Corporate revenues would be monitored to make sure they weren't excessive and companies would have to give the cabinet 30 days' notice of price increases so their impact on the economy could be assessed.

Very sensible. In contrast, the federal government is wasting its time waiting for a commitment from labor and management to practise restraint in a post-control period. Neither can make that commitment in the binding form Ottawa apparently wants. The central organizations representing labor and management are constitutionally incapable of committing their members and it's doubtful if such commitments could ever be legally binding anyway.

Scheme Foolish

The B.C. government's plan to keep some form of price control on after the federal guidelines are gone is so patently ridiculous that it's hardly worth bothering about. Suffice it to say that in a province which exports so much of its production from primary resources and which imports so many of its finished goods from elsewhere in Canada and around the world, there is simply no way in which a provincial agency can control prices. Our prices are set by circumstances beyond provincial control.

If B.C. tries to go it alone, the provincial economy could be the victim. What B.C. needs now is capital investment to get our industry going again and provide work for the 10 per cent unemployed. That investment wouldn't come to a B.C., with controls if there were opportunities elsewhere without controls.

The Clark plan seems practical. It recognizes, as all Canadians should, that we can't go back to the old days before the controls were introduced. The economy simply can't be allowed to run its own course again for fear that it might become overheated and create the conditions for a return to inflation.

Distort Economy

But, as Mr. Clark says, the rigid controls operated by the Anti-Inflation Board have been distorting the market economy under which Canada operates. Industry is unable to make the long-range investment and expansion decision that need to be made. The answer is a system that will permit enough flexibility for those decisions to be made, while at the same time "supervising" the economy enough to prevent a return to debilitating inflation.

The Clark plan would be unlikely to run into any stiff opposition from either labor or management. There is growing evidence that the ordinary working man, whether in a union or not, is ready to take more moderate wage increases. The controls program has given him a breathing spell to assess his position and generally he seems to realize that he can't go on expecting the double digit wage raises he was getting before controls. Canada's heavy unemployment, particularly among young people, is persuading him that the country needs to be more competitive.

The most important aspect of a post-control system would be to make sure that patterns are not set by individual unions or corporations that might set off another inflation race. The monitoring system proposed by Mr. Clark might just fill the bill.

New IDA Chairman To Stress Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — W. R. Wyman of Vancouver, new chairman of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, says that the importance of corporate profits must be stressed to both labor and government.

Wyman said in an interview that it is in labor's own interest to have a strongly profitable private sector, not only because this is essential to the growth of employee pension funds, but also because it is difficult to get blood from a stone.

"Higher wages and other benefits for workers can only come from healthy corporate profits," he said. "The trouble is that hardly anyone has been speaking up to contradict the widely-publicized statements by politicians and others that profits are a bad thing."

Wyman said that during his term of office he will seek to develop a closer working relationship between Canada's stock exchanges and the IDA.

"I believe we should be presenting our views to the governmental regulatory agencies as a joint industry body, rather than as separate entities," Wyman said.

BONDS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in quiet trading on the Canadian bond market Wednesday. The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid-, long-term, provincial and corporate issues gained one-eighth of a point. Day-to-day money was available at 7¼ per cent.

DIVIDENDS

Automotive Hardware Ltd., class A, 20 cents; class B, 17 cents; both payable July 15; record June 30; xd June 28.

CAE Industries Ltd., class A, 29 cents; class B, 24.65 cents; both payable July 29; record July 15; xd July 13.

Banister

Banister Continental Ltd. recorded a net income of $5.272 million for the year ending March 31, $665,000 less than in the 1976 fiscal year, the company has announced.

Net earnings were $1.31 a share in 1977, down from $1.47 a share the previous year.

The reduction in net income occurred mainly in the fourth quarter of the 1977 fiscal year, when earnings totalled $563,000 or 14 cents a share. In the last three months of the previous year, Banister reported $2.725 million, or 68 cents a share, in net earnings.

Banister attributed the decrease in net income in the fourth quarter to the unseasonably mild winter in Alberta, which forced the company to use more costly methods in pipeline construction over muskeg areas.

There was also significant reduction in contract volume in the Banister's foreign operations, according to a company news release.

Seagram

The Seagram Co. Ltd. has reported record net income, sales and operating income for the nine months ended April 30.

Net income for the period reached $65,738,000 or $1.87 a share, a 6.5 per cent increase compared with $54,549,000 or $1.56 a share in 1976.

Sales amounted to $1,677,188,000 in the first nine months, compared with $1,566,858,000 in 1976 while operating income increased 11.3 per cent to $153,967,000 in the first nine months of 1977.

Net income reached $18,654,000 or 53 cents a share, for the three months ended April 30, compared with $20,973,000 or 60 cents a share in 1976.

The company attributed improved results to a strong worldwide demand for Chivas Regal scotch and higher earnings from oil and gas operations but added that declines in profitability in Latin America partially offset gains.

Pace

Pace Industries Ltd. has reported net earnings of $133,982 for 1976, or 14 cents a share, compared with net earnings of $265,710 or 22 cents a share in 1976.

Sales in 1976 totalled $3,441,139, of which $554,113 represented continuing operations and $2,887,026 came from operations that have since been discontinued. In 1975 sales were $12,297,242, of which $4,007,780 were from Canadian operations and the balance from discontinued activities in the United States.

The company sold its wholly owned subsidiary, Pace Services Ltd., to Eze Brew Coffee Service (Northern) Ltd. in March this year.

Robin Hood

Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. has reported net earnings for the year ended Feb. 28, 1977, were $5,290,000 after sales of $226,015,000, compared with earnings of $5,388,000 after sales of $217,784,000 in the previous year.

President Logan Brown said the company saw record production and export sale due to a strong world demand for flour this year despite a fire in the company's Port Colborne, Ont., flour mill last spring and a strike by mill workers in Montreal.

Standard

Standard Industries of Toronto is considering the acquisitions of two companies in the northern and central United States, shareholders were told at their annual meeting.

The U.S. companies have between $30 million and $40 million in annual sales and are well established in one of Standard's existing lines of years."

Hugh Grightmire, chairman of the company, said Standard is interested in investing in the U.S. because "the climate for investment in Canada seems less favorable now than it has been for many years."

Grightmire said that despite "intense research work done by our development department, we have been unable to find any desirable outlets for expansion and diversification within Ontario which could live through the delays and red tape of the Foreign Investment Review Agency."

Standard is classified as a foreign-controlled company under the federal government's screening legislation for investment from outside Canada.

Grightmire said he expected that profit for the company's first final quarter ending June 30 will be a little better than the record 38 cents a share earned in the comparable period a year ago.

The company produces sand and gravel, asphalt mixes, ready-mix concrete, concrete pipe and other concrete products and is a paving and road-building contractor.

"I've got it made."

That's exactly what Gloria Eckmann said when she was asked how she liked her life at Port Ludlow.

Gloria & Dean Eckmann found Port Ludlow quite by accident. Dean was caught out on Hood Canal with his two children in an open boat. He hadn't planned on spending the night on the Canal but it soon became obvious that he had no choice. In the gathering darkness, he followed a tugboat into a beautiful, protected harbor and found warm hospitality, a delicious meal and lodging for the night.

It was Port Ludlow. And three years later, they packed up and left Portland, Oregon to build their home there.

Dean & Gloria like Port Ludlow not only for its peace, quiet and natural beauty but for its people and its friendships. They live at Port Ludlow and love it.

Come to Port Ludlow to live. We have an excellent selection of properties (with complete utilities) wooded, waterview and golf course. Also condominiums and homes. Become a part of the life at Port Ludlow. We have it all.

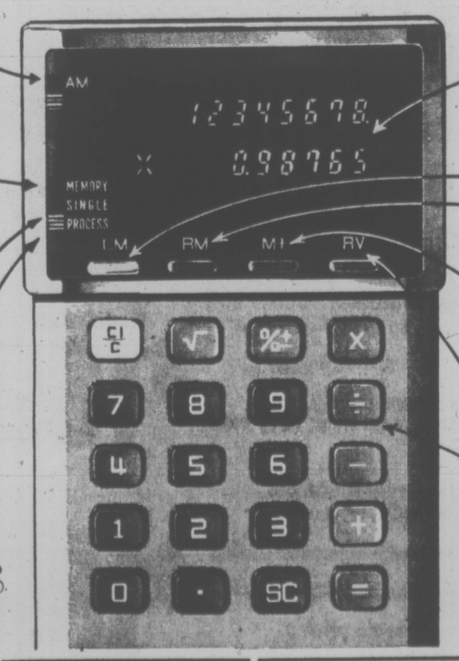
DOUBLE HEADER.

New! The Canon Multi 8 Twin Display. Shows where you've been, where you're going and the result.



Accumulation switch
With this you can select either the automatically accumulating memory (press the = key and the result is fed directly into the memory) or the fully addressable memory (you decide what is entered).

Memory mode
With the selection switch in "Memory Mode" position, the upper display will show the memory content, the lower display the calculation you are doing. That way you always keep track of what's in the memory.

Single mode
Here, there is only a lower display and it may be used as a conventional calculator.

Process mode
In this position, you again get two displays that show the calculation being performed. For instance, in adding 123 to 456, the 123 is automatically shown in the upper display while the "+" sign and 456 are shown on the lower — just as you would do it on paper. Press the "=" key and you get the result!

Two displays
For the first time, here is a hand-held calculator with two displays for easier, simpler calculations, with or without the memory. The two displays take the uncertainty out of electronic calculations by letting you see just what's going on.

Clear memory

Recall memory
When being used in "Single" or "Process" mode, this will recall and display the hidden contents of the memory.

Memory plus
Use this key to feed numerals directly into the memory. By using this in the "Memory" mode you can even add up two columns of figures simultaneously!

Reverse
This will interchange the number being displayed with the last entry. Perfect for correcting mistaken entries.

Keyboard

$34.95 or less with case (batteries extra).

Student Fed Raps Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Students' Federation Tuesday issued an appeal to students not to take jobs at the strike-bound Hotel Vancouver.

In a letter to all post-secondary campuses on the Lower Mainland, the federation condemned the "scab hiring practices" of the hotel management and asked students to recognize and respect the rights of the strikers.

The federation said it also plans to distribute informational leaflets at as many Canada Manpower student placement centres as possible.

Manpower has been referring unemployed students to the hotel for jobs, a practice condemned by the British Columbia Federation of Labor as strike-breaking.

The hotel's 475 permanent staff, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, have been on strike against the hotel since June 9 in an effort to win a pay increase.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Federation of Labor said another mass demonstration will take place outside the hotel on Thursday. More than 500 supporters joined the strikers' picket line June 14 in a noon-hour show of support.

Watchdog 'Not Needed'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most of the professionals who would fall under the jurisdiction of British Columbia's proposed ombudsman said Tuesday a new government watchdog isn't needed.

"You could say in most instances it will probably be a waste of time, because we think we already do our discipline well," said Victor McCallum, secretary of the Law Society of B.C.

Under legislation introduced Monday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom, the ombudsman would have the power to investigate ministries, government corporations and professions or occupations governed by a provincial act.

"I can hardly see anything he could do unless a person has gone all the way up the system and still feels he has been wrongly dealth with," said Cliff Adkins, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

McCallum said the ombudsman might prove valuable by assuring the public that the professions are regulating themselves well.

"If it satisfies the public that we are doing our job, that's the price we have to pay."

Jack Campbell, chairman of the Greater Vancouver Regional District, which would also fall under the ombudsman powers, said he could think of no useful way an ombudsman could contribute to the board's work.

An ombudsman should not accept complaints until every other avenue of appeal has been exhausted, said Campbell, adding that if he allows his office to be used as a channel for zoning appeals, he will find himself flooded with complaints.

Dr. William McClure, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C., said the ombudsman will find his activities restricted in dealing with complaints about doctors.

"I can't see where an ombudsman can interfere in a case which has a legal statute covering the procedure.

"All I can see that he would do is inspect the procedure and satisfy himself that there is no miscarriage of justice or maladministration of the act."

LUSCIOUS CROP of strawberries has ripened to perfection in the continuous sunshine favoring B.C. recently. Here, Adriana Zylmans samples some of the crop on her father's 15-acre strawberry farm in Richmond. The fine weather is ripening the berries so rapidly the growers are complaining about the shortage of pickers.

Reporters Given Awards

VANCOUVER (CP) — News stories which focussed on social conflict in two interior British Columbia communities won the top awards in MacMillan Bloedel's 19th annual competition for journalists on daily newspapers in B.C.

Tony Eberts of the Province won the $500 first prize in the over-25,000 circulation for his story on the plight of elderly residents in the South Okanagan community of Hedley, who were being harassed by young thugs. His story prompted federal, provincial and local authorities to take action to remedy the situation.

Ashley Ford of the Province won the $250 runner-up award for his story on the political and economic situation in Israel.

Eli Sopow of Prince George Citizen won first prize of $500 in the under-25,000 circulation category for his coverage of a racially explosive incident in August in which a Stoney Creek Indian woman was fatally struck by a truck near Vanderhoof.

Sopow also received $100 honorable mention for a story on a small northern community about to lose its railway station.

Mark Hamilton, now editor of the weekly Maple Ridge Gazette, won the $250 second prize for a three-part series on RCMP crime prevention published in the Alberni Valley Times.

Cancer Ray Near Tests At University of B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A radiation treatment being perfected at University of British Columbia, which may destroy deep-seated cancer tumors, will be tested on people next summer, project director Dr. Lloyd Skarsgard said Tuesday.

Dr. Skarsgard heads a team of scientists at the Batho Biomedical Facility, a project funded by the B.C. Cancer Foundation and the federal government.

The technique uses pi mesons or "pions" produced by the campus's Triumf particle accelerator, particles which normally hold together an atom's neutrons and protons, instead of the photons from gamma and x-rays used in conventional treatments.

Dr. Skarsgard told about 75 people at the foundation's annual meeting he expects to experiment with pion beams at full intensity in January, using mice and pigs.

He explained that when a pion enters tissue it slows down and is captured by an atom nucleus, causing it to explode and destroy cancerous cells.

Unlike cobalt 60 treatments, where the maximum dosage occurs one-half centimetre below the skin surface, he said, pion beams can be focused to treat deep tumors.

"In this sense it's analagous to a depth charge," Dr. Skarsgard said. "So if you arrange for the maximum dosage to be located where the tumor is you will have a much more effective treatment."

He said preliminary tests show that at high dosages, pion beams can destroy 99 per cent of the cells in a selected area.

The foundation's annual report stated that total bequests and donations made in 1976 totalled $416,679, with an additional $29,959 donated for specific purposes.

Clients Sue Lawyers, Win

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damages totalling $118,813 were awarded Wednesday against two lawyers in what Mr. Justice William A. Schultz termed a scandalous breach of trust reflecting on the legal profession of British Columbia.

The B.C. Supreme Court justice awarded the damages to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Patchett after they lost their life savings in a 1972 plan proposed by one of the lawyers by which they were to take part in a new company set up to buy and sell mortgages offering 18 per cent interest.

The award was against M. Daniel Oliver and George Herbert Shepherd.

The Patchetts sued Oliver, as promoter of the plan, for an aggregate sum of $70,000 and his partner, Shepherd, for equal responsibility under a B.C. Act that can make business partners liable for each other's wrongdoings.

Mr. Justice Schultz awarded $65,000 damages jointly against Oliver and Shepherd and $55,813 interest against Oliver, based on the promised 18 per cent from 1972 until Wednesday.

The judge found that Oliver misappropriated and converted the $70,000 which the Patchetts had turned over to him in trust for use by a firm — Acorn Developments Ltd. — which Oliver created for the purpose of going into the mortgage field.

Shepherd said during the trial that though Oliver was his partner he had no knowledge of what Oliver was doing with the money turned over to Oliver in trust by the Patchetts.

Mr. Justice Schultz ruled that the Partnership Act of B.C. applied to Shepherd and made him liable for the $65,000.

He said that in handling the plaintiffs' money in connection with their mortgage company, Oliver at times indulged in a practice of "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

"The description of how the plaintiffs lost their life savings of $65,000 by paying this to the firm in trust is a scandalous story of breach of trust by the miscreant Oliver," he said.

'DROP VANDER ZALM'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Downtown Eastside Residents Association has asked Premier Bill Bennett to replace the present human resources minister "with someone with compassion, sympathy, empathy and political common sense."

A letter sent to the premier by DERA's Bruce Eriksen said Bill Vander Zalm showed an "Archie Bunker attitude" towards the poor at his meeting Monday with supporters of higher welfare rates.

Eriksen said Vander Zalm seems more interested in making political mileage by pandering to bigotry rather than dealing with his ministerial responsibilities.

The DERA spokesman said Vander Zalm should be replaced or instructed "to re-evaluate his Archie Bunker attitude to those in need of the help meant to be supplied by his ministry."

$60,000 to Attend Inquiry

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Nishga tribal council and the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs will receive $60,000 to finance their participation in the west coast oil ports inquiry, commissioner Andrew Thompson announced Wednesday.

The inquiry is an investigation of tanker movements on the west coast that was renamed and expanded by the federal government after Kitimat Pipeline Ltd. suspended its national energy board application to build a tanker terminal at Kitimat, the terminus of its proposed pipeline to Edmonton.

Thompson said in a news release that an additional $40,000 will be made available for the development of evidence concerning the dependency of native people on food from sea and river systems.

The council will receive $25,000 in direct funding and the union of chiefs will receive $35,000.

The union also will co-ordinate a study of various river systems in the province to be paid for with a $15,000 contract financed by the inquiry.

Thompson said the $100,000 being made available to native organizations is part of the total of $380,000 in funding previously announced to aid environmentalists, fishermen and other groups.

The commissioner said "the level of funding available will not permit all applications to be satisfied."

RUNAWAY CAR CHARGES LAID

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edith Wildman, 39, of Vancouver was charged Wednesday with five counts of criminal negligence following an incident in the city's west end Friday in which a car went out of control and struck several pedestrians, killing one man.

Wilfred Higgins, 69, of Toronto died in hospital this week of injuries received when he was struck by the runaway car which came to a halt when it slammed into the side of a restaurant.

Fair Industry Taxes Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said Wednesday that Canada's primary industries must be taxed on an equitable basis which should not exceed 50 per cent.

Phillips also told an investment seminar there is no point in reducing these taxes unless labor is prepared to contribute to the system.

He said labor has the biggest stake in the economy of all groups because the pension plans and future security of the working people are tied up in the economy.

If the provincial government does not pick up its fair share of taxes there will be a tendency for labor to step in and pick them up, Phillips said. These higher demands will touch off another round of wage increases throughout the province.

He said investor confidence will never be restored until the incentive to make and keep profits is put back into industry and that governments, business and labor must make the system work.

Ross Duthie, president of Placer Development Ltd., told the seminar that the outlook for metals is an important factor as to why the industry has entered the energy sector of the economy.

He said Placer's current income is down because of depressed copper and zinc markets, although molybdenum markets are good and mercury in a better position than it has been.

CABINET MINISTERS RETURN TO HOUSE

Criticism of the Social Credit government Tuesday for failing to compel cabinet ministers to attend question period apparently bore fruit Wednesday, as only two minister were absent from the 20-minute period.

Gary Lauk (Vancouver Centre) and Alex Macdonald (Vancouver East) criticised the government because at least five cabinet minister were absent every day since the session resumed last week.

Noting that only Finance Minister Evan Wolfe and Health Minister Bob McClelland were absent Wednesday, Lauk congratulated the government for the better turnout.

BCR Rates High From Mackenzie

MACKENZIE (CP) — B.C. Forest Products Ltd. told the B.C. Railway inquiry Wednesday that freight rates from this community 80 miles north of Prince George are too high.

In a brief to the commission investigating the railway's affairs, the company said it is concerned about high shipping rates from its Mackenzie mill and the extra cost to the company when B.C. Rail service is interrupted.

Richard Drake, BCFP general manager wood products division, said it cost the company $2.3 million to ship products in 1976 when the railway was shut down by labor disputes.

His company shipped 27 million board feet of lumber and 27,000 tons of pulp by truck to Prince George and Dawson Creek during the dispute, Drake said.

A mill in Prince Rupert shipping to New York would pay the same rate as a Prince George mill and 14 cents a hundredweight less than a Mackenzie mill closer to the market, Drake said.

The hearing continues.

Truck Firms Seek AIB Profit Hearing

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Freightways Ltd. is seeking a hearing before the Anti-Inflation Board to resolve its $2.4-million profit feud with the federal agency, it was announced Tuesday.

Len Huyser, president of the Calgary-based trucking company, said the company's board of directors agreed Monday to examine all alternatives in the interests of its empolyees and client shippers in complying with a board directive issued last week.

The board gave the company until June 26 to indicate if it would roll back its rates or give customer rebates to siphon off $2.4-million in "excess profits" compiled during the first 15 months of the board's controls.

"We want an opportunity to present our side of the story to the board," Huyser said.

"To date the only people we have talked to are the case officers. We owe it to our employees and clients to examine all alternatives."

Huyser said the alternative of laying off 600 employees in a six-month shut down by the trucking industry leader in Alberta and British Columbia is still open but that would be the company's last option.

He said its preference is still to pay the government the $2.4 million then challenge the decision in the courts.

No Gas Tax for Transit

Transport and Energy Minister Jack Davis told Conservative leader Scott Wallace Wednesday there will be no gasoline tax increases to subsidize public transportation.

Wallace's question in the legislature came after Davis proposed in a speech in Vancouver Tuesday that a special tax on energy in major population centres be imposed to finance public transportation.

The minister told the annual meeting of the Canadian Urban Transit Association that public transit must be made to appear economically attractive to the public or it will not be used sufficiently.

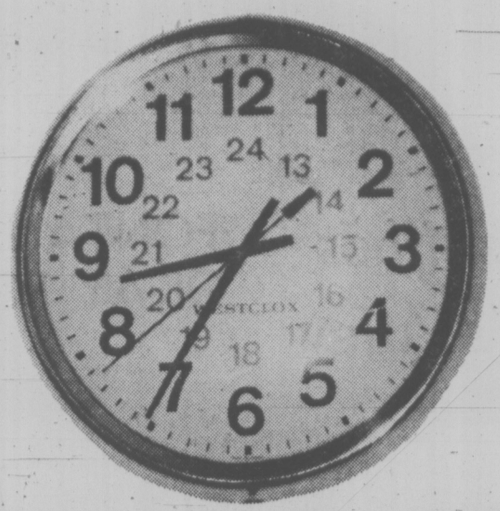
MINI-WEEK



But There's No Cheering From the Union Diehards Who Remember the Fight To Get the 8-Hour Day

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Sandra Goddard is a nurse at Victoria General Hospital and one of a steadily growing number of B.C. workers breaking out of the standard work week straitjacket.

For the past six years she has worked at the hospital and for nearly three of those she has been nursing in the intensive care unit on a modified work week.

This means she works mostly a four-day week, 12-hour day as opposed to the old system of 7½-hour shifts six or seven days a week.

"I don't know how I did it," the 30-year-old nurse says of the old system during a meeting with nurses who work the compressed work week.

All jokingly agree there would be mass resignations if the hospital ever opted out of the new arrangement and returned to the old system of three shifts a day instead of two.

Goddard says she would go to part-time work if the hospital switched back.

There is no more actual time off she explains, as the work week, averaged over nine weeks, still amounts to 37.5 hours, but there are more days off in a row.

Of the 400 registered nurses in the hospital, about 170 work the 12-hour shifts and they say the arrangement has improved patient care as well as added something positive to their private lives.

One nurse on a long-term care ward says as a result of the new shifts and the longer time spent with the patients, there has been a reduction in the amount of medication handed out.

The nurses say there is now an opportunity to get involved in the community, spend more time with the family, or take upgrading education courses.

EDGETT
. . . continuing trend

As a group, nurses in B.C. appear to be taking advantage of the modified work week more than others. The trend is hotly opposed by dyed-in-the-wool trade unionists.

Royal Jubilee Hospital jumped on the bandwagon abut a year ago and now has about 50 nurses working the longer hours in the intensive care, open-heart and pediatric units.

Woodward Stores employees this week went counter to the trend and voted down a proposal to allow them to work four 8¾-hour days.

A company spokesman attributed the rejection to the hardship the longer hours would have on working mothers and the fact the proposed system would require part-time workers to work four hours with no coffee breaks.

In 1975 the B.C. department of labor released the results of a survey which showed that from the time such work weeks began in the early 1970s, until Jan. 15, 1975, 259 companies had been given approval for the compressed work week.

The information is available in the minutes of B.C. Board of Industrial Relations meetings. The board has to approve any arrangement where employees work more than eight hours a day.

The application for such a change has to be made jointly by employer and employees.

An examination of board minutes from Jan. 15, 1975, until the end of last month, shows there were 274 approvals given in that period.

However, there is no indication from the minutes how many employees were involved nor whether, after gaining approval, the companies adopted the longer hours and then reverted back.

The most popular arrangement is the four-day week, 10-hour day, with 58 companies adopting that system. The three-day, 36-hour week is also popular and there are a variety of other choices.

Jim Edgett, vice-chairman of the board of industrial relations, said the most that can be gleaned from the recent figures is that the trend is continuing steadily.

There has been no wild-fire adoption of the system, nor has it been kissed off as a bad experiment he said.

Edgett says the majority of companies that apply for the modified work week are small and mostly non-union.

He said the trade unions take a hard-line opposition to the extended hours because they fought so hard for the eight-hour day, 40-hour week.

Edgett said he feels there will continue to be an erosion of the standard 7½ to eight-hour day.

"I think people want their leisure time," he said, "They want extra time off."

Employers seem to like it because it improves the shifting and allows for better use of equipment and increased plant production.

Edgett said before the board approves such applications, it must be assured that working the longer hours is not going to be harmful to the health of the employees or result in unsafe working conditions.

The nurses at VGH said the longer hours did not result in poorer treatment for patients or a lack of care in such crucial places as coronoary units or intensive care areas.

Goddard said in the intensive care unit, the longer hours mean the patients get to know the nurses better and feel more secure in their treatment.

There is also better continuity of treatment, an effect which was backed up by Kathy Szadkowski, a nurse in the pediatrics department.

Holly Goldsmith, head nurse of VGH's emergency department, said the new system results in more stable staffing during the peak periods.

The nurses have more time for patient care and can get to know both the patient and the doctor, she added.

As far as the nurses are concerned, she said, when they come to work they are more dedicated because they know the job is going to take up all their time for the next three or four days.

"They are not trying to juggle their private life with work life," she said. "There's no time for partying."

Eaton's in Victoria is another company which has adopted the compressed work week for about 15 drivers at the warehouse at Royal Oak.

Jack Noble, the company's operations manager, said the company feels it gets good coverage with the system and employees "would be mad at me if I took them off it."

He said the employer initiated the move more than a year ago "in order to make economies and give a better deal."

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt policemen are also on the four-day week and a spokesman for the Saanich force said the system is working fine.

Public service employees have also won approval to work the extended hours but a union spokesman said there is no breakdown as to exactly how many are on the system.

Marg Arthur, a staff representative for the B.C. Government Employees Union, said there are between 2,000 and 3,000 employees working the longer hours or on a flexible hour system.

□

The so-called flex-time system allows employees to alter starting and quitting times as long as they work a set number of hours per week.

Arthur said many of the professional employees have been on the flex-time schedules for some time.

"I think the thing the employees enjoy most is the freedom to do their work and set their own hours," she said.

She said they would resent going back to the old system of set hours or longer work weeks.

The system is good for the employer, she said because it cuts down on overtime. She said more employees will be put on modified work weeks and the results monitored, something that hasn't been done to date.

Included in that group will be employees at the Provincial Archives in Victoria, who will switch over sometime this month.

There were only about three organizations from January, 1975, to the present which opted for the flex-time arrangement. One of these is the Vancouver Resources Board which has about 800 of 1,200 workers on the system.

However they started with a four-day work week but last month shifted to a nine-day fortnight because it seemed to be a better method of providing continual service.

U.S. civil service figures reveal that 50 per cent of the West German white collar work force has some say in the arrangement of its working hours, while 30 per cent of the French labor force and 40 per cent of all Swiss workers are on some form of flex-time.

The British government recently approved variable hours for half a million civil servants. Surveys estimate that more than nine million workers in 10 countries have some control over their job hours.

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labour Council, expresses the trade unions' opposition to the longer hours.

He refers to the blood, sweat and tears which went into bringing about the eight-hour day at the turn of the century, as well as the labor dictum:

"We require eight hours for our work, eight hours for our own instruction, eight hours for our repose."

Ryan said he worked long hours on the automobile assembly lines and knows "the limitations of the human machine."

As far as the nurses are concerned, Ryan points out that he was a member of the VGH board of directors when the longer hours were brought in and he was opposed to them.

He said the new system appears geared more to the nurses than to the patients.

He points out an article in the United Mine Workers Journal which says the five-day week is only a vague memory at many mines with most workers putting in six or seven days a week.

It was on April 1, 1898, that the mine workers' union won its first eight-hour day and now the workers appear to be reverting to the long working days as a result of the amount of overtime put in.

The union is questioning the effects of the overtime on health and safety.

Ryan suggests there be a ban on overtime as a means of putting more people to work and easing the country's unemployment problem.

Patients feel more secure, says nurse Sandra Goddard

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Home owners in outlying parts of the Capital district are learning they may be eligible for government-insured lower cost mortgages and it's giving the regional board a staff problem.

How the region is obliquelvolved in the mortgage business was explained Wednesday to the board by executive director Dennis Young.

In past years it has been the policy of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to restrict insured National Housing Act mortgages to houses on sewer systems. Last year the rules were changed to permit the cheaper mortgages on existing and new houses outside sewered areas.

But there are two conditions. First, the regional board must designate which areas it considers suitable and it has already done this for all electoral areas in the Capital district.

The staffing problem has arisen with the second condition. Before a homeowner or builder can apply for an NHA-insured mortgage, he or she must get a certificate from the regional board indicating that an inspection shows the septic tank system is working satisfactorily.

There's been an upswing of building in electoral areas, Young said, but he's been told it's just beginning and there will be a flood of applications for such certificates once word of the chance for cheaper mortgages gets around.

The region simply doesn't have the health inspecting staff to do more and has no money budgeted to hire more.

Young proposed the board designate only outlying areas where soil conditions indicate there's little chance for septic tank problems.

But directors, striving not to cut anybody off from a chance for an NHA mortgage, adopted another of his proposals instead. The board will ask the provincial health ministry for authority to charge for the certificates. That could produce the money needed for more inspection staff.

In other business:

The board will ask the Pollution Control Branch for permission to build a 600-foot outfall at McMicking Point, with communitor and diffuser, as a pilot project and compromise solution to a new trunk and pumping station at Shoal Bay, hotly opposed by neighbors.

The plan also calls for water quality monitoring before and for a year after construction. If the short outfall proves inadequate in dispersing sewage, the regional board is committed to a further two-stage program for diverting McMicking outfall sewage to a long outfall being built at Clover Point.

Directors gave three readings to a bylaw authoring borrowing up to $1.1 million to buy pipe and materials for a main water line up the Saanich Peninsula. The bylaw now goes to the provincial government for approval.

The board gave its blessing to Environment Canada's plan for a 40-acre specialized industrial park alongside the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Pat Bay, provided North Saanich council also approves.

The so-called marine technology centre is intended to be a place for companies working in fields related to the institute to locate.

9 MONTHS JAIL IN TRAFFIC DEATH

A 20-year-old driver whose truck caused the death of a woman on Sooke Road a year ago was sentenced in county court today to nine months definite and nine months indefinite in jail.

Kenneth Douglas Filgate of 7142 Grant was found guilty in May of criminal negligence in the death of Karina Flock, who was driving a car in the opposite direction in the 5300-block Sooke Road May 28, 1976.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart said every judge is troubled by the duty of sentencing a young man, "but my duty to society is much greater than to the individual involved."

He said he could not overlook the fact that Filgate's driving caused the "death of an innocent lady travelling on our highway," and the accused had a driving record.

CP Deal's Covenants 'Chintzy'

Victoria city council was expected to authorize today the purchase of property at the corner of Humboldt and Douglas from Canadian Pacific Hotels Ltd. for $550,001.

But at least one council member, Ald. Ron McKenzie, said he intended to oppose the motion presented at this afternoon's council meeting.

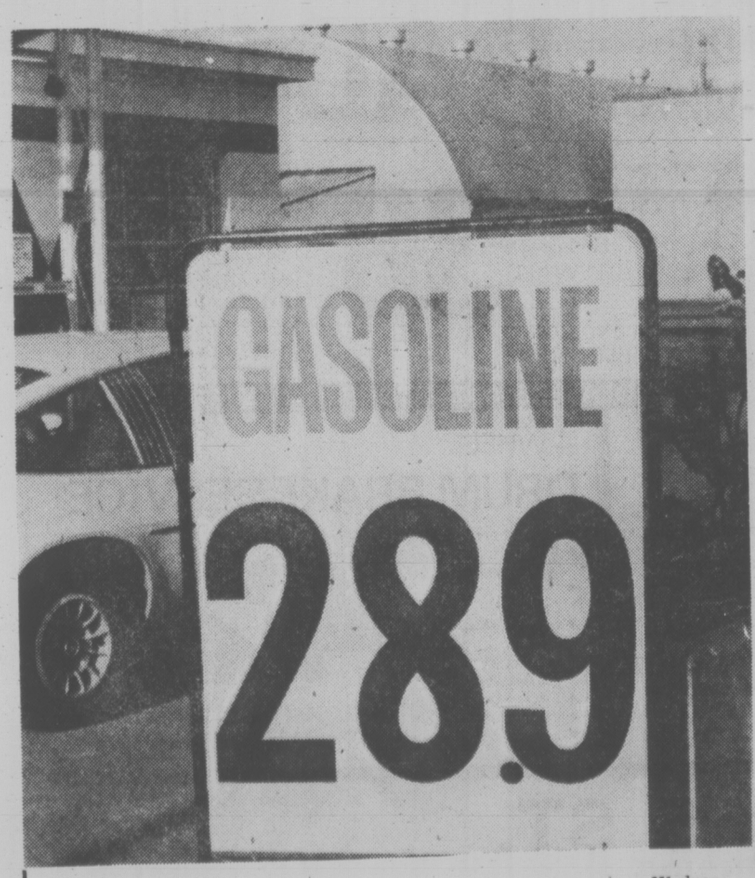
McKenzie said he has several reservations about the deal, including the protective covenants it would grant to CP Hotels, the fact that the purchase would deplete the city's tax sale land account, and the lack of any firm plan on what to do with the property.

Under the proposed covenants, no hotel could be built on the site for 15 years or as long as CP Hotels owns the Empress, whichever is the sooner. The company would also have first right of refusal to operate a restaurant at that location.

Ald. Larry Ryan commented this morning that the restrictions are "chintzy", and "very typical of the CPR".

Mayor Mike Young admitted to reporters that they would hamper the city to some degree in its future plans for the property, but said the deal is still worthwhile because it will consolidate virtually the whole Humboldt - Belleville - Douglas-Blanshard block under public ownership.

In particular, he said, it will provide flexibility in the plans to restore the Crystal Garden property.



Traffic Stopper

Somebody was playing the numbers game Wednesday on Hillside Avenue, and at the same time caused no end of near rear-enders as motorists did double-takes. The sign outside the Pacific 66 station caused some excitement until changed back to the regular 82.9. (Bill Halkett photo).

Sex Charges Dismissed On Evidence

John Paterson, 64, of 226 Michigan, was found not guilty Wednesday in County Court after a trial on two charges of gross indecency and one of harboring a boy under 14.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart said he heard "evidence of a particularly revolting nature," and needed time since its conclusion several weeks ago to approach his decision dispassionately.

He noted that, because of the absence of some evidence he thought might have been produced, and the fact that some evidence was clearly prejudicial and had to be ignored, he was left with only the evidence of two boys, one of them still a young child in the legal sense.

They had described what had happened in the accused's dwelling place last Feb. 14, but evidence by the younger boy (13) needed corroboration by the older boy (14), whose evidence Stewart found unsatisfactory.

He described the older boy as "almost frightening" and on his way to becoming hardened.

"I have no doubt something was going on in this place that shouldn't have been going on, and probably of a criminal nature," Stewart said.

"But on this undependable evidence I'm . . . compelled to find you not guilty."

The judge said there were disturbing features in the evidence and some apparent gaps. There were people named who were not really identified and who did not appear as witness; a woman was mentioned but not named, he noted, and asked, "What kind of an establishment was this upstairs?"

Stewart said he could not really be sure of what happened in the accused's quarters.

Report Ordered

A psychiatric report was ordered for the second time when Ronald Gordon Widdifield, 31, appeared for sentence in county court Wednesday for rape and gross indecency.

Defence counsel David Lisson told Judge E. J. C. Stewart that requests by the defence for a psychiatiatric evaluation had been denied by a private physician and the Eric Martin Psychiatric Institute. The institute would not make such a report without a court order, he said.

Widdifield, who pleaded guilty to the charges involving a 25-year-old woman whom he held at gunpoint and tied up, had been adjourned from a previous court appearance to enable to psychiatric report to be considered in sentencing.

Stewart said he wondered "why, in our corrections system, the service is not available" although there is provision for it.

"It's a matter of resources," Lisson replied.

The judge said it would be in everyone's long-term interest to know the state of Widdifield's mental health but he indicated it would have little effect upon the sentence.

"Lisson said Widdifield's prospects for rehabilitation, public safety and severity of sentence were the factors that might be affected by psychiatric report.

"I don't see how a sentence of some severity is avoidable in this case," Stewart said. He noted the accused was 31, "a man apparently of normal behavior all of these years who suddenly turns into a dangerous sexual offender.

Vietnamese Aid Won't Come Soon

It will be a while yet before Vietnamese children see any money promised to them by the provincial government.

A new legislature committee set up to get $2.25 million in promised aid to Vietnamese children held its first meeting Wednesday but it was only a five-minute organizational meeting in which the committee voted Frank Calder (SC—Atlin) as chairman.

The legislature voted unanimously in 1973 to send the aid to Vietnam. A committee was in existence for two years but got lost in the shuffle of the 1975 election.

The issue resurfaced earlier this year when Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said she didn't see why the current government should honor the pledge since it wasn't enshrined in legislation by the previous NDP government.

Premier Bill Bennett later over-ruled her and the committee was set up.

Cowichan Inquiry Asked

Barbara Wallace (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) asked Wednesday that Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis launch an inquiry into possible conflict of interest in development of Cowichan Valley farmland.

Wallace told the legislature that when North Cowichan municipality asked the B.C. Land Commission to take 70 acres of farmland out of the agricultural reserve, the man who wrote the appeal was an officer of a company interested in developing the land.

She said lawyer David Williams, former counsel for the municipality, was in a possible conflict-of-interest position.

Wallace said Williams was the secretary of Timbercrest Estates, the firm interested in developing the land, when he worked for the municipality.

Curtis took the request as notice indicating he will answer it later.

The land still remains in the freeze, but the freeze is being appealed to the cabinet, which is expected to make a decision the next two weeks.

Meanwhile, a small group from the Cowichan Region Farmland Defence League staged a demonstration at the legislature Wednesday and presented a brief to the cabinet in defence of the land remaining in the freeze.

House Routines Up Borge's Alley

World-famous musician Victor Borge must have picked up a few tips for his comedy of the absurd routines from the legislature on Wednesday.

Borge, introduced to the House at the start of the afternoon sitting, was treated to a half-hour nit-picking session as Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm attempted to introduce legislation abolishing the Vancouver Resources Board.

The normally-routine procedure which takes about 30 seconds was lengthened to a 30-minute fight as the NDP refused the necessary unanimous leave to introduce a bill.

The argument then digressed further into such areas as when a point of order is not a point of order or whether a statement made in the house by committee chairman Harvey Schroeder (SC — Chilliwack) was an attack on the chair or by the chair.

Vander Zalm's bill was finally introduced and he sat down to make way for Attorney-General Garde Gardom who introduced three bills in record time.

The third bill, the Execution Amendment Act, elicited an opposition comment: "Now you've gone too far."

FONTANA NAME OKAY FOR WINE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Canada has ruled that Calona Wines Ltd. of British Columbia may market a wine under the name Fontana Bianco.

The court overruled the registrar of trade marks who had said the name could not be registered because Fontana is primarily the name of individuals living or who have died within the last 30 years. The Trade Marks Act prohibits registration of a word that is primarily the name of an individual.

However, Mr. Justice Louis Marceau ruled that Fontana is not a common surname in Canada and that people buying the wine would not relate the label name to the surname of any individual. Fontana also is the name of several geographic locations in the world and it also may be a "fanciful word" selected by the company to convey the suggestion of a white fountain, he said.

Data Firms Rap Gov't Involvement

VANCOUVER (CP) — A telegram signed by 19 data processing companies says that the proposed formation of a Crown corporation to manage computer systems in British Columcia is inconsistent with the Social Credit government's free enterprise philosophy.

The telegram was sent Tuesday to Premier Bill Bennett and leaders of the three opposition parties.

Wilson Baker, president of Tetrad Computer Applications Ltd., said the companies who signed the telegram represent about 525 employees, about 70 per cent of the private sector in B.C.

Th telegram says the enabling legislation, if passed, would restrict private companies from providing services to the provincial government and would have a deleterious effect on the industry.

DENTAL VANS TO TRAVEL B.C.

Under a program run by the health ministry's dental services division, 12 graduates of three dental schools will spent the next 11 months travelling to remote areas of B.C.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said that using specially-equipped vans and trailers, they will offer a level of dental care comparable to that available in cities and towns.

He said the program will provide an excellent introduction to the practice of dentistry in the field and will benefit residents who must often travel long distances for dental work.

The dentists will charge patients directly for their services at a rate of 90 per cent of the fee schedule set by the B.C. College of Dental Surgeons.

The 12 graduates are from the University of B.C., McGill University and the University of Oregon.

INTRODUCING EUROPE'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW CAR IN HISTORY.

Fiesta with Decor Option Group.

INTRODUCING FIESTA. IMPORTED FROM GERMANY BY FORD.

The triumph of the new Fiesta in Europe since its introduction in Sept. 1976 is that it has surpassed even the most popular cars from VW, Renault and Fiat. Ford Fiesta, based on a comparison of sales in the first six months, outsold every new car nameplate ever introduced in Europe. Behind that remarkable success is a high level of performing excellence. The Fiesta is now available for the first time in Canada.

A CAR FOR CANADA

Fiesta's built in Germany and designed to handle tough European conditions such as the snows of the Alps and the cold of Scandinavia. With this kind of heritage, Canadian driving conditions will be nothing new for Fiesta.

FRONT WHEEL DRIVE TRACTION

Fiesta has the power and control of front wheel drive for superb traction–a fact you will quickly appreciate in conditions of snow, ice or mud. This, in addition to MacPherson Strut front suspension and Michelin X radial tires, gives the Fiesta a solid feeling of controlled action in the city or on the highway.

QUICK AND MANEUVERABLE

Fiesta was designed to respond quickly on high speed Autobahns. In Ford tests, Fiesta's 1.6 litre engine took it from 0-50 MPH in 8.8 seconds. And its front disc brakes brought Fiesta confidently from 50-0 MPH in 3.3 seconds. Excellent control in tight corners and sudden traffic maneuvers is provided by Fiesta's precise rack and pinion steering and fully synchronized 4-speed gear box. One test drive will show you how responsive and maneuverable this car really is.

SIMPLE, EASY SERVICING

Fiesta was engineered to be simple and easy to service. Owners will appreciate its highly accessible transverse mounted engine and see-through containers that allow "sight check" of battery, radiator, brakes and windshield-washer fluid levels. Professional service is readily available at more than 500 Ford and Mercury dealers conveniently located from coast to coast in Canada. That's substantially more than Volkswagen, Renault, Fiat or Honda offer.

NOTABLE STANDARD EQUIPMENT

- Three door body style
- 4 cylinder, 1.6 litre, transverse mounted engine
- 4 speed, fully synchronized, manual overdrive transmission
- Front wheel drive
- Rack and Pinion steering
- MacPherson Strut front suspension
- Front disc brakes
- Michelin X radial tires
- Rear window defroster
- Front bucket seats
- Carpeting

A SURPRISE INSIDE

With Fiesta there's a surprising amount of back seat room. Its unique 4-passenger design provides more back seat leg room than any imported or domestic car of its kind (sub-compacts under 100 inch wheel base). Fiesta has excellent luggage space in front of its rear hatch door. The door opens conveniently from floor to roof. The back seat also folds down to create additional load space. There's a hidden storage compartment beneath the rear load floor, for cameras and other valuables.

Fiesta with Ghia Option Group.

CORROSION PROTECTION

Resistance to corrosion was designed into Fiesta. It has its own particular corrosion protection program, and uses many of the same anti-corrosion processes that are built into Ford's North American cars...like vinyl sealer, wax spray, and a protective layer of vinyl under the paint along the lower bodyside for resistance to stone chipping and road abrasion. Fiesta also has an electro-coat paint primer process similar to the system used on most of Ford's North American-built cars.

Fiesta is backed by a no-charge 36-month unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation. Your dealer has full details.

MENTION EXCELLENCE, YOU HEAR AL LEWIS

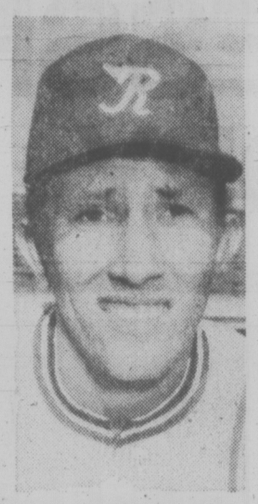
When they talk about pitching excellence in the top echelon of men's softball in the United States, the name of Al Lewis gets big attention.

And when they discuss pitching excellence, they'll also be considering Al Lewis along with a few other stars like Ty Stofflet.

And when they ring down the curtain in this weekend's series between Victoria Bate and Stratford Raybestos Cardinals, it's a good bet that softball fans in these parts will also be talking about Lewis.

Lewis is the ace pitcher for the Cardinals, the reigning U.S. national champions, who tangle with the Canadian-champion Bate squad at Royal Athletic Park Saturday and Sunday.

Here are a few reasons why the Stratford, Conn., ace could provide a few big headaches for Bates in doubleheaders that start at 7 p.m. Saturday and at 1 p.m. Sunday:



AL LEWIS
. . . U.S. all-star

In last year's American national playoffs, Lewis pitched all five victories for the Cardinals; was named the most-valuable player in the national event, and was selected to the all-star team.

His record in the 1976 regular season was 26 wins and five losses.

Lewis was also named to the national all-star team in 1972 and in the 1970 national tourney he pitched a perfect game against Salt Lake City.

And if you wonder why he is rated one of the best at hitting the target with his tosses, you might like to know that in 1969 he set a team record for the Cardinals by yielding only two bases-on-balls in 132 innings of pitching.

That, of course, suggests that Bates batters would be wise to try swinging instead of waiting when Lewis is on the mound.

Sanderson Leads Kill

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

As was the case the last time these two teams met, Victoria Shamrocks were forced to wait until the third period before disposing of Nanaimo Timbermen, 16-10, in their Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena, Wednesday night.

Two weeks ago it was Ivan Thompson with seven goals who sunk the Timbermen. Wednesday night it was Terry Sanderson with four goals and three in the space of three minutes and 16 seconds of the third period who applied the coup de grace.

Earlier it had been a clean, wide-open affair and scoreless until the 8:44 mark of the first period.

Then the explosion, by both teams. It was started by Nanaimo with goals by Jim Lynch, his first of three, then Frank Alexander and the T-men came out of the eight-goal shootout less than four minutes later with a 5-3 lead.

Then the goalies, George Grover for the Rocks, and Tim Barrie for the Timbermen, took over again and that's the way the period ended.

The Rocks got even by the 5:17 mark of the second period on goals by Thompson and Larry Bell, but the T-men charged back through Bob Cool and Brian Evans to go in front again 7-5.

The Rocks quickly responded through Norm Baker, on his first of two power-play goals, Jack Kastelein and Thompson, with his second, on a short-handed situation and finally forged to the front.

Kevin Alexander got the Timbermen even again, Gerry Cadwallader gave the Irish the go-ahead and then Cool got his second to tie the score at 9-9.

And that actually was the dying gasp for the visitors who now have lost 14 of their 15 games, and four to the Shamrocks.

Baker scored his second power-play goal at 19:13 of the second period to make it 10-9 and goalie Larry Smeltzer, who came on in relief of Grover, after a four-game layoff due to injury, kept things tidy for the Shamrocks in the final period.

Meanwhile, Ron MacNeil had punched home what proved to be the winner at 3:16. Mike Beaulac scored less than a minute later and Chris Hall, getting his own rebound, set the stage for Sanderson's final heroics.

In addition to his goal, Hall had four assists, and turned in one of his best games of the season. Baker had four assists to go with his two goals while Charn Dhillon also had a good night with a goal and four assists. Bill Marachek scored the other Shamrock goal.

For Nanaimo, the outstanding player was Barrie. He kept the Timbermen in the game especially in the first period; and even in the third period he had made 10 saves while Smeltzer was making one before the Rocks put the issue beyond doubt.

Cool had two goals and three assists to pace the Timbermen while Evans, the league's leading scorer had two assists to go with his one goal. Lynch, as mentioned, had three goals with Bob Avender getting the other Timberman tally.

Andy Reid, a former Timberman, played his first game for the Shamrocks bud did not contribute to the scoring.

Mike Walsh, who was released by the Shamrocks earlier in the day, has been claimed by the Timbermen and will be asked to join them.

Old Canucks... Cougars... Jockeys... and Kathleen

It was that sort of a day — tossing away years of remembrances, emptying the files as it were; and there it was, a special edition of the Vancouver Sun heralding the return of major hockey to Vancouver.

Come now, you haven't forgotten, have you? It was seven years ago when Vancouver paid something like $6 million to become a part of the National Hockey League. And Oct. 9, 1970, was the date of the opening game against Los Angeles Kings.

The old sweat is now the coach. Orland Kurtenbach had been the second-round draft choice of general manager Bud Poile in the expansion draft. Poile's long gone and has been and gone elsewhere in the meantime. So has the first-year coach, Hal Laycoe. He's just back from Holland in fact where he spent the winter coaching the Dutch national team.

Oh, the players? There was John Arbour, Andre Boudrias, Mike Corrigan, Gary Doak, Ray Cullen, Ed Hatoum, Danny Johnson, George Harris, Murray Hall, Charlie Hodge, Wayne Maki, Rosaire Paiement, Paul Popiel, Pat Quinn, Bob Dillabough, Marc Reaume, Garth Rizzuto, Ted Taylor, Dale Tallon, Dunc Wilson, Jim Wiste, Howie Young, Darrell Sly . . . I knew you would remember. Well, Tallon is still around, so is Wilson . . . and Doak . . . but in seven short years it's really surprising how many changes time has wrought. Even the owners are gone. Remember Medicor . . . Thomas Scallen and Lyman Walters? Coley Hall is still on the board and Babe Pratt still has a job. They are the exceptions.

And if Little League umpire Doug Hudlin wants his program back, I'll be down the hall.

Where it emerged from, who knows? But the Cougar hockey program of Dec. 12, 1950, listed the team this way: Jerry Cotnoir, Roger Leger, Joe Lepine, Don Webster, Fiori Goegan, Bernie Strongman, Stan Long, Andy Hebenton, Geoff Burman, Jack McIntyre, Eddie Mazur, Bob Frampton, Eddie Dorohoy, Reg Abbott, Joe Evans and Joe Medynski. Bring back some memories? Well, just ask Evans, Strongman or Dorohoy . . . they're about town and will gladly tell how great that club was . . . Incidentally, Webster is seriously ill in California . . . And Hebenton . . . gee, he could be the new Cougar coach . . .

And if you think things are different with the Canucks, now, try the junior Cougars, vintage '69-'70. President was Bill Ferguson and managing director Bob Reid. Directors were Dick Lillico, Marcel Barsalou, Danny Hajnal, Lucien La Pierre, Alfred Lott, Jerry Carter, Jack De Denus. Tom Price was vice-president, Bill Wansbrough, secretary-treasurer and Doug Anderson coach. So time moves on . . . and race fans certainly can recall the names of jockeys riding at Sandown in '70, can't they? . . . a pause for reflection . . . but really, can anyone put a face to John Cantarini . . . or Bill Norris . . . or Bryon Cuthbertson . . . or Gerry Kipling . . . or Griff Day? Thought you knew your hardboots, eh? Ah, here's one—Charlie Ulrich . . . and Jim Broomfield . . . Jim Dailey (and he's still winning).

So, they came out of the archives and are earmarked for extinction . . . and if anyone wants to claim the working copy of the Victoria West story that was published a few years, be my guest. But hurry . . . and Louie Leonard may be pleased to know I still have his heirloom and he can have it back . . . and hey, here's one for the true sports buff . . . Whatever happened to Kathleen Walling? Remember Kathleen? She was front page news in our town in 1974. You don't remember? Too bad, 'Cause I'm not going to tell.

Nastase At It Again

LONDON (AP) — Ilie Nastase has done it again.

The antics of the fiery Romanian on court Wednesday as he scrambled his way through to the third round were as wild as the time two years ago when he grabbed a Wimbledon fan's umbrella and took it on court with him —all to urge the umpire to halt play in a light mist.

Wimbledon commentators say Nastase is the greatest player ever to come to these lawn tennis championships and fail to win. Ranked No. 6 in the world, Nastase was the losing finalist here in 1972 and 1976. He is seeded sixth this year.

Wednesday's trouble erupted in the fourth set of Nastase's match against Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia. Pattison took the first two sets 9-7, 6-3, beating Nastase at his own game with clever passing and cut shots.

Nastase came back to win the third set 7-5, but Pattison got a crucial 4-3 lead in the following set by breaking Nastase's serve in the seventh game.

The Romanian, appearing upset at a foot fault called against him, argued with the linesman and umpire, then ducked behind the green canvas surrounding the court.

Referee Fred Hoyle warned Nastase to continue to play. Some 10 minutes elapsed before he resumed play, and the game quickly swung his way. He broke Pattison's service to even the games at 4-4.

After complaining about the state of the grass and the noise in the crowd, Nastase broke service in the 14th game and took the set 8-6. One service break in the fifth and final set was all he needed for the match.

But Pattison refused to come to the net to shake hands.

"I think he behaved abominably," said the Rhodesian. "He was breaking the rules of the game that play must be continuous, and insulting and abusing the umpire and linesmen. He did it at a very crucial stage when I was leading with a service break."

But Nastase had an explanation for the episode when he met reporters.

"Everything started with the umpire," he said, explaining that he interrupted the match deliberately to force the umpire to summon referee Hoyle so he could hear Nastase's complaints about the lack of a full bevy of linesmen.

He said of his tactics: "I would do it every time if I knew I would win the match."

In Wednesday's other action, No. 1 seed Jimmy Connors had a workout against unseeded Marty Reissen before reaching the third round 6-4, 8-9, 6-1, 8-6. No. 2 seed Biorn Borg of Sweden said he was lucky to win his second round match against Mark Edmondson of Australia, coming back from two sets down to win 3-6, 7-9, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1.

Two seeds were beaten: Adriano Panatta of Italy, seeded 10th, lost to the Sandy Mayer 8-9, 6-0, 6-2, 6-4, and Brian Gottfried was defeated by Byron Bertram of South Africa 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

New Man Likes Rapport

CHICAGO (CP) — John Ziegler, the president elect of the National Hockey League, says the NHL and the NHL Players' Association get along quite well—which may be good news for those members of the World Hockey Association who are trying to find out if they will be accommodated in the NHL in time for next season.

"Dealing with the players' association is one of the major assets this league has," said Ziegler, a 43-year-old lawyer from Detroit who will take over the reins of the NHL from outgoing president Clarence Campbell sometime after the league's semi-annual meeting in Toronto in late August.

"We have probably the best relationship with a players' association that exists in professional sports," added Ziegler, who will be president and chairman of the board.

The reason this might be good news to the WHA tapes is that the NHL governors have not really decided what they are going to do regarding a merger. They are going to wait until they finish their owners-players council meetings before making any moves.

"The league, I think, would arrive at a conclusion as to whether it would want to go on with that concept (merger) if they were clearer of what the consequences would be so far as the collective bargaining agreement was concerned," said Campbell, who will remain with the league as honorary chairman of the board.

"The position taken by the players' executive secretary (Alan Eagleson) is that he's not going to tell us in advance because he can't.

"One thing is for sure, somebody has to move first. That's what they are going to try to resolve tomorrow. I'm not sure the players will take any different approach than Mr. Eagleson has."

Eagleson flew into Chicago on Wednesday night and said the NHLPA's position has not changed from what it was a couple of weeks ago.

Among major requests released by the players at the recent meetings in Montreal were veto power over trades for any player who has spent five years with the same club or 10 years in the league and divisional realignment.

Many owners want to see two-way contracts instituted so that players would get paid major-league salaries for playing in the NHL and minor-league salaries if they were demoted.

But Ziegler, whose selection was unanimous, says he will strive with the owners and players to bring economic and competitive vitality to the game.

One problem Campbell has had to live with and Ziegler has dealt with should be solved by the time Ziegler moves into NHL headquarters in Montreal.

One way or another, the Cleveland Barons situation will be settled today.

Stampeders Bury Lions

CALGARY (CP) — A 77-yard pass interception return by Abb Ansley sparked Calgary Stampeders to a 35-6 victory over British Columbia Lions in a Western Football Conference exhibition game Wednesday night.

B.C. rookie quarterback Jerry Tagge had attempted to throw a long pass but, forced to hurry the throw by veteran defensive tackle John Helton, threw into Ansley's arms. Ansley then raced down the sidelines to change the complexion of the game.

Calgary received other touchdowns from Willie Burden on a 33-yard run in the first quarter and Wayne Moseley on a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter.

Cyril McFall kicked four field goals of 27, 34, 34 and 57 yards, two converts and three singles to complete Calgary's scoring.

Ansley, a defensive back, was protecting his zone when Tagge threw the ball in his direction. Ansley followed his blockers as he raced down the sidelines.

In the second half, Hufnagel was replaced by J. J. Jones and Dave Buckey. Of the two, Jones was more able to generate an offense, although the Stampeders were limited to a single.

The Stampeders managed 20 first downs while the Lions had eight.

Hufnagel was good on three of seven pass attempts and Buckey and Jones combined for 14 completions out of 20 attempts.

Tagge and Gary Keithley combined for 12 completions on 27 attempts. Calgary also had one interception.

Both teams were playing their second exhibition game and each has a one-one record.

STANKY QUITS

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Rangers confirmed today that Eddie Stanky, hired as their manager Wednesday, has quit.

Connie Ryan, the third base coach, was named interim manager, said Eddie Robinson, executive vice-president of the American League baseball team.

Stanky is reported to have given homesickness as his reason for quitting to return to Mobile, Ala., where he was baseball coach at the University of South Alabama for nine years.

The 31-year-old Bowa was always noted as a fine-fielding shortstop and a light hitter. But Wednesday night he smacked the first grand slam homer of his career, went 4 for 4, with four runs scored as the Phillies outslugged the Reds 15-8 in a National League baseball game.

"Besides getting to the big leagues, it was my greatest thrill," said Bowa. "It was the first homer I've hit that I knew was out. I can't explain the feeling in my body as I went around the bases."

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta Braves defeated New York Mets 4-1, Los Angeles Dodgers belted St. Louis Cardinals 12-1, Pittsburgh Pirates swept past San Diego Padres 3-1, Houston Astros shut out Montreal Expos 7-0 and Chicago Cubs stopped San Francisco Giants 4-2.

Steve Garvey's 16th homer of the season, a fourth-inning grand slam, was the key hit for Los Angeles.

The Dodgers moved 8½ games ahead of Cincinnati in the National League West thanks to Garvey's five RBI and Ron Cey's two-run triple and four RBI.

Golfers from Interior Share Early Spotlight

KAMLOOPS — Golfers from Victoria and Vancouver usually dominate the British Columbia amateur tournament but a pair of darkhorses from Kamloops and Prince George charged into the spotlight Wednesday.

Garnet Lineker of Kamloops fired a four-under-par 68 on his home course to grab the first-round lead by one shot over Dale McDermid of Prince George, another virtual unknown.

Mark Slavin of Richmond and Dick Zokol of Vancouver tied for third with 70s and Henry Duchscherer of Prince George, Ray Stewart of Abbotsford and Blair Christie of North Vancouver were tied at 71.

Lineker, 43, is playing his first provincial championship tournament, mainly because it's the first time the event has been held in the interior since 1964.

"I never had the time to play in the B.C. Amateur, and I really never had the inclination," said Lineker. "My best round ever was a 66 about three years ago but this was my best competitive round."

While Lineker and McDermid were surprise leaders the pre-tournament favorites Jim Nelford, Doug Roxburgh and John G. Russell, all of Vancouver, surprised by failing to make the top 20.

Nelford, the 1975 B.C. champion and Canadian amateur champion in 1975 and 1976, shot 75 while defending champion Roxburgh, also the 1974 Canadian champion, shot 76 and Russell, B.C. champion in 1967 and 1968 and 13-time member of the Willingdon Cup team, shot 77.

Only two former Willingdon Cup players made the top 20 and ties and none of them made par. Dr. Dave Mick of Victoria, a team member in 1973, and Don Griffiths of Vancouver, a member last year, shot 73s to tie for 20th.

Griffiths finished second last year.

Roxburgh didn't have much to say about his round but he was unhappy with what he termed the failure of the B.C. Golf Association to crack down on slow play.

The BCGA had announced that it would try to speed play this year by penalizing slow players two strokes if they didn't complete their round in a specified time.

"We were out there five hours," Roxburgh said. "The BCGA said they would crack down on slow play. If they don't this will be the last amateur I will play in."

The top Vancouver Island players were Reg Effa of Glen Meadows and Uplands junior Lanny Sawchuk with 72s.

Paul Harris of Victoria shot 73; as did Sandy Harper of Nanaimo; Dave Donaldson of Gorge Vale, Jim Cook of Cedar Hill and Stu Winchester of Comox shot 74s; and Island Open champion Jim Rutledge a junior who plays out of Uplands and Cedar Hill, was in a large group at 75.

The field will be cut to the top 80 and ties following the second round today and will be cut to the top 30 and ties following Friday's round.

The top 20 and ties will be invited to the B.C. Golf Association Invitational. The Willingdon Cup team is decided on the four rounds of the amateur and the two rounds of the invitational.

The first two rounds are qualifying rounds for the Canadian amateur. A score of 151 or better qualifies a contestant to put an entry into the Canadian.

PARKER CAPTURES ASSISTANTS TITLE

Mike Parker of Victoria Golf Club fired a two-under-par 68 on his home course Wednesday to capture the 1977 Vancouver Island assistants' championship.

Parker, who had a pair of 74s in the first rounds at Uplands and Colwood, finished with a 54-hole total of 216.

Gary Scramstead of Nanaimo, 73-74-74—221, and Al Robertson of Glen Meadows, 76-70-75—221, finished in a tie for second. Bruce Rands of Uplands, 71-77-77—225, finished fourth, while Doug Mahovlic of Victoria was fifth with 74-77-76—227.

Jim Miner of Victoria captured low net honors, scoring 75-13—62, and teamed up with Mahovlic to win the team prize in a pro-am event staged in conjunction with Wednesday's final round.

Medal Prediction Depends On Hard Work by Cyclists

Work, work, work.

There's always so much of it to be done. Even in sport. If you want to get to the top you have to work. And hard, too. Everyone knows that.

And most Canadians would be quite taken aback and perhaps a little upset, also, if they thought that an outsider — a recognized authority in his field — considered them "lazy."

That's the impression Britain's Norman Sheil seems to have when you first meet him. But there's a little more to it.

"The thing that has struck me about Canadians is that they don't know how to work at sport," Sheil told me before flying back to England. "That's my only criticism, I think, and it's not really criticism in the true sense of the word because I feel the reason stems from a lack of understanding, a lack of know-how."

Sheil has the know-how and that's why he was here.

A gold medal winner in both the 1954 Commonwealth Games in Vancouver and the 1958 Games in Cardiff, Wales, and winner of the world title for individual pursuit in Italy in 1955 and in France in 1958, Sheil was invited to this country for two weeks by Don Sutherland, Ottawa-based technical director of the Canadian Cycling Association.

After working on the finer points of technique and skill required in team and individual pursuit racing with Canada's national team in the Montreal Velodrome, Sheil headed west at the request of the Bicycling Association of B.C. He conducted clinics in Vancouver and Kamloops and was in Victoria last Thursday and Friday evenings.

Each night, Sheil put 20 or so cyclists, mostly members of the Victoria Wheelers or Apollo Cycling Club, through their paces in a road clinic on the University of Victoria circuit and then lectured to them and fielded questions on technique and training in classroom sessions.

His only regret was that his visit was too short.

"Out here in B.C. I've been mainly concerned with trying to stimulate interest in coaching riders," said Sheil, who at 44 now runs a giant new sports centre in Nottingham after stepping down as Britain's national cycling coach in 1973. "But it's been hard because we've had to condense a week's course into two evenings in Victoria."

Sheil, slender and looking very fit, was impressed with the standard of cycling in Canada, both by the national squad and at the club level. It was, he said, much higher than he had anticipated.

Ah, but what about his prediction after the 1972 Munich Olympics that North American cyclists — both Canadians and Americans — would "come good and do great things in the next few years?"

Norman Sheil gave a big grin. He remembered.

"I still feel this will be true," he said. "I feel that in the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton next year, Canada will win four medals — two gold, a silver and a bronze in cycling events.

"But now, after having stuck my neck out and predicted that, I must add that it all depends on one big thing, of course: the Canadian cyclists will have to work hard for them."

Joyce, Debbie In Rare Form

COLOGNE, West Germany (Reuter) — Joyce Yakubowich of Victoria won the 400 metres and Debbie Brill of Aldergrove, B.C., the high jump at an international track and field meet Wednesday.

Clocked in 52.32, she edged Dagmar Fuhrmann of West Germany, Christiane Wildschek of Austria, Rosalyn Bryant of the United States and Bethanie Nail of Australia in that order. All but Wildschek were ahead of her in the 1976 world rankings.

Brill, 24, who has rebounded strongly from her disappointing showing in the Montreal Olympics, won the high jump with a leap of 1.88 metres, just under her Canadian record of 1.90.

Second, third and fourth were Brigitte Holzapfel and Karin Geese of West Germany and Joni Huntley of the United States, all of whom went out at 1.86.

Brian Saunders of Toronto placed third in the men's 400 metres in a time of 46.70. The event was won by Maxie Parks of the United States in 46.42 with Elvis Jennings of the U.S. second in 46.62.

Mike Boit of Kenya, one of the world's top middle distance runners who missed the Olympics when African nations pulled out, won the 800 metres in 1:44.35.

Greg Foster of the U.S. won the 110-metre hurdles in 13.62, edging veteran Willie Davenport with James Owens of the U.S. third.

Olympic gold medalist Annegret Richter of West Germany won the women's 100 metres in 11.24 with Irena Szewinska of Poland second in 11.37 and Andrea Lynch of Britain third in 11.46.

Giboulee Draws Rail

The three-year-old colt, winner of the Plate Trial, is the early 6-to-5 favorite to beat a field of nine.

Other horses and their owners after the winner's share of $86,537 from the total purse of $133,135 — if all nine go to the post — are:

2. Sound Reason, Stafford Farm, Kings, Ont.; 3. Crossword Puzzle, Sam-Son Farm, Oakville, Ont.; 4. Northernette, Syl Asadoorian, Cambridge, Ont., and Sam Cosentino, Toronto; 5. Social Pleasure, Helen Casper, Mississauga, Ont.; 6. Grand Luxe; 7. Pro Consul, Ruth McCullough, Toronto; 8. Plus de Rien, Ted and Jack Burnett, King; 9. Regent Bird, Dominic Colalillo, Toronto.

Feeney Relents

Kubiceks Claim Share of Second

Kubicek A's took advantage of slumping Gorge Hotel on Wednesday to tighten up standings in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League.

Kubiceks moved into a tie for second place in the four-team league with Greaves Movers by nudging Gorge 5-4 at Lambrick Park. Gorge and Farmer Construction are tied for first, half a game ahead of the runners-up.

Randy Price smacked a two-out single to drive in Dave Graas with what proved to be the winning run in the second inning and a two-run single by catcher Ross Barnett keyed a four-run first inning.

Athletics Take Lead

Victoria Athletics took over first place in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League by tripping Ingraham Hotel 5-4 Wednesday at Central Park.

Pinch-hitter Barry Underwood connected for a short single down the third base line to score catcher Bob Gray for the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning.

First-baseman Murray Sluggett cracked out a double and a single in three turns at bat for Athletics to score once and drive in two runs.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Lee York smashed out a triple, a double and two singles in four trips to the plate to score three times and drive in two runs as Remco Office Systems chalked up a 12-6 decision over Esquimalt Ocean Express in a Heywood Men's League encounter.

Ken Gordon lashed out for a solo home run for Express.

In Victoria Senior Women's League action, Kathy Cave connected for two singles in four trips to the plate to score twice and drive in one run while leading first-place GSV Combos to a 9-5 win over Colony Motor Inn at Hyacinth Park.

CRESC Angels whipped Victoria Athletics 12-4 in the other game.

At Sanscha Park, Seaboard Properties stretched their lead in the Sidney Men's League to 12 points over runner-up Harvey's Sporting Goods with a 7-4 win over Sidney Hotel.

Canadian law requires distillers to place a stamp on their whisky bottles showing the year the whisky was distilled.

With Schenley OFC, we go a lot further. We certify that our whisky has been aged in charred white oak casks, for a full 8 years.

We believe 8 years is the perfect aging time for whisky.

At 8 years, our whisky is not so young, that it's pale, harsh, immature.

Worse Gas Outlook

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Power Commission said Tuesday natural gas shortages may be worse this coming winter than they were last.

A report prepared by the FPC staff and based on gas company projections estimates interstate pipelines will have 165.9 billion cubic feet less gas availble for delivery during the 1977-78 heating season than they did last year.

The FPC staff also estimated mandatory curtailment of gas deliveries from November, 1977, to March, 1978, would total about 1.66 trillion cubic feet, or 23.03 per cent of the amount required under existing contracts.

By contrast, it said, curtailments last winter were 1.53 trillion cubic feet or 21.09 per cent of requirements.

"Next winter's firm requirements, or gas which the pipelines are contracted to supply, will total 7.2 trillion cubic feet," the FPC said.

The FPC defined "curtailment" as the difference between the amount of gas a pipeline is required by contract to deliver and the amount it is actually able to deliver.

It said the impact of interstate pipeline curtailments on ultimate consumers, such as homes and factories, could not be predicted from its figures because about 90 per cent of the gas carried by the pipelines is sold to distributors who stand as middlemen between the pipelines and consumers.

"Several major factors have effected the end-use impact on ultimate consumers ... including both warmer than normal and colder than normal winter weather," the FPC said.

It said a repeat of the record cold weather experienced last winter, for instance, might result in increased delivery levels if there were a return to emergency purchases and transportation agreements that normally would not be allowed.

The agency said it expects to report about mid-August on the projected impact to homes and factories of gas suppliers for 29 pipelines that may have difficulty maintaining service next winter.

U.S. marshall (left) escorts Mitchell to prison

Mitchell Just a Con Now

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell is now inmate number 24171-157 in Maxwell prison camp. But his reception indicates that treating him like just every other inmate will not be easy.

Superintendent Robert Grunska promises that Mitchell, the highest law enforcement officer ever sent to prison in the United States, will not get any special treatment.

"He ain't nothing but another convict with a number now," yelled an inmate after Mitchell walked into the minimum security prison here Wednesday, becoming the 25th and last person to go to prison for Watergate-related crimes.

But Mitchell's arrival and greeting at the prison was anything but routine. He flew into Montgomery in a chartered private jet plane, then was whisked from the airport in the Cadillac belonging to the U.S. marshal who met him.

Mitchell, who could be parolled in 20 months from his sentence of 30 months to eight years for his part in the Watergate coverup, was quickly processed into the prison after he arrived.

After he had been in the prison for a few hours, Grunska said there was no hostility shown by the other inmates.

Mitchell was assigned a lower bunk in one of the seven air conditioned dormitories, which he shares with more than 40 other inmates. There are sixfoot high partitions, but little privacy for a man accustomed to living in a Fifth Avenue apartment.

Grunska said Mitchell would be assigned a job in the clothing room, where Charles Colson once worked, or in the business office or education program.

Mitchell and the other 280 inmates ate chicken-fried steak for lunch, and dined on corned beef hash. Colson, another former Nixon aide sent to Maxwell, found the food "surprisingly good."

All the inmates at Maxwell were convicted of non-violent crimes, many of them white collar crimes.

Nuclear Bankruptcy May Bring Lawsuits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bankruptcy proceedings filed by a U.S. federal agency against a key producer of atomic fuel may disrupt nuclear programs in other countries and might lead to millions of dollars in international lawsuits.

Carter administration officials said Wednesday that experts from the state department and justice department are investigating international and legal problems arising from the failure of the U.S. Nuclear Corp. of Oak Ridge, Tenn.

A bankruptcy petition against the firm was filed by the federal Energy Research and Development Agency (ERDA) last month.

Sources say Brazil, South Africa and some other longtime buyers of the company's highly enriched uranium are asking the state department about the bankruptcy proceeding and are concerned that their major source of a special type of reactor fuel may be cut off.

Brazil and South Africa already had made down payments to U.S. Nuclear for future deliveries of nuclear fuel, sources say. Now the countries may find their money and fuel tied up in bankruptcy court.

ERDA, the corporation's biggest creditor, filed the bankruptcy petition May 4, officials said. U.S. Nuclear was closed, but its supply of enriched uranium, already processed for export was properly stored and sealed, the officials said.

U.S. Nuclear, state department officials say, is the only U.S. firm using a special metallurgical process to produce fuel elements for a particular kind of research reactor exported by the United States.

An ERDA team from Washington now is checking the corporation's records to determine how many countries paid U.S. Nuclear for fuel not yet delivered. Sources say they believe at least a dozen countries have been dealing through the company.

Shutdown of U.S. Nuclear complicates the task of various government agencies that must advise President Carter when he decides whether or not to approve sales of enriched uranium to foreign countries. Carter said in April he personally will screen large orders for enriched uranium, which can be used to build nuclear weapons.

Some of the foreign requests for nuclear fuel now being considered are loaded with heavy political overtones and friendly countries already annoyed with government-prompted delays may be irate over what will amount to a new legal roadblock to needed nuclear fuel.

For example, South Africa, whose race policies have been denounced by the U.S. government, put in a bid more than two years ago for 55 pounds of enriched uranium at a total cost of about $500,000. The uranium was prepared by U.S. Nuclear, but the sale was never cleared by the Carter administration and now is entangled in the bankruptcy case.

Brazil, assailed by Carter on the issue of human rights, also had asked to buy a new shipment of uranium from U.S. Nuclear. Brazil's research reactor is similar to South Africa's reactor.

The United States has been trying to get Brazil to cancel or modify its contract with West Germany for the purchase of its own reprocessing facilities for uranium enrichment and spent uranium fuel. These facilities would give Brazil a weapons-making option.

France, Sweden and up to four other countries, which the officials did not identify, also had asked the government for permission to buy new enriched uranium shipments from the bankrupt firm. Canada has been a customer in the past.

Viet Aid Renounced By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former president Nixon's offer of $3.25 billion in postwar reconstruction aid to Vietnam has been specifically renounced by the house.

Brushing aside charges they were hasty and guilty of less than honorable consideration, the members voted 359 to 33 Wednesday in favor of an amendment by Rep. Lester Wolff (Dem.—N.Y.) to renounce the offer made to Hanoi's leaders while the war was still raging.

Rep. Theodore Weiss, a Hungarian-born freshman Democrat from New York, took sharp exception to the vote, which followed little more than five minutes of debate.

U.S. Radar System Being Sold to Iran

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration has notified Congress in secret that it intends to sell Iran seven highly sophisticated airborne radar systems for $1.2 billion.

This decision — which will be made formal and public on July 6 — is expected to provoke the first public debate over American arms sales to foreign countries since President Carter announced a new policy intended to reduce those sales. Several administration officials said Wednesday that the $1.2 billion sale to Iran violates that new policy, but others disagreed.

Two senators said they thought the sale flouted Carter's stated intentions, and Sen. Thomas Eagleton (Dem.—Md.) said it was "my very strong inclination" to introduce a motion in the Senate that would block the sale.

The proposed deal — which was all but finally arranged by the Ford administration — raises many of the problems the Carter administration will face if it seriously tries to reduce America's role as an international arms merchant.

Carter Defeated By Aid Curbs

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Carter was handed a significant defeat on the house floor Wednesday as the house voted 295 to 115 to prevent international banks and lending institutions from using money contributed by the United States for aid to Cuba, Indochina or the African nations of Uganda, Mozambique or Ethiopia.

Carter, in a letter to Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill Jr. (Dem.—Mass.), had said that passage of such an amendment would, "in effect, jeopardize continued U.S. participation in the banks." He went on to say, "Specifying that U.S. funds could not be used for loans to three countries by the multilateral development institutions would in all probability make it impossible for these institutions to accept our funds."

Bilateral aid to Indochina, Cuba and the three American nations was already prohibited by the $7 billion foreign aid appropriation bill the house was considering, but Rep. C. M. (Bill) Young (Rep.—Fla.) wanted to prohibit U.S. multilateral aid, given through six international banks and lending institutions.

Rep. David Obey (Dem.—Wis.), leading the fight for the Carter administration on the floor, said, the international institutions were set up was a way of "depoliticizing" foreign aid programs and as a way of "sharing the burden" or foreign aid.

If such a limit as Young wanted were put on, the banks would probably have to reject U.S. contributions, Obey said.

U-Mine Fine Delayed

WASHINGTON (CP) — A U.S. judge postponed an order Wednesday that would have imposed a fine of $10,000 a day on a United States uranium-mining company for every day its Canadian-based president declines to come to the United States to give testimony.

Judge Willis Ritter of Federal District Court in Salt Lake City said during a hearing Tuesday he was issuing such an order to induce the president of Rio Algom Corp. to answer a subpoena in a case that involves the activities of an international uranium producers' group. Some group members have said they acted as a cartel in selling uranium to non-U.S. buyers.

Court sources and lawyers for each side in the case said in telephone interviews that the judge changed his mind and told them Wednesday he would hold another hearing before deciding whether to sign the court order. The hearing is expected to be held next week.

The president, G. R. Albino, is also president of Rio Algom Mines Ltd., a Canadian mining company that indirectly owns the similarly-named U.S. company.

The court proceedings in Utah, where Rio Algom Corp. owns a uranium mine, are closely tied to U.S. investigations of cartel activities and to a Canada-U.S. dispute over transfer of uranium-marketing information to the United States.

SUICIDE COPIED

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — News stories about suicides provoke more suicides — many of which are disguised as auto accidents according to a seven-year study by a professor of sociology at the University of California at San Diego.

The study showed that following suicide reports, the number of deaths in auto crashes jumps briefly, increasing by 9 to 18 per cent over the normal level.

"This rise apparently occurs because suicide stories stimulate a wave of imitative suicides, some of which are disguised as motor vehicle accidents," said Prof. David R. Phillips in a scientific paper.

The research covered the San Francisco and Los Angeles areas, and the results were corrected for such things as heavy holiday traffic, yearly trends or other explanations for the increase.

The average increase in auto deaths is 9.12 per cent in the week following a normally publicized suicide, he said, and 18.84 per cent in the week following a heavily publicized suicide.

Illiterates Plague Navy

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Illiteracy among young Americans has become so widespread that the Navy is having trouble finding recruits who can read well enough to function, according to the chief of naval personnel, Vice-Adm. James D. Watkins.

One illiterate sailor did $250,000 worth of damage to an engine because he couldn't read instructions, Watkins said Wednesday, and the Navy is increasingly obliged to teach recruits to read — sometimes up to a sixth-grade level so they can read urgent warnings.

A recent study of 23,000 recruits at the naval base here showed that 37 per cent of them could not read at the 10th-grade level, Watkins told the Chamber of Commerce. Of those, 70 per cent could not read well enough to complete boot camp, he said.

Office Smokers Forced Him to Retire Early

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Werner H. Peterke, a 46-year-old former federal employee, says his work environment gave him chest congestion, coughing fits "that turned me inside out," sore eyes, vomiting and other symptoms that forced him to quit work and entitled him to employee compensation payments.

The Office of Federal Employee Compensation agreed with him and granted him about $700 every two weeks in compensation in a case that his lawyer and others believe may set a precedent.

Peterke's was not the conventional case of a factory worker exposed to dangerous chemicals. He was a white-collar employee in the Social Security Administration's Baltimore offices, and he blames his miseries on the cigarette smoke that wafted his way from the desks of his fellow workers.

Peterke is one of a group of non-smoking federal employees from several American cities who took their fight against tobacco smoke to court here last week. They want to force the government to allow smoking only in designated areas of federal buildings, and to improve ventilation to keep smoke from drifting into non-smoking areas.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court by more than two dozen persons who claim they suffer physical ailments caused by tobacco smoke in their federal offices, and also by three organizations — the Federal Employees for Non-smokers Rights, the Social Security Administration Group's Committee on Tobacco Smoke, and the Group Against Smokers' Pollution (GASP).

Spokesmen for the plaintiffs said they had been given the "runaround" by federal agencies and by the White House when they sought relief through other channels such as letters, grievance procedures and the like. Part of the problem, they believe, is that "most of the people who make the decisions are smokers."

The plaintiffs work for the departments of state, defence, health, education and welfare, labor and several smaller agencies, in cities in Montana, Utah, Florida and Louisiana, as well as in the Washington, D.C., area.

Peterke's case appeared to be the most remarkable in the group. He said his symptoms had grown steadily worse since he joined the agency in 1972 and became almost intolerable in 1975.

CONGRESS TO DELAY SACCHARIN BAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At first glance, it appeared the Senate appropriations committee had decided to side with the Food and Drug Administration and its proposed ban on saccharin.

"The committee voted Wednesday to strike House language that blocked for a year the FDA's prohibition against the artificial sweetener. But there was a catch.

The pro-saccharin amendment was trimmed only after the senators were assured that separate legislation to block the ban will be coming up quickly.

The House had sought just 24 hours earlier — to prohibit the FDA from using federal funds to enforce a saccharin ban before Sept. 30, 1978.

It was the first congressional action taken in response to the saccharin controversy which has grown out of laboratory tests showing the sweetener can cause cancer in rats. In addition, a new — but unpublished — Canadian study shows a link between saccharin and bladder cancer in men.

The FDA intended to impose its ban in the fall.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton was the main force in Wednesday's move to strike the House pro-saccharin amendment. His move came after he told of assurances from the chairmen of House and Senate committees that bills blocking the FDA ban for 18 months would receive prompt attention.

VANCE TO CHINA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will make his first official visit to China in late August and stop in Japan on his way back to Washington, the State Department announced Wednesday.

"The purpose of the trip is to further our conversations, in light of the (1972) Shanghai Communique, toward normalizing our relations," said state department spokesman Hodding Carter.

Vance will be in China Aug. 22-26 and made a two-day stop in Japan before his return to the United States. With the exception of Japan, Vance will not visit any other countries going to or returning from China, the spokesman said.

Vance's trip will be preceded by another diplomatic mission to at least two other Asian nations in July by deputy secretary of state Warren Christopher.

N-PLANT WATER TO SUPPLY TREES

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — The first forest on the barren Hanford Nuclear Reservation is spreading its roots near the Washington public power supply system's No. 2 reactor.

When the reactor goes on line about 1980, the 2,000 poplar and pine trees will be irrigated with warm cooling water from the reactor.

"There is no other tree in sight," said Dr. Dennis Oldenstadt of the Hanford Warm Water Utilization Laboratory.

The two-to three-foot-high trees are the start of a proposed 900-acre experiment in using warm cooling water from nuclear reactors to irrigate crops.

"The fact that we have access to this amount of land and warm water so close to a nuclear power plant is unique," said Oldenstadt. "As far as I know, there's been no similar experiment on such a large scale."

The forest now taking root will be irrigated with Columbia River water until warm water is available from the reactor, under construction about 10,000 feet away.

The utility has agreed to supply 4,500 gallons of warm water a minute for the project but Oldenstadt said, "This is a very small part of the total flow."

The cooling water from the reactor is non-radioactive, Oldenstadt said.

Floating Villagers Yearn for Ground

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei (Reuter) — After centuries of a picturesque but cramped existence; the people in Brunei's famed floating village want to put their feet on the ground.

Kampong Ayer, the water village that nestles in a bend in the meandering Brunei River, was once the power base for the marauding pirate sultans whose Oriental empire stretched from the island of Borneo to the Philippines.

But now a government survey in this small sultanate has shown that most of the 17,000 inhabitants want to move out of their rickety old houses on stilts.

Their complaints are many: They want a higher standard of living, they lack privacy and they live in constant fear of a major fire sweeping through their wooden homes.

So the state's resettlement office has sketched out plans for three satellite towns just north of here to house the floating population.

No timetable has been fixed yet for the proposed mass move but the villagers will be able to buy their new homes with virtually interest-free loans.

Some tumbledown houses have threadbare linoleum and a few humble sticks of furniture. Others boast Persian carpets and a color television set in spacious sitting rooms.

But the common feeling, whatever the grandeur of the dwelling, is, "We want out."

One of the village headmen, Haji Omar Bin Duah, complains: "The big problem here is that we are too overcrowded."

The headman, father of 16 children, added: "We are all worried by the fire risk. It could spread very quickly here as the houses are so closely packed together."

Classical Chinese Is on the Way Out

SINGAPORE (AP)—An official campaign is under way to drop classical Chinese here and replace it with a simpler version of the language.

"It is happening all over the world," said Lee Seng Giap of the ministry of culture. "In the United Nations, Hong Kong and China there has been a switch to the modern style of applied Chinese."

Written Chinese used in many letters, announcements, rules and regulations and for other non-literary purposes is outdated and "not an effective means of communication," Lee said.

It resembles writing used by the upper classes in China in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

"It entails many feudalistic and outmoded forms of address, formalities and phraseology which are irrelevant and anachronistic to modern society," Lee said.

"To meet present-day requirements of language as a means of communication, both for learning and for using, it is obvious that this outdated form of writing will have to be simplified and modernized."

More than 70 per cent of Singapore's 2.2 million people are ethnic Chinese. Mandarin, English, Malay and Tamil are official languages in this island republic.

Ho Kah Leong, president of the Chinese Middle School Teachers Union, says it's a grave educational and social problem.

"It means that in language teaching we have still not succeeded in enabling students to master a language and to use it as a means of expression."

In replying to an invitation in classical style, for example, a person must write various polite terms to address the person who invited him as well as remark on the great occasion. Then he belittles himself as unworthy to be favored by being invited to such an auspicious event before finally accepting the invitation.

The direct response is used in modern Chinese. The invited person addresses the sender of the invitation by name and accepts with thanks.

"Applied Chinese has been a stumbling block for students learning Chinese, particularly as a second language," said an educationist.

"In school all their textbooks are written in the modern colloquial style. Yet when they have to write letters, notices or even minutes of a meeting, the literary or classical style must be adopted.

"This has created a lot of confusion for the student because he is unable to apply what he has learned in the classroom to everyday reading and writing of Chinese. Even in newspaper reports there is often a mixture of the modern and literary style of writing."

A committee of government and business leaders, teachers, newspaper editors, labor leaders and others was formed more than a year ago to guide the linguistic reform. A stylebook has been prepared containing sample letters and other material in modern Chinese.

In 1957 only 22.2 per cent of Singapore's adult population spoke English. By 1975, 36.6 per cent could understand it. Statistics indicate that about two-thirds of the students attend schools with English as the medium of instruction.

Tariff Walls Decried

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada should not keep on building tariff walls to keep out goods from developing countries, says an official of the Canadian International Development Agency.

Romeo Maione of Ottawa, director of the agency's non-governmental organizations division, said in an interview that pressure is mounting in third world countries for industrialized nations such as Canada to buy their manufactured goods.

"We can no longer go to these countries and tell them we only want to buy their raw resources," said Maione, here to address a meeting of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Alberta.

He said there has been considerable negative reaction to Canada's recent tariff increases on textiles imported from places like the Philippines, Malaysia, Singapore and Hong Kong.

"The developing countries are becoming more outspoken," he said.

PM Not Canada's Leader, Claims Dief

By RON CLINGEN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau was told Wednesday he is not Canada's leader and shouldn't try to act like it during Dominion Day celebrations July 1.

The reprimand came from former prime minister John Diefenbaker who insisted the leaders of the opposition parties should be given a chance to join the prime minister in making brief speeches during a three-hour national TV party on the evening of July 1.

Diefenbaker noted the Governor General, as actual leader, will be unable to address the nation on behalf of the Queen. By letting all party leaders speak, the former PM contended the celebration could not be regarded as "in any way partisan."

Trudeau promised to look into the suggestion.

And he told the Commons the party House leaders are now discussing the possibility of setting aside two days next week for a debate or "collective contribution" on national unity. Diefenbaker has been pushing for such a session for some time.

Trudeau made no attempt to claim he was the nation's leader but suggested he could do nothing better "in this great debate about who is the leader" to take a leaf from Diefenbaker's book and see who spoke for the nation on July 1 celebrations in 1957, 1958, 1959, 1960, and 1961, when the "chief" was prime minister.

"If nobody did, I am disappointed," The PM observed. "I suppose that was the trouble with our history during that period — nobody was leading the nation."

"If evasiveness were a virtue, the prime minister would be a saint," Diefenbaker proddd.

Meanwhile, Canada Day will come and go with no fanfare in the U.S. capital. By Canadian Embassy tradition, it will be just another day off as the doors of the chancery on Massachusetts Avenue are locked up.

The reason: Economy.

"For the past five or six years, the embassy has done nothing for austerity reasons," a spokeswoman said. Presumably, this directive comes from Ottawa.

National Unity Group Expected Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is expected to announce establishment of a national unity commission during a two-day Commons debate next week on the future of Confederation.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the House Wednesday that the debate, probably next Wednesday and Thursday, should be "a collective contribution on the subject of national unity."

Trudeau made the statement in reply to charges by John Diefenbaker, former Progressive Conservative prime minister, that gigantic July 1 celebrations will be a Liberal party event.

Diefenbaker said Dominion Day, called Canada Day by the government, should be a nonpartisan day of celebration, not organized "as a party thing with the prime minister speaking as the leader, which he is not."

The two-day debate is being arranged as a parliamentary prelude to the July 1 celebrations which will include a nationally-televised address by Trudeau.

When Diefenbaker proposed ahat opposition party leaders also be invited to address the nation, Liberals shouted: "Never, never."

And Trudeau replied that he would check to see whether Diefenbaker let Opposition leaders speak at July 1 celebrations when Conservatives governed the country in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Trudeau did say he would consider having opposition party leaders speak.

Diefenbaker said party leaders did not speak at Dominion Day celebrations under his government because it was a nonpolitical, national event.

COMMONS SWAMPS ANTI-SENATE VOTE

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic Party motion, which in effect would have abolished the Senate, was defeated 166 to 14 Wednesday in the Commons.

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives opposed the motion while NDP and Social Credit MPs supported it.

The motion, introduced by NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles, asked that the Commons withhold almost $7 million destined for the Senate for its annual upkeep. The motion has become an annual occurrence in the Commons.

The Commons later approved in an unrecorded vote $14.1 billion in expenditures by the government during the next year on operations and capital outlays.

The government actually plans to spend more than $45.1 billion during the fiscal year that ends next March 31.

The bulk of expenditures are either authorized by statute— and not subject to a Commons vote—or are approved as supplementary expenses in March and December.

Indian Support 'Disaster'—MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government actions in trying to create economic development for Indians border on criminal negligence, J.R. (Bob) Holmes, Progressive Conservative Indian affairs critic, said Wednesday.

Holmes, calling the government's eight-year-old economic development program a disaster, said in the Commons that the Indian affairs department has squandered millions of dollars while Indian communities have been crying for help.

He accused the department of not having financial controls, of lacking a sound economic development policy and of knowingly making wrong decisions for political reasons. Its performance had destroyed its credibility.

"What is even more tragic, the perception has been created that the Indians involved in the ventures have failed. Nothing can be further from truth."

Holmes mounted the attack during debate on a Conservative motion condemning "the failure of the government to provide economic leadership to Canada's Indians." The motion, culmination of weeks of opposition question in committee, was for debate only and was not voted on.

Works Minister Judd Buchanan, replying in the absence of Indian Affairs Minister Warren Allmand, rejected the charges but said the economic development program had encountered problems. Buchanan was Indian affairs minister between 1974 and 1976.

The program had created 8,400 man hours of work in its first six years and the "Indian people in every region of this country have benefitted," he said.

Basically, the program was designed to encourage and aid work-starved native communities.

Firm Shifts To Toronto

MONTREAL (CP) — Northern Telecom Ltd. will transfer more than 100 employees from its international head office in Montreal to the Toronto office of a recently-formed subsidiary that runs its Canadian operations, a company official said Wednesday.

The company, which manufactures telephone equipment used by Bell Canada had announced last week that it is transferring 26 computer specialists from Montreal to Toronto.

The official said the company is "rationalizing its operations" by shifting jobs that involve only Canadian operations from Montreal to Toronto.

Quebec-Lalonde Clash on Health Role

By MARLENE SIMMONS

OTTAWA (CP) — In the glare of television lights Health Minister Marc Lalonde and Quebec Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure verbally duelled Wednesday over whether the federal health department is over-stepping its constitutional role.

But behind the closed doors of a two-day federal-provincial health minister's conference all went smoothly, insiders report. It went so smoothly that a concluding statement should be prepared by mid-day today several hours earlier than originally planned.

Among the subjects covered Wednesday were isolation facilities for quarantinable diseases; occupational health, health manpower planning, a national strategy for immunization and lifestyle strategies to fight cardiovascular disease, alcohol abuse and smoking.

Yet to be discussed are family planning, a report on abortion, federal-provincial consultations and health research priorities.

Earlier in the day the Quebec social affairs minister accused the federal health department of using cost-sharing programs to buy its way into health care areas constitutionally closed to it.

He said it "looks as if the Canadian government is justifying expansion of its civil service by going into fields not part of its jurisdiction."

Lazure said between 1970 and 1977 the federal health department expanded to 9,000 employees from 6,500 while at the same time the Quebec social services department declined to 3,000 employees from 3,400.

He said the federal department should limit itself to a coordinating role and "must not initiate new programs nor must it fund projects or become publicly involved in matters relative to health unless requested by a provincial government."

Lalonde replied that the federal health department's constitutional role extends far beyond co-ordination to include such responsibilities as the health of native people and the safety of food and drugs.

He defended the growth in the federal department, saying that increases had occurred only in branches concerned with native health and the health protection branch, which oversees the safety of food, drugs and medical devices.

Lalonde also expressed surprise at Lazure's rejection of proposed social services legislation, which would extend federal cost-sharing in health and social services.

He said neither Quebec Premier Rene Levesque nor Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau had objected to, it when it was discussed at recent first ministers' and finance ministers' conferences.

Winner folds . . . Mrs. Harbour on floor

WINNERS ALL TEARS FOR CAMERA

He told reporters and photographers to watch for the smiling faces of the Quebec winners as they received their cheques here Wednesday.

Ginette Grimard, seven fellow nurses and a friend from Sherbrooke shared a $1-million prize, and some of them smiled for the cameras. But most couldn't stop crying.

When Mrs. Robert Harbour of Rouyn-Noranda, whose husband also claimed one of the top prizes, was asked how she felt, she replied by passing out and bumping her head. It took several minutes and a little shot of cognac to get her smiling.

At least Glenn Duplessis of Montreal seemed to be happy. He and nine other employees of the Sherwin Williams paint company split one of the $1-million prizes.

Duplessis thought it amusing that his boss was afraid he and his fellow winners, employed in the same department, were going to quit. He had to reassure his boss that $100,000 was not enough for a 20-year-old to retire on.

Co-worker Bill Gourley thought it ironic that only a week ago he had been thinking he was fed up forking out $2 a week and never winning anything.

Deciding what to do with so much money seemed to cause more confusion than joy.

None of Quebec's big winners had made definite plans for the windfall, although one priority was new cars. Investing the money was also mentioned. So were vacations.

Quebecers won six of 12 $1-million prizes in the third Loto Canada draw.

Three other new millionaires are from Ontario, one is from New Brunswick and another from Saskatchewan. The last $1 million, for holder of ticket number 6411307, is so-far unclaimed.

Naming Names

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The televising of the crime documentary Connections by the CBC June 12-13 may have major implications in the precedent it has set for the news media, Bill MacAdam, the program's producer, said Wednesday.

"What fascinated news people was that we named names and, because of that, we received much more coverage than we perhaps deserved," MacAdam told a group of film-makers.

"The lawyers of the newspapers and media have been very timid in the past, partly because they, themselves, are responsible if they say yes. They don't want the costs of lawsuits," he said.

"We are very positive about any of the statements we made in the film and we are quite willing to go to court."

MacAdam said the documentary could have been released a year ago, but lawyers had to be satisfied everything it said or implied could stand up in a court of law.

MacAdam said a major breakthrough in the production was the waiving of CBC policy not to use hidden surveillance techniques such as night lenses, hidden cameras and body packs.

"We decided it was in the national interest to do the program this way," he said. "The people's right to know is paramount as opposed to the legal technicalities."

Gallo Plans Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Carmello Gallo, convicted of possessing more than $1.3 million in counterfeit American currency, has instructed his lawyer to sue the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for linking him with organized crime.

Gallo, 31, of Vancouver, lost an appeal in British Columbia supreme court earlier this week against a 4½-year sentence for possession of the counterfeit money.

His lawyer, David Nutall, said that despite the setback, his client had instructed him to sue the CBC for mentioning him in its series of broadcasts on organized crime.

Gallo, married and the father of three children, was charged after police found him loading a rented van with the currency, which amounted to 62,000 individual bills.

More French Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will fall apart unless the provinces promote equality of the country's two official languages, the federal government said in a policy paper.

The paper, tabled in the Commons by Secretary of State John Roberts, urged English-speaking provinces to improve services in French, especially by providing more French schools.

While the paper said the government believes all Canadians should have the right to send their children to a school in either official language, Quebec has the right to limit access temporarily to English schools because of threats to the French language in that province.

Regional Plan Re-Hashed Again

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

When is a "town centre" not a town centre? When it's a "special study area," it seems.

Regional planners and directors from Langford and Colwood stood up before the public again Wednesday night to explain their proposed community plan and ended up tripping a little over their terminology.

In what has to rank as the most democratic planning exercise ever conducted in the Capital district, residents in the so-called western sector were asked for about the sixth time to air their views on a plan which will govern development in that area for the next two decades.

About 70 people showed up at Belmont high school's cafeteria, less than half the number at some earlier meetings, to hear regional planner Peter Hammer explain how staff have tried to meet at least some earlier criticisms.

As before, there was the occasional tirade directed at directors Howard Drummond and Earl Pallister, producing more heat than light, but the majority of the audience listened, apparently satisified, or resigned, to the plan draft.

Among those taking what might be a final kick at the cat, the plan's "town centre" emerged as one target for the night.

Maps propose a "town centre" roughly bounded by Goldstream, Jacklin and Sooke Roads, but just what will happen there remained too vague for some in the crowd.

They pounced on Pallister when he said parts might end up as "conservation areas," arguing that's not what the name implied. In part, thery appeared to be venting their frustrations over trying to grapple with planning jargon and long-term theories which could end up affecting their own properties.

Hammer said the centre is to be a "special study area" and will itself by the subject of a secondary plan.

He stepped nimbly around another touchy subject when he said sewage collection systems are planned but how the sewage will be disposed of is a decision yet to be made. Albert Head residents in particular are opposed to a suggested long outfall off their shore.

More than once Hammer noted the community plan is not written in stone, will be reviewed regularly and changes in it require public meetings.

The meeting produced a rare public exchange between two levels of government bureaucracy after regional spokesmen had yet again blamed the highways ministry for dictating some aspects of road planning.

Out of the audience popped Bruce McEwan, with the highways planning staff, to challenge that claim. He said that a proposed road extention between Langford and Glen Lakes had been recommended by both a consultant and the region and the highways department was not dictating that move.

An irritated Pallister said he knew "for a fact we were dictated to" on some road planning. McEwan stood by his claim that the maps before the audience represented regional planning.

Hammer said the plan calls for development of south Colwood first, with the pace of it dictated by demand.

Shirley Wilde, spokesman for the Albert Head Ratepayers Association, argued economics should not enter into any debate on how sewage will be disposed of.

"To hell with the cost. Do it right the first time around," she said.

Hammer disagreed. Sewage dispoal "is a question of what's tolerable for the environment and what people can afford," he said.

METEORITE PICKED UP

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Marines have airlifted a three-ton meteorite — the second largest ever found in the United States — from a rugged canyon in the Old Woman Mountains and delivered it to the Bureau of Land Management.

The heavy duty helicopter from Santa Ana MCAS ferried the nickel-iron object from the remote desert area 170 miles east of Los Angeles to a flatbed truck which carried it to the BLM offices in Riverside.

After being on display for two weeks, the meteorite will be shipped to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.; where scientists plan to slice it open for study.

Pearkes Arena Bar

Saanich could have a bar installed at the G. R. Pearkes arena before the end of the year.

Ald. John Mika proposed a bar be installed several weeks ago and recreation administrator Bill Young says it could be done while a heated lobby area is under construction this summer.

Ambassador Killed

RANGOON (Reuter) — France's ambassador to Burma, Francois Geoffrey Dechaume, has been killed said. The ambassador's wife and son were injured seriously when his car was involved in a head-on collision with a bus near the town of Taungowingyi, 200 miles north of Rangoon.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 17-year-old chose trial by judge and jury Wednesday in provincial court on a charge of criminal negligence causing death.

Scott Maclachlan, 2903 Ocean Bouleward, is charged with criminal negligence causing the death of 56-year-old Joan Marshall, late of 504 Hallsor Drive, on May 4.

The Colwood woman was struck by a pickup truck which went out of control and mounted a sidewalk near the intersection of Sooke Road and Colwood Crescent about 3 p.m. May 4. She died at Victria General Hospital a few hours later.

Two young men facing a total of nine charges applied for bail but only one was successful.

Colin Hugh Bishop, 18, of 14 Logan Drive, and Roderick Edmund Tateham, 20, of 535 Niagara, are charged with three counts of mischief causing wilful damage, two counts each of auto theft and possession of stolen autos, and one count each of breaking and entering and theft under $200.

The pair first appeared before Ostler on Tuesday and were charged with the auto theft and possession of stolen auto charges arising from incidents in Colwood and Victoria earlier that morning.

When they reappeared Wednesday for their bail applications, five new charges were read, all from Shawnigan Lake and all relating to the same day as the original four charges.

Crown counsel Richard Anthony did not oppose the release of Bishop, represented by lawyer Sheryl Dunn, but objected to the release of Tateham, represented by lawyer Jasper Bomhof.

Bishop was allowed to go free on his undertaking to appear, but Ostler denied bail to Tateham.

Ostler remanded both men until next Wednesday for election of trial method.

Thomas Rudolph Boge, of 149 Burnside, pleaded guilty and Anthony told the court Boge and two friends broke a 5 by 10-foot window valued at $400 and entered the premises, where they took 33 cartons of cigarettes valued at about $200.

The presentence report was ordered for July 14, when Boge is expected to be sentenced.

Robert James St. Dennis, 23, of 3924 Onyx Drive, pleaded guilty to having a blood-alcohol content over .08 May 23 and was fined $400. The offence took place in Port Alberni and was waived to Victoria for disposition.

Break Away from Daily Routine

Today, I'm devoting this space to the at-home woman.

Who is she, you ask?

The facts I'm going to present emphasize she is the woman who for one reason or another has pushed aside outside interests to give full time to her home, her husband and her children.

In doing so she has become locked-in to daily routine.

Her mind is active. She's interested in what's going on in the world around her, but she finds little opportunity to share her thoughts outside the home.

What this woman needs from time to time, is a change of pace.

A breathing space, if you'd like to call it that, in which to explore fields open to her as a person and not merely as a wife and mother.

That opportunity is to be given her in mid-July, when the community education services of Camosun College sponsors a week-long "summer college" for the at-home woman.

According to J. Alan Batey, director of the community education services branch, this is "something new" in the college program.

"It's designed in its entirety for women who seek a change from the responsibilities of the home," he says, "with the main object of refreshing their outlook, renewing their learning ability and interest and also their ability to express themselves."

How will such a program be presented?

"In an informal, friendly atmosphere," he explains, "with the focus on renewal of communication skills, discussion of significant issues and participation in updating sessions of special interest to the at-home woman."

There will be "no exams," he added, "just an opportunity to grow a little."

Arrangements have been made through a course in child care supervision at the college, to have complimentary baby-sitting service for children three to six years of age during the week of the summer college.

"This service will be available right on campus," Batey says, "and it will include the children's noon-day meal."

Dr. Don Edwards gives Cathy Corbett preview of microscope viewing for July program

Enlarging on imaginative ways in which the program has been planned, he tells you that during the mornings there will be "a many-faceted approach . . . that should result in an increased level of ability and confidence in communicating with others."

It is not planned to have women who attend the sessions merely sit and listen to lectures. "As soon as we can, we will have them taking part."

Middle of each day has been given over to what is named "a quiet hour".

This will allow "some uncommitted time" for browsing in the library "perhaps", or weather permitting, "for conversation, in small groups, out under the trees on campus, and for strolling and chatting around the gardens and lawns."

Simple no-host luncheons will be available in the college cafeteria.

Afternoon sessions will offer a variety of learning situations. A smorgasbord of experiences, is the way Batey describes it.

"We'll put them behind microscopes in the biology lab and give them a little understanding of the relationship between the food chain and environmental balances . . . this will be a largely practical learning experience with minimal theory content.

"We'll let them take a look at themselves through a practical approach to maintaining physical well-being through proper exercises, care of the skin and the part played by nutrition in physical well-being.

"Finally the matter of handling and controlling household financial matters will be dealt with. Such matters as shopping for credit, simple budget control, basic investment possibilities and other financial concerns likely to be faced by woman, will be discussed."

On the last afternoon there will be what Batey names as "a tea party", at which those who have completed the week's course will be given opportunity to evaluate the worth of the over-all program.

The whole exercise is geared to re-establish a feeling of self-esteem and self-confidence in the at-home woman, no matter what her age, Batey concludes.

"We hope it will prove extremely worthwhile."

Dates of this summer college are July 11 to 15 inclusive and the time, each day, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Pre-registration is important, as a limit of 25 has been set.

"If we are to involve these women in the discussions, make them feel adequate, put them at ease and give them a renewed feeling of self esteem, registration must be kept to a workable number," Batey explains.

Further information relative to the program may be obtained by contacting the director of community education services, Camosun College, in person or by telephone. The number is 592-1281, Local 221.

French Cooking School Offers Relaxed Schedule

PARIS (AP) — Daube de boeuf becomes "beef stew" at Lo Varenne, a relaxed French cooking school that features simultaneous English translation, and students paying $1,400 for a six-week course say they get their money's worth.

"French cooking needed teaching with as few barriers as possible, especially language," founder Anne Willan, and English-born American, said of her approach at La Varenne, where many courses are booked solid through next fall with 50 full-time pupils a week.

"We've had some terrible growing pains but things are running pretty smoothly now," she said of the school she set up in a transformed Paris bistro 18 months ago and at which many say rivals the prestige Cordon Bleu.

A six-week course at Cordon Bleu costs less but it doesn't include as many hours as at La Varenne, which takes its name from Francois Pierre de la Varenne, 17th-century father of French cookbook writing.

Mrs. Willan holds the Cordon Blue Grand Diplome and an MA in economics from Cambridge. She cooked for a while for the curator at Versailles, was food editor at Gourmet magazine and Washington Star, and wrote Entertaining Cooking.

Early problems included insufficient equipment and differences of opinion between younger and older students, but Mrs. Willan said, "People will always be the stimulus and the problem. We can buy new pots but dealing with people takes diplomacy."

Let Him Shoot Rats But You Stay Home

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been having a little domestic trouble so I finally got him to go to a marriage counselor with me. We were advised to take an interest in each other's hobbies. Well, I'm trying, but it makes me sick to go down to the city dump and shoot rats.

My husband gets into training for deer hunting this way, and that's how he spends every spare minute.

Abby, do I have to go along and join him in this sickening sport? I haven't got the heart for it. — GREG'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You not only haven't the heart; you haven't the stomach for it. Pack Greg a lunch, kiss him goodbye and wish him happy hunting!

DEAR ABBY: I am a teenager. Both my parents are deaf, but they are very intelligent. They can't HEAR, but they can speak fairly well and manage to communicate very well with friends and neighbors.

The problem is when we go to the store or travel somewhere, and people ask stupid questions, such as, "Can they read and write?" "Can they look after themselves, or must they always have someone with them?" Then they end up by saying, 'Take good care of your parents. They need your help."

Abby, I want all these people to know that my parents are not idiots. They are just like everybody else, except they can't hear! In fact their other senses are better developed because they're deaf.

My parents tell me not to let such questions bother me, but they do. Please print this so people will realize how dumb and mean such questions are. — BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: Most people don't mean to be unkind; they are simply uniformed and curious. But here's your letter, and I hope it helps.

DEAR ABBY: My brother spanks his 3-year-old son and will not allow the little guy to cry. If he cries, he gets spanked again and again. I have seen this go on for hours. (He says this will make a "man" out of him.) He also spanks the child much too hard.

My brother won't listen to anyone. And my sister-in-law doesn't do anything about it. Or maybe she can't.

What can I do? If I report my relatives to the authorities, and the child is taken from his parents' home, I'm afraid it might do him more harm than those spankings will. What can be done? This situation is worrying me to death. — SICK AT HEART

DEAR SICK: To be aware of such cruelty and do nothing is morally wrong. Your brother sounds as though he is desperately in need of treatment. And his wife couldn't be too well either to allow such goings on.

Phone Parents in Crisis (in Victoria), 656-4606) and tell them what you've told me. Your call will be confidential, and you need not tell them your name. And write again and let me know how it was handled. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17, but have always been very mature for my age. I am in love with a 24-year-old guy, but I have to see him behind my parents' back because they hate him without even knowing him. You see, he was married to a no-good runaround, has two children by her, and his divorce is not quite final yet, and my folks don't want me going with a guy who has had that kind of record.

Abby, you've got to believe me, he is a wonderful guy, and the messed-up marriage wasn't his fault. It was hers. Please tell me how I can get my parents to at least meet him and judge him for what he is.

LOVES THE GUY

DEAR LOVES: Assuming that this fellow is guiltless, I am wondering what kind of a "wonderful" 24-year-old guy, not yet divorced, would see a 17-year-old girl behind her parents' back.

Whole Wheat Loaf Lovely

Mary Moore

On a sunny Saturday morning late in April I visited St. Lawrence Market in Toronto with my friend Gwyn Solomon.

The place was packed with eager shoppers pushing carts and haggling over prices.

We stopped at a bakery stand stocked with hundreds of French loaves. Quietly Gwyn asked for a whole wheat loaf. The Italian clerk had to hunt on back shelves to find TWO small loaves. They were 79c each and measured 9x4x2½" but they were delicious.

I have tried to copy this recipe and with the unexpected help of one of our readers, Dorothy Hughson, have done so.

These loaves will make our genuine whole wheat bread lovers happy. They do not rise as high as an ordinary loaf of bread does but the flavor is delicious and when toasted heavenly.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

1 c. scalded milk
1 c. cold water
1 tsp. sugar (first amount)
2 tsp. granular yeast
2 tbsp. shortening
3 tbsp. sugar (second amount)
2 tsp. salt
½ c. wheat germ
3 c. whole wheat flour (preferably stone ground)
1½ c. all-purpose flour (divided)

In medium-sized pot scald milk. As soon as bubbles begin to form around edge remove from heat and add the cold water. Dip one cup of this diluted milk into a bowl. Add 1 teaspoon sugar, stir to dissolve and then sprinkle yeast over top. To milk in pot stir in shortening, 3 table spoons sugar and salt. Cover and let stand.

Into a very large bowl measure whole wheat flour, 1¼ cups white flour and wheat germ and mix. Probably by this time yeast liquid is foamy. Add yeast liquid in bowl to milk mixture in pot and pour all over the flours and with strong wooden spoon mix. Sprinkle kneading board with remaining ¼ cup white flour. Turn dough out on it and knead 200 times — about 10 minutes. Return to bowl. Put in cold oven. On shelf below place a large shallow pan ¾ full of boiling water. Close door. Let rise 1½ hours.

Then punch down dough and cut in half. Roll each half out to ½" thickness. Roll up like jelly roll and place in oiled loaf pans 8½x4½x2½" tucking in ends. Place in cold oven. On shelf below again place the large shallow pan replenished to ¾ full of boiling hot water. Close oven door. Let rise 1½ hours. Take from oven. Remove waterpan. Turn heat to 400 deg. Fahr. Bake bread 10 minutes then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes longer. These loaves are crusty and crunchy — so slice off a warm crust and butter and eat it on the spot. Be sure to hand a slice to every body in sight.

While it is not in reality a sandwich loaf we used it for liverwurst sandwiches here on the second day.

I made a second batch and toasted thick slices on the barbecue fire when we had shish kabobs. I handed some over the fence to my hungry neighbor too.

Cranberry Cocktail

2½ cups cranberry juice, well chilled
1 cup apple juice or rose wine

Combine cranberry juice and apple juice, or wine, in a pitcher; stir to mix well. Refrigerate, covered, until ready to serve. Stir again. Makes about 5 (5½ oz.) servings.

Light Up the Charcoal Grill And Have a Feast in the Sun

craig claiborne

NEW YORK — Warm weather stimulates al fresco appetites and, with the onset of summer, epicurean minds are irresistibly drawn to thoughts of charcoal-grilled foods and other delights of feasting in sunlight and shade.

Summer comes with the firing up of barbecue pits and the welcome scent of fat dropped from a choice steak onto the white-hot coals. And a plague on those who say that charcoal grilling is the scourge of fine meats.

It is a question of semantics (of a sort that is likely to besiege my mind on wakeful nights), but there is — or should be — a fine but distinct line between what are called grilled dishes and those that are barbecued. I maintain that grilling has to do with cooking foods on a grill. No sauce necessary. No seasoning for that mtter. Just foods cooked on a metal frame or its equivalent.

A barbecue depends on a sauce, a blend of ketchup, worcestershire sauce, butter and lemon juice. A sauce for grilled foods is something as simple as melted butter applied after the food is cooked. A barbecue sauce must be dabbed onto the food while it is grilled and afterward. And those ubiquitous rotisserie chicken are in no way "barbecued," as they are frequently purported to be. They're purely and simply spit-roasted.

It is an obvious conjecture, of course, to say that grilled foods (not barbecued ones — they came later with sophistication) were among the earliest known forms of cooking, ranking in time just after foods cooked directly over flame or coals. Legend has it that the first braziers were mongol helmets that were heated over a fire with the food cooked on their rounded crowns.

Both barbecued foods and grilled dishes require a good deal of care ond sensitivity to be done properly. It is not simply a question of throwing a hunk of beef, a chop or a chicken-half on the grill. Techniques, vary considerably, depending on what is being cooked. One of the first considerations is the grill itself. The metal should be scrubbed after each use and ideally it should be washed and drained and wiped dry. Foods to be cooked should be brushed or marinated with oil or butter or in a sauce containing one or the other to prevent their sticking to the grill.

Charcoal grilling calls for more practical judgment than almost any other form of cookery and a manual can only give a broad outline of the factors involved. Charcoal should be heated until a white ash forms. Generally speaking, the charcoal should be in one or two layers. The coals must be checked to make certain that heat emanates from them steadily.

A charcoal fire should be started well before the food is put on to cook. There are several factors to be considered where the fire is concerned:

The nature of the food to be cooked and how far it should be from the heat source.

Some foods demand intense heat and quick cooking. Such foods include very thin slices of meat such as a "paillard" of beef or veal. These are tossed on a very hot grill placed close to the firebed and the food might cook in one minute or less to the side.

Some foods demand moderate heat and are destined to be cooked for a reasonable length of time. These are foods such as a chicken split for broiling or a whole, cleaned, modest-size fish.

Some foods demand slow heat and prolonged cooking, frequently covered at times by the hood of the grill. These are foods such as spareribs and large portions of meat such as a loin of pork or a rump of beef. Long cooking is necessary to make them tender and well done.

SOUTHERN BARBECUED SPARERIBS

1 three-and-one-half-pound slab of spareribs
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
Southern barbecue sauce (see recipe).

1. Prepare a charcoal grill and have it ready. The coals must be overly plentiful or the food will cook too fast. Arrange the bed of coals from six to eight inches from the grill that will hold the food for broiling.

2. Cut the slab of spareribs in half, slicing between the centre ribs or leave it whole. Sprinkle all over with salt and pepper.

3. Arrange the spareribs on the grill and cook on one side about 10 minutes, turn and cook on the other side about 10 minutes.

4. Start basting with sauce. Cook, turning the meat and basting as necessary until the meat is tender and cooked through, about two hours more or less.

5. Give the spareribs a final brushing with the sauce and remove to a serving dish.

SOUTHERN BARBECUED CHICKEN

1 two-and-one-half-pound chicken
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 tablespoon oil or, preferably, softened lard
Southern barbecue sauce (see recipe).

1. Prepare a charcoal grill and have it ready. The coals must be white hot but not overly plentiful or the food will cook too fast. Arrange the bed of coals about six to eight inches from the grill that will hold the food for broiling.

2. Split the chicken in half for grilling. Place it skin-side up on a flat surface and flatten it lightly with a flat mallet. This will help it lie flat on the grill. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Sprinkle the chicken with oil or rub with lard.

3. Place the chicken skin-side down on the grill and cook until browned, about 10 minutes. Brush the top with barbecue sauce and turn. Brush the skin side with sauce. Continue grilling, brushing often with sauce. Continue cooking until chicken is thoroughly cooked, 30 minutes or less.

4. Give the chicken a final brushing with the sauce and remove to a serving dish.

SOUTHERN BARBECUE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons cider vinegar
¼ cup water
1½ cups tomato ketchup
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon Tabasco sauce or more to taste
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
3 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes
½ bay leaf
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon paprika
1 lemon.

1. Combine the butter, vinegar, water, ketchup, Worchestershire, Tabasco, garlic, oil, salt, pepper, red pepper flakes, bay leaf, sugar and paprika in a sauce. Add the juice of the lemon and quarters and add it.

2. Heat thoroughly without boiling. Use to baste chicken, fish, spareribs and so on as they are grilled. This sauce will keep for days, tightly sealed in the refrigerator.

Yield: About 2¾ cups of sauce.

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: My husband and I are moving into our first home. We want to decorate it with plants, mostly because we love plants but also because our finances are low. Will you suggest some plants?—Barbara

Dear Barbara: Decorating with plants is beautiful, relaxing and healthy. I suggest that you invest in a few large plants, such as Ficus Benjamina, Ficus Elastica (rubber trees — what else?), Kentia palms or dracaenas. Large plants, rather than lot of small ones, create a fleeing of "greenery," and will be less work for you.

Dieffenbachias and schefflers grow to enormous proportions in good light. Hanging plants are excellent for creating a plant atmosphere. Shop around — we found some plant hangers made of shells in the dime store.

For a staggered effect, hang plants on chains of various lengths. Paint and pots and chains the same color as the ceiling for a professional look. There are so many to choose from — Pothos, grape ivy, ferns, kangaroo vines (antarticas).

Stick with hassle-free plants and buy wisely according to your light situation. Comb the junkshops and swap meets for colorful containers for the plants. Wall brackets, baker's racks, redwood shelves, all decorative, yet practical ways to live with the plants. Straw baskets, perfect with plants, can be purchased at import stores. (Set a waterproof saucer inside, cover bottom with pebbles and set in the plant.)

White walls reflect the light and complement the plants, so you might want to freshen up some areas with high gloss enamel. Sisal carpeting, available at import stores, is reasonable and looks like straw, but wears much longer. (We saw sisal plants growing in Africa.) The more natural, the better. If window coverings are necessary, try bamboo shades that can be adjusted to the light, or perhaps inexpensive sheer curtains.

GIBSON'S LADIES WEAR

QUICK MEAL . . .

There's a zesty, distinctive flavor to Texas cooking that sets it apart from any other part of the world.

To liven up quick summer meals, here are some tips for cutting an "S" or Twister-shaped hot dog.

For an "S" hot dog, make 6-7 slashes at ⅝-inch intervals on one side of a hot dog, cutting ¾ of the way through, working almost to the center of the hot dog. Make similar slashes on the reverse side.

For spirals, make slashes at ½-inch intervals, working down the length of the hot dog. Reverse, cutting slashes into opposite side of hot dog.

1 can (16-oz.) kidney beans or pinto beans
½ medium green pepper, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
¼ cup catsup
1 to 1½ teaspoons chili powder
½ teaspoon each: oregano, garlic salt
6 to 8 hot dogs
6 to 8 hot dog buns
¾ cup grated cheddar cheese

In saucepan, combine beans with liquid, green pepper, onion, catsup, and seasonings. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes, until thickened, adding a little water if necessary.

Cook hot dogs, cut into spirals or "S" shapes, in simmering water for 5 minutes, until thoroughly heated. Slit buns, but do not cut through. Place franks in buns and top with a generous portion of bean sauce. Sprinkle with cheddar cheese and enjoy. Makes 6-8 servings.

Diet on Favorite Foods

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Free For The Asking

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

Whenever we tell dieters that they can eat most — if not all — of their favorite foods and still keep their weight under control, we usually get a pretty skeptical response. A Boston woman summed this up when she asked: "How do you square such a statement with your warning that calories DO count, and you can't lose weight if you ignore this basic fact?"

Actually, dieting is a combination of counting calories and preparing an serving foods, saving the natural nutrients and flavor without loading them with unnecessary calories, such as those found in fats and sugar. And once you've learned a few basics of calorie-conscious food preparation, you can go on a weight-reduction diet without feeling deprived of your favorite foods, even if they are normally fattening. Here's how it is done.

1. KNOW YOUR CALORIES. Hang a calorie chart on your kitchen wall or refrigerator door. Note that many of the foods generally presumed to be fattening really are not that high in calories, and are highly nutritious. A good example is the much-maligned potato, which many weight-conscious people avoid. A baked potato (two and a half inch diameter) served with pepper and chopped chives contains only 100 calories, and is a good source of protein and vitamins B1 and C. But you double the calories and cut the amount of vitamin C in half by French frying that same potato Moreover, if you mash it with milk and butter, you destroy a third of the vitamin C; you gain some vitamin A but you also gain 150 calories and substantial amount of saturated fat. And if you turn the same size potato into hash browns — the type you often get with breakfast in diners and restaurants — you can easily consume 500 calories with barely a fraction of the nutritional value of the baked potato.

2. REDUCE FAT CONSUMPTION. In North America, about 40 per cent of our total calories are consumed in the form of fats (we'd be better off with 25 to 30 per cent). A great deal of it is the saturated fats found in meats, many convenience foods, and whole-milk dairy products. The most practical way of reducing fat consumption is to use margarine and vegetable oils instead of butter and hard shortening, to trim all meats and to avoid well-marbled steaks, fatty hamburgers, hot-dogs and cold cuts. Use a broiler pan or roasting rack to allow the fat to drain off during cooking. Skim the fat from stews and gravies. (An easy way of doing this is to chill and then simply lift off the congealed fat that forms on the top.)

3. CUT SUGAR CONSUMPTION. About a fourth of the average North American's calories are consumed in the form of sugar, which has no nutritional benefits, and because of the calories is a contributory factor in obesity, dental caries an perhaps diabetes. You can cut sugar — and still satisfy a sweet tooth — by substituting fruit for high-calorie cakes, cookies and other pastries. Avoid the sugar-coated cereals, and when buying canned fruit select varieties that are packed in their own juice rather than a sugar syrup.

Learn to drink tea or coffee without sugar — a bit of lemon in tea or a stick of cinnamon or a nutmeg in coffee will give you a calorieless, yet flavorful and refreshing beverage. You can save 20 to 40 calories per unsweetened cup, and if you drink an average of four or five cups of coffee or tea a day, this adds up to 10 or 20 pounds a year!

4. EAT SMALLER PORTIONS. Most of us tend to overload our plates, especially with meat (eight or 10 ounces of steak, for example, when half that amount would suffice). Buy thin-sliced breads and serve smaller portions of pasta, desserts and meats, balanced with more generous helpings of vegetables, salads and fruits. This will reduce total calorie consumption without making you feel "starved" or deprived.

5. WATCH WHAT YOU DRINK. Here's where many a calorie-conscious dieter goes astray. A couple of cocktails before dinner can easily add up to 300 calories or more. For example, a gin an tonic has about 200 calories, a Tom Collins or whiskey sour, 225 calories each. Sweetened fruit drinks tend to be very high in sugar and calories and low in nutrition unless they have been fortified with vitamins. Pure juices, such as orange, tomato and unsweetened grapefruit and apple juices, are better bets, both nutritionally and as calorie savers.

6. HOLD THE SAUCES. Rich gravies and sauces, as well as mayonnaise and certain other salad dressings, can add calories without making notable nutritional contributions. By substituting herbs, lemon juice, spices and other low-calorie flavorings, you can enhance taste and save calories.

7. WATCH YOUR SNACKS. To many North Americans, snacks mean fattening "junk" food, such as potato chips, cookies, candies and other sweets. But "good" snacks can ease hunger pangs and add nutrition without loading calories. Try snacking with raw fresh vegetables—broccoli, carrots, cauliflower, green peppers and many more — plus a generous assortment of fresh fruits. You'll never miss the usual potato chips and cookies.

These are but a few of the simple ways that you can cut calories at your table. If you follow any of these tips, you'll see why we say you don't have to starve to diet — all it takes is some careful calorie counting.

Nearly everybody seems to be travelling these days, either for pleasure or on business. However, if you precede your trip by careful planning on where to go, how to get there and what clothes to take, you will avoid a lot of problems.

The 24-page "Travellers Handbook" explains the various preparations required for a trip. More than half of the book contains advice on how to pack and repack.

It recommends, for instance, to pack in sections rather than layers. Put all your lingerie in one corner, sportswear in another and so on. This method results in fewer wrinkles and makes repacking easier.

With the help of illustrations the booklet shows you what a correctly packed suitcase should look like. Even experienced travellers can pick up a hint or two!

By LESTER COLEMAN, MD

My wife has always been an easy fainter. When she becomes emotional and upset, out she goes. I notice that this is happening more often lately, even under other circumstances. What can be done about it?— Mr. D. B.

Dear Mr. B.:

The mechanics of fainting are simple. When an insufficient amount of blood flows to the brain, some variations of these symptoms, and fainting, occur.

Not to be overlooked, especially in emotionally unstable people, is the possibility that there are other reasons for fainting. The fact that the frequency of these episodes is increasing means that the exact cause should be investigated as soon as possible.

It takes a great deal of ingenuity on the part of the doctor to uncover the cause of fainting. An exact history will reveal if fainting is related to alcohol intake, drugs, poor eating habits, too long intervals between food, excessive bleeding during menstrual periods, bleeding from a stomach ulcer, excessive fatigue, marked low blood pressure or unexpressed fears.

Blood studies, including blood sugar tests, electrocardiograms and electroencephalograms are only some of the tests that should be done in an effort to find the cause. Neurological examination may also be helpful.

If no organic disorder is found, then some thought should be given to the possibility of psychological study and support, to see if this will modify the frequency of your wife's fainting spells.

National Noise Law Needed?

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will have no national noise program until someone can convince the federal government that one is needed, an environment department official said today.

Fred Macenko, the department's noise control chief, was responding to a recent announcement by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency which plans to set noise standards for household appliances and issue noise-level labels for machines such as vacuum cleaners and air conditioners.

Macenko said the subject of noise pollution is currently under study in the department and he should know within the next six months if some serious recommendations will be made to Environment Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

He said a major problem in preparing a national noise program is that noise covers many federal departments and different levels of government.

"For example, the federal Motor Vehicle Safety Act has promulgated regulations for noise emission controls, and the department of labor has set noise standards for federal employees at work stations. Then the department of health must get in the act, and the National Research Council is doing the research. In addition to all of this, the provinces and municipalities have certain responsibilities about noise."

Even a Bra on Heiress Auction Block

INDIANAPOLIS — The estate of slain grocery store heiress Marjorie Jackson went on the auction block Wednesday and thousands of curiosity seekers turned out to bid on everything from her Cadillacs to her bras.

Estate lawyer Francis Feeney said the gold-inlaid teeth were needed as evidence in a civil matter — litigation of $200,000 dental bill presented to the estate.

She had the bird for 35 years, and after he died the eccentric heiress saved his feathers, which were sold by the handfull to many of the estimated 10,000 persons who showed up for the auction.

"It looks like she never threw anything away," one auction worker said.

The property came on the market through a court order as a result of the slaying discovered May 7. Mrs. Jackson was found dead in a home cluttered with possessions and still containing $5 million cash overlooked by her killers.

Auctioneer Earl Cornwell let the bidding begin after crowds streamed through a steady drizzle to get to the huge tent he had set up at his auction house.

Among the items sold were Mrs. Jackson's used linens, underwear and a wedding ring. At one point Cornwell held up a batch of clothing and said it contained a "double barrelled slingshot" — a brassiere. It sold for $17.

The crowd was largest when Cornwell sold the Cadillacs, including one Mrs. Jackson garaged for good with only 37 miles on it because the windshield wiper worked poorly. The cadillac went for $14,000 — more than the original price.

Another Cadillac was sold to a lawyer's wife for $12,500 — $3,500 more than her husband had told her to spend.

"I just wanted it because it belonged to . . . Mrs. Jackson," the buyer said. "She made all the headlines."

Thriller Solves Baby Mystery

LONDON — Agatha Christie's detective story The Pale Horse saved the life of a 19-month-old girl dying of a condition that baffled London doctors, the British Journal of Hospital Medicine says.

The Arab baby was flown from Qatar, on the Persian Gulf, for treatment and was semi-conscious when admitted to London's Hammersmith Hospital.

Despite intensive care, her blood pressure increased, her breathing became increasingly difficult and she appeared on the brink of death, but the doctors could not diagnose her illness.

As the doctors were making their morning rounds of the wards, nurse Marsha Maitland suggested that her tiny patient might have been poisoned by a compound of thallium, a soft bluish-white metal whose salts are poisonous. Nurse Maitland said she was reading The Pale Horse and the baby's symptoms were remarkably similar to those of a thallium case in the book.

The doctors decided to test the theory. The doctors went to Scotland Yard, which referred them to a laboratory with equipment to do the testing and it confirmed thallium poisoning. The baby recovered after getting the right treatment.

The article in the medical journal suggests a thallium preparation had been used to kill roaches and rats around the child's home.

HUMAN FLY GROUNDED

NEW YORK — George Willig, the 27-year-old daredevil who scaled the 110-storey World Trade Centre last month, has assured a New York City judge his building-climbing days are over.

In return, Criminal Court Judge Milton Williams dropped criminal charges against the toy designer Wednesday.

Karen Anne Rallying

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. — Karen Anne Quinlan has rallied in her latest brush with death and her condition has stabilized, according to a close family friends.

The friends, who asked not to be identified, described Miss Quinland's condition as 'unpredictable," but added, "I don't think it's reasonable" to say she remains near death.

"Joe (Miss Quinlan's adoptive father) called and said Karen had a good night and she seemed relaxed," the friend said Wednesday. "She didn't seem disturbed."

Officials at the Morris View Nursing Home said Miss Quinlan suffered a relapse this week because of an infection.

She has been in a coma since April 15, 1975. In a landmark "right to die" case, her parents went to court to get the right to remove her from a life-sustaining respirator.

Haida Carver Honored

OTTAWA — Haida Indian artist William Reid and theatre directors John Hirsch and Jean-Louis Roux each received $20,000 Molson Prizes from the Canada Council Wednesday.

Reid, Vancouver painter, sculptor and gold-and-silversmith, was born in Victoria in 1920 of a Scots-German father and Haida mother, and uses the Haida motifs of the Queen Charlotte Islands in much of his work.

He designed and carved the Haida village built on the University of British Columbia campus in the early 1960s.

Roux, born in Montreal in 1923, began acting in his college days and in 1951 joined Jean Gascon in founding the Theatre de Nouveau Monde, of which he has been artistic director since 1966.

Ruling Imposes New Bargaining

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor relations board has ordered Ottawa Journal and five unions that have been locked out since last October to resume bargaining in good faith with the help of a mediator.

In a decision given Monday, the board found that the newspaper and the unions had not bargained in good faith and ruled that both sides must bear responsibility for the breakdown in negotiations.

A key issue during the dispute was the newspaper's plans for automation and the demand by Ottawa Typographical Union for continued jurisdiction over jobs under conditions of automation. The Journal rejected the demand and the unions refused the newspaper's contract offer.

The unions alleged The Journal had not bargained in good faith and asked the labor board to impose a contract and order the reinstatement of the workers with compensation.

The newspaper filed a countercharge that the unions had not bargained in good faith.

Donald Carter, board chairman, said both sides saw themselves in a fight for their survival.

The unions saw a plot by The Journal to destroy them and the newspaper saw a union plot to destroy The Journal in the interest of Ottawa Citizen but there was no evidence to support the allegations, Carter said.

The unions saw their existence and the jobs of their members threatened by the impending introduction of new work processes but to the employer such processes "were its salvation and the resistance to them came to be regarded as a plot to destroy its viability as a business enterprise and a threat to its power to manage the business," the board said.

Carter said the most serious allegation by the unions was that The Journal had embarked on a course designed to wipe them out. Evidence did not show any general design to eliminate the unions, he said.

The 25-page decision said breaches by both sides of the obligation to bargain in good faith contributed to the stalemate.

Carter said there was a failure to bargain in good faith in The Journal's refusal to bargain in the presence of the five-union council and its chairman James McCarthy, a reporter for the Citizen.

"There is not a single shred of evidence that McCarthy was in league with The Citizen to put The Journal out of business."

'Remember Pearl Harbor . . .'

HONG KONG (UPI) — Peking Radio, telling listeners to remember Pearl Harbor, is warning the Chinese people to be prepared for a possible "surprise attack" by the Soviet Union.

The official radio broadcast an article written by an army officer also recalling Hitler's attack on Poland and the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Although the article warned of possible surprise attacks by "imperialism and social-imperialism" and other "aggressors," it clearly indicated the Soviet Union was the biggest threat.

Bitter Rights Clash Mars Meeting of OAS

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (WP) — In a week of public frankness on the subject of human rights, members of the Organization of American States aired their grievances against one another in terms that left no doubt that the Western hemisphere is more profoundly and emotionally divided over this issue than over any other.

Nevertheless, the United States was able to muster enough votes Wednesday to have passed a strongly-worked resolution binding OAS members to preserve human dignity and freedom.

This year's eight-day OAS general assembly, which wound up work here Wednesday, saw Venezuela take on Latin America's rightist military governments and become the self-appointed human-rights standard-bearer.

The United States followed close behind in what one long-time OAS observer saw as "the first time U.S. representatives have taken a strong stand on anything here that was both positive and publicly and privately consistent."

Equally consistent in their opposition were the military governments of Argentina — which argued that an insistence on human-rights guarantees is an "obsolete liberal philosophy" for countries threatened by terrorist subversion — and Uruguay, which virtually accused the United States of orchestrating the international human-rights movements for its own purposes.

They were joined by Chile, which described its pledge to fight Communist subversion as "written in blood," and denounced criticism by such countries as Venezuela, which "don't have the guts to stand up and speak" about rights violations in leftist countries such as Cuba.

In terms of concessions, the meeting was a dialogue of the deaf, and positions became more unyielding as the week went on.

"We said it yesterday, we say it today and you may be sure, sir, that we will continue to say it in the future," Venezuelan OAS ambassador Jose Maria Machin told Chilean spokesman Sergio Diez in one heated exchange.

"You can achieve development and the happiness of all men . . . only within a Democratic system."

Air Accord Satisfaction

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. and British officials Wednesday expressed satisfaction with the terms of a new air transportation agreement hammered out in London just minutes before the old one expired.

In general, the new accord limits London-U.S. routes to one U.S. carrier and one British carrier each, except for New York and Los Angeles, which can have two each, adds to the number of U.S. cities connected to London by non-stop flights, and limits the authority of U.S. airplanes to pick up new passengers in London and Hong Kong on flights originating in the United States and carry them on to other cities in Europe and Asia.

The agreement also contains a mechanism designed to discourage carriers from adding new flights that might flood a route with an excessive number of seats — a prime British allegation — but at the same time allow carriers to increase the number of flights when a growing market appeared to justify it.

President Carter Wednesday said he was pleased with the agreement, which would insure that air service between the two nations "will continue to function in an atmosphere of healthy competition — an atmosphere which will benefit consumers and airlines alike."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of the recurring plays in bridge is the "Bath Coup." This play consists of the refusal to capture first hand's lead of the king when fourth hand's holding is the A-J-x. The purpose of this play is to force first hand to discontinue leading suit, thereby enabling declarer to retain control of the suit. Of course, if first hand elects to continue leading the suit, declarer, in last position, will win two tricks. In today' deal we can observe the Bath Coup in action.

	NORTH ♠ 653 ♡ A ◇ K J 9 5 ♣ A J 10 8 3
WEST ♠ K Q 10 9 ♡ Q J 8 5 2 ◇ 7 4 ♣ 7 6		EAST ♠ 8 7 2 ♡ K 10 9 7 6 3 ◇ 6 2 ♣ K 4
	SOUTH ♠ A J 4 ♡ 4 ◇ A Q 10 8 3 ♣ Q 9 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Had declarer captured West's opening lead of the spade king with his ace, he would have gone down. He would then have drawn trumps, after which he would have taken the club finesse, losing to East's king. East would have returned a spade, and South's remaining J-4 would have been trapped by West's Q-10. The defenders would then have made two spade tricks and one club.

But declarer correctly allowed West's spade king to win the opening lead (the Bath Coup). West was now in a losing position: if he led another spade, declarer would win two spade tricks. So West, at trick two, made the neutral lead of a low heart, dummy's ace winning.

The king and ace of trumps then gathered in the outstanding pieces. Next came the nine of clubs, and the finesse taken. East won with the king and played back a spade. Declarer put up his ace, after which he cashed the board's clubs, discarding his spade jack on the fifth club. The rest of the tricks were his.

Had West possessed the club king, then declarer would have a guaranteed contract no matter how he would have avoided losing a club. But half the time East figured to have the king—and by declining to win the opening lead, declarer was taking out insurance against East having the king of clubs.

As a final point, it is fortunate that North wasn't the declarer at a five-club contract, for if East had opened a spade at trick one, declarer couldn't avoid losing two spades and a club.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stick to factual material. Yes, it may be necessary to dig deep, to restablish basic foundations, promise made by fast-talking salesman is not to be taken as gospel. Lost article is located at home base. You'll see.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):: Be ready for change of scenery. Note or call from relative proves significant. Gemini, Virgo individuals play roles in your personal scenario. Money, vacation, future visiting for travel plans dominate. Yes, romance is here, too!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on costs, beautifying surroundings, family affairs, reunion with loved one. purchase of art object or luxury item. Yes, do review budget. Worry factor need not dominate. If you are diplomatic, you win. If not, you pay steep price. The choice is your own.

LIBRA (Sept. 23- Oct. 22): Define terms — maintain independent stance. Don't sell yourself short. Cycle high, but element of deception is present. Means protect self in emotional clinches. See people, situations in light of reality. New start in new direction proves successful. Pisces is involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Temporary restriction, confinement could be highlighted. Be aware of one who has suffered loss. Bring forth compassion, basic humanity. Cycle is favorable; some fears, doubts will be dispelled. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finish rather than begin project — find better ways of display and distribution. Aries, Libra persons play significant roles. Accent on romance, desire, fulfillment — taking steps to insure success of business endeavor. Yes, a friend can aid in achieving goal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message. Accent on career, business, standing in community, ultimate goal. independence, original approach. You gain major point. Key is to follow through, to know when to close deal. Imprint your own style. Be a self-starter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dig for information beyond the superficial. Face money facts, especially in connection with legal ties, partnership, marriage. Be flexible. Expand horizons without spreading yourself too thin. Gemini, Sagittarius figure in scenario.

IF JUNE 24th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you have "feeling" for music, unusual voice, ability to sway people by teaching, sharing. You're a natural diplomat, you make others feel secure. You're loyal to family, have "sweet tooth," a weight problem and you are attractive to opposite sex. Taurus, Libra persons play key roles in your life. August should be your most memorable month of 1977, a year which sees you broadening influence, seeking areas beyond previous limitations as you get rid of burden not your own in first place.

Time to Review Iris Plantings

In May the Dutch bulbous iris and the more difficult Iris innominata were in full bloom. Iris sibirica has just finished flowering. Iris versicolor with its richly veined blooms and I. pseudacorus are now in the spotlight, while the six-foot golden I. ochroleuca is standing by in the wings with the first flowers opening.

Although it is possible in a sheltered garden to have at least one species of iris in bloom every month of the year, excepting possibly August, at the mention of iris most gardeners have a mental picture only of Iris Germanica, the bearded German iris known for generations as 'flags".

The bearded iris in all its varieties blooms in June, and by the end of the month only tall stems with seed pods remain to give some indication of the color display of the past few weeks.

It is now that the home gardener assesses this year's display and decides whether it is time to remake the iris bed.

Bearded iris need lifting and replanting about once every five years. A decrease in flowers, spreading of the rhizomes, and bare leafless centres to each plant indicate time for action. The work is scheduled for the first ten days of July.

The rhizomes spread rapidly in search of better soil, so our first step is to remove the plants and rejuvenate the soil by adding plenty of humus. Manure cannot be used as humus for iris, and peatmoss is too acid. Only compost is suitable.

Tag each plant with its color, and locate a vacant spot in the shade of shrubs or trees where the lifted roots can be stored and work done on the old clumps.

As soon as the bed is cleared of plants, level the soil and cover with at least six inches of good compost. Thoroughly incorporate the compost to a depth of six to eight inches, water well, and leave the bed to settle.

Attention then centres on the piles of lifted plants. Wash all soil off the roots with water from the hose. Do this on a shrub border so the shrubs benefit from the soaking.

Examine each clump. The German or bearded iris belong to the rhizomatous group, the rhizomes being enlarged storage stems which grow half-in and half-out of the soil. Roots extend from the lower side and leaves are produced from one end. Only rhizomes with leaves attached are saved for replanting.

When this is completed, the knife is honed to razor sharpness for slashing the long leaves with two cutting strokes. Each stroke starts about four inches above the base of the leaves, first from one side, then from the other, the strokes terminating at a central point about 8 ins. from the leaf bases. This high point in the centre is made to avoid the cutting of the new leaves already formed in the centre of the fan.

Five to seven prepared rhizomes are replanted in a group about six to eight inches apart to give a good display next year. It is best to limit each group to one color.

When replanting the rhizomes must not be buried. They are placed on a mound of soil, half-in and half-out of the soil like a duck floating on water. The easist way to accomplish this is to make two holes, one sloping left, the other right, and after separating the roots down the centre of the rhizome, place it on top of the ridge with the roots spread down each side. Pack soil tightly around the roots.

It is extremely important that the leaf fan be placed to the north so that the rhizome receives full sun for baking during the summer months, otherwise flowering will be poor.

A final levelling of the bed, the chopping into small pieces of the discarded rhizomes, and the dumping of leaves and rhizomes on the compost heap, completes the job. The gardener than admires his handiwork and contemplates next year's improved display.

Broken Halyard Ends Cup Trial

NEWPORT, R. I. (Reuter) — The New York Yacht Club abandoned Wednesday's race in the America's Cup preliminary trials after Enterprise was forced to drop out because of a broken halyard.

The mishap occurred 12 minutes after the start of her race against Courageous on Rhode Island Sound. The halyard in question was holding up the yacht's mainsail.

The two yachts were racing in the strongest winds of the series — 18 to 20 miles an hour with higher gusts out of the northwest. But officials of the New York Yacht Club's America's Cup committee, said the wind just before the mishap had not been nearly strong enough for his committee to consider calling the race off.

It was announced that the same two yachts, Enterprise and Courageous, would race again today while Independence, the third boat in the trials, gets an extra day off.

Enterprise has a 3-1 record against Independence while Courageous, which successfully defended the America's Cup in 1974, is 4-0 against both Enterprise and Independence.

Corcoran Dies

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Veteran golf executive Fred Corcoran, former tournament director of the International Golf Association, died today at White Plains Hospital. He was 72. Corcoran suffered a stroke Sunday in his home in Scarsdale, N.Y.

Hobday Outlawed

LONDON (Reuter) — Simon Hobday, who was born in southern Africa and has played most of his tournament golf there but insists he is not Rhodesian, has been rejected in a bid to join the British Ryder Cup team for its matches in September agains the United States.

Ken Schofield, secretary of the European tournament players division of the British Professional Golfers Association, said Hobday's requested that he be declared eligible for the team has been turned down for this year.

The leading amateur on the British circuit, Hobday says he is a British citizen and not a Rhodesian, as the British government has ruled. As a Rhodesian, he would be affected by government sanctions against nationals of the outlaw African country.

FOUR EVENTS IN BIKE MEET

Top-flight competitors will compete in the "A" class over 160 kilometres while the others will vie in "B" (106 km.), "C" (70 km.) and novice-veterans (30 km.) events.

Galento Loses Part of Leg

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxer Tony Galento, 67, who has been suffering from diabetes for several years, has had his left leg amputated at midcalf.

A few hours after his operation, Galento was talking about leaving the hospital and starting to work with young Italian light-heavyweights from Orange, N.J.

"Tony is tough: he's strong," said Dr. Victor Parsonett, who performed the operation. "He's already undergoing physical therapy and very soon he'll be fitted with an artificial limb. He'll be walking better than he was before."

Eben Gives Argos Fits

By The Canadian Press

Eben, the veteran wide receiver released by the Argonauts two weeks ago for being too slow, scored two touchdowns Wednesday night to lead Hamilton Tiger-Cats to a 21-12 exhibition win over their Eastern Football Conference rivals.

The win was the second in two games for the Ticats, who lost their first six games of the season in 1976, including two regular-season games. The Argos have a tie and a loss in their first two starts.

In other Canadian Football League pre-season games Wednesday night, Winnipeg Blue Bombers beat Saskatchewan Roughriders 27-19.

His second touchdown, on a 28-yard pitch from Tom Shuman, sent the Ticats into a 13-8 lead late in the second quarter before 20,061 at Hamilton's Ivor Wynne Stadium.

Newcomer Dave Pegg of the University of Windsor accounted for the other Hamilton points, converting both of Eben's scores and adding field goals of 30 and 17 yards and a 32-yard single.

Running back John Harvey scored the Toronto touchdown on a 75-yard pass-and-run play with Matthew Reed on the first Argo offensive series of the game. Zenon Andrusyshyn converted the touchdown and added a 10-yard field goal and two singles, both off missed field-goal attempts of 38 and 35 yards.

Veteran Roughrider quarterback Ron Lancaster gave way to Eric Guthrie, who was unable to mount a serious attack. Harry Knight was the Winnipeg quarterback in the first half, leading the team to two field goals.

Molly McGee got the first Saskatchewan touchdown as the second quarter opened, scrambling six yards. Then Lancaster surprised every one with a gamble on a third-and-one situation. Instead of rushing for the yard, he threw 27 yards to Tom Campana in the end zone.

Teachers' Union Loss Appealed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress and the B.C. Federation of Labor will appeal to the B.C. Labor Relations Board a provincial government bill which decertifies a union representing teachers at the recently-closed Notre Dame University in Nelson.

The appeal, to be based on a B.C. Labor Code guarantee of successor rights for unions whose members' employers go out of existence, was announced Wednesday at a news conference called by the CLC, the federation, the Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT) and the Faculty Association of Notre Dame University (FANDU).

Dr. Vince Salvo, president of FANDU, said that representatives of the 23 unemployed professors will spend today in Victoria lobbying the Social Credit and opposition caucuses.

The teachers want jobs at the proposed David Thompson University Centre, which will use the NDU facilities at Nelson. They also want the government to reinstitute third- and fourth-year courses, cancelled with the closure of NDU.

The legislation, introduced June 16, terminates the FANDU certification under the provincial labor code.

Education Minister Pat McGeer has said the government views FANDU as a stumbling block in its attempts to change the role of the university.

FANDU, an affiliate of the CLC, is the only certified labor union representing faculty in a B.C. university. But Ron Lowe, western regional officer of CAUT, said that more than half of that union's 26,000 members across Canada are represented by certified labor unions.

Salvo said the University of B.C. and Simon Fraser University faculty associations bargain collectively, although they are not certified, and that the University of Victoria's Faculty Association has applied for certification.

He said McGeer must be misinformed if he believes that all coast universities are reluctant to move in with third- and fourth-year programs in Nelson because of fears they would be required to hire the 23 unemployed professors.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said Wednesday he had reviewed the section carefully but sees it as "purely an educational issue."

It was a unique situation, he said, where a union had to be cleared out of the way as a complement to action taken by the government.

He said he didn't see it as precedent-setting or as a takeover of Labor Code responsibility.

School District Phys Ed Chief Receives Award

George Grant, former physical education supervisor for the Greater Victoria School District, has been awarded the R. Tait McKenzie Award for his work in physical education.

He received the award at the annual conference of the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation held in Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

Grant was appointed physical education supervisor in 1946 and held the post until his retirement five years ago.

2 CUPE Locals Ratify Contract

Two more locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have ratified a two-year contract with municipal employers.

Greater Victoria School Board inside staff and Oak Bay civic employees voted Wednesday night to accept the package bringing the total of locals approving the agreement to four.

School board outside workers have rejected the tentative agreement and Saanich employees are voting tonight.

The contract provides a six-per-cent increase in the first year and four per cent in the second. The school board workers have turned it down because it does not contain a "no-contracting out" clause.

Juvenile Policy Protested

The city of Victoria may not renew the provincial government's lease on the Cook Street juvenile detention home if the city-owned building is used as a containment centre for hard-core juvenile offenders, Ald. Helen Beirnes said Wednesday.

Beirnes, chairman of the Greater Victoria Family Court Committee, was commenting on Attorney-General Garde Gardom's announcement Tuesday that the Victoria home would accommodate 10 such offenders for sentences up to two years.

Beirnes said the city rejects the policy of housing hard-core offenders alongside juveniles "who may or may not go to court," and will do everything possible to prevent that happening.

She said she has written numerous letters to the attorney-general informing him of the city's belief that the two types of juvenile inmates must be separated.

"He's just ignored our wishes and I don't believe any government should be allowed to ignore th wishes of a community."

IWA 'Hosed'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anti-inflation guidelines will hold total compensation increases for International Woodworkers of America members to not more than six per cent this year, according to union spokesman Syd Thompson.

"It is not a good situation at all this year because of the anti-inflation board," Thompson told a meeting of the Vancouver and District Labor Council.

Thompson said AIB guidelines will hold IWA members to increases of not more than six per cent, while the cost of living is rising at a rate of between seven and eight per cent.

"Our wages will be going backwards," he said.

Thompson's remarks were made on the eve of serious bargaining sessions between the IWA and the forest industry for a new master contract covering 28,000 coastal woodworkers. Both sides have been meeting sporadically since April 18 with little progress reported.

Thompson, president of the IWA's Vancouver local, said the union will announce the result of its region-wide strike vote on Friday with a majority of more than 90 per cent expected.

"Within a week or 10 days, we will have some idea of where we stand and what kind of problem we're facing," he said.

Although the master coast agreement expired at midnight June 14, all union members have remained on the job while negotiations continue.

The IWA's original contract demands included a $1-an-hour general wage increase and a total package boost of 30 per cent over one year. The current base rate is $7.01 an hour.

Thompson said a main goal of the union may be the establishment of one union pension plan covering all members between B.C. and Manitoba.

There are currently three plans — one for Coastal woodworkers and IWA members in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, one for B.C. northern interior woodworkers, and a third for southern interior woodworkers in the province.

Vander Zalm Abolishes Last Resources Board

Legislation abolishing the Vancouver Resources Board, the last of the NDP-established resources boards left in B.C., was introduced Wednesday by Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

The Community Resources Boards Amendment Act, 1977, specifies that as of Wednesday, all Vancouver Resources Board (VRB) transactions must be approved by the director of social services in the ministry of human resources.

Vander Zalm said he's abolishing the VRB to increase the accountability of the social services in Vancouver to his ministry.

"We do not need the VRB," he said. "We cannot afford that luxury."

Vander Zalm said the average Vancouver-area resident using social services through the VRB, won't notice the change.

But Ron Fenwick, chairman of the VRB, said the board's abolition will unleash a storm of citizen protest.

Fenwick said the great advantage of the VRB is the availability of the policy makers, who meet at least twice a month in public so individuals and community groups can bring their problems directly to them.

"The community of Vancouver is going to resent the takeover and the service is going to degenerate if the policy is going to be set in Victoria by the bureaucratic structure," he said.

Ald. Harry Rankin, who was VRB chairman for two years, said he was not surprised by the move.

"Vander Zalm's philosophy is clear — he wants to save money and the way to do that is by being directly in control," he said. "Mr. Vander Zalm has resolved to reverse the trend of giving something to the people and is looking after his rich friends."

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said he will recommend the federation meet union representatives of the board and other community groups to find ways to per-

S.A. POLICE SHOOT BACK

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Police shot and killed one black and wounded another in Soweto today and arrested about 130 others in central Johannesburg as black students protested the continued preventive detention of their leaders by South Africa's white government.

Police sources said large groups of students were gathering all over Soweto, the segregated township of more than one million blacks.

OTTAWA HOLD BACK

25% Bond Penalty Without Number

By KEN POLE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Failure to present a social insurance card after July 1 when cashing interest coupons from any kind of bond will result in the cashing agency holding back 25 per cent of the money.

This will not be refunded until the person files an income tax return the following year. And, when it is refunded, it will be without any interest, according to advertisements placed by the revenue department.

"This new procedure," the ads explain, "has become necessary because some taxpayers have not been reporting the full amount of bond interest received."

Officials at National Revenue were unable to say how big a problem it has become "because that's like asking how many people got away with it." It was, however, "a significant number," enough for the government to spend a fair amount of money on it advertising.

They were unreceptive to the argument that not everyone who has title to bonds also has a social insurance number, such as wives and, in some cases, children.

"There's absolutely no reason why they shouldn't have numbers; even children can have them too. Look at it as an incentive for the individual to have a SIN."

It's true that the majority of Canadians have SINs — 18 million have been issued since the program began in 1964.

Virtually every one of them still is active although about a million of these are registered as being held by dead people.

That might sound strange, but it evidently comes in handy for pension plans that pay out benefits to survivors.

And, as far as children are concerned, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association requires all its players to have a SIN, as do more and more school boards for their students.

At least one province — Prince Edward Island — has even gone so far to require that its residents be issued a number at birth.

"Everyone is using it as an identifier," says an Unemployment Insurance Commission spokesman. "Why shouldn't the government?"

A logical question, but critics see something dehumanizing and distasteful about it, regardless of how the statisticians love it. Everyone in his or her neat little slot in society, filed away for future reference.

"Pretty soon," said one official, without a hint of a smile, "you won't be able to open a bank account, get a driver's licence or maybe even buy government bonds without one and I suppose it's conceivable at some point down the road where you wouldn't be allowed to sign a lease or buy property without it."

DOUR VICTORIANS GET 20,000 SMILE BUTTONS

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The provincial government is distributing up to 20,000 smile buttons in the Victoria area in hopes of turning dour Canadians into bubbly Americans.

There will be smile placemats distributed to restaurants and smile advertisements in the media — all to be launched by what is billed as a giant smile rally 3 p.m. Wednesday in Centennial Square.

Conceived by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy and organized by provincial convention director John Plul, the promotion is designed to make tourists feel welcome.

The buttons read: "We have a special smile for you" with the "smile" in big letters.

"The program will really get rolling after the rally on Wednesday," Adamson said.

"The mayor (Mike Young) has agreed to be there and Mrs. McCarthy will also speak.

"Vancouver is having a similar rally at 8:30 a.m. Monday but I held out for an afternoon meeting. Quite frankly I don't feel like smiling at 8:30 Monday morning."

Adamson said he is urging Victoria hotels and restaurants to give some staff members an hour off work Wednesday to attend the rally.

"We would like to see a crowd of people there in waitress uniforms or whatever they work in. We hope there will be 1,000 people there."

Adamson said Americans complain because Victorians are "too dour and unhappy looking."

By wearing a smile button, he said, thousands of them may remember to be more open and welcoming when dealing with visitors.

"When you wear a smile button you have to smile. If you wear the button and look like a grouch, a visitor will say — well, where's my smile? It (the button) will act as a conversation starter and will get a dialogue going.

"When you travel in the United States you see the difference. When you are in Californai and a bubbly girl comes over to take your order and she says 'How're y'all' or 'have a nice day,' you can't help but feel good. That's the feeling we are trying to capture in Victoria."

NEWS BRIEFS

Injunction Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Telephone Co. Wednesday applied for a B.C. Supreme Court injunction to prevent further picketing of the company's downtown office by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Union.

Talks Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — With negotiations stalled on money matters, the Letter Carriers Union of Canada has applied for a conciliation board to assist in contract talks with the government. The current contract expires June 30.

Superprize Won

DUBLIN (CP) — Gordon Curran of Tacoma, Wash., won the 250,000 pound ($430,000) superprize today in the Irish Sweepstakes draw for Saturday's running of the Irish Derby.

Crime Drops

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crime dropped 11.5 per cent during the first five months of 1977 compared with the same period last year, according to statistics released Wednesday by the city police department. Biggest decreases were in fraud, robbery and auto theft.

Laetrile Legalized

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) Gov. Edwin Edwards signed the bill making Louisiana the 11th state in the U.S. to legalize use of Laetrile by cancer patients, but added: "I'm absolutely convinced there is no scientific evidence whatsoever which supports the contention that laetrile either prevents or cures cancer."

SEVERE QUAKE DAMAGES TONGA

NUKUALOFA, Tonga (UPI) — A severe earthquake rocked the Kingdom of Tonga in the southern Pacific for three minutes around midnight Wednesday and sunk part of its wharf, authorities said today.

Police reported "several" injuries but no loss of life.

The U.S. National Earthquake Information Service measured the earthquake's intensity at 7.2 on the Richter scale, qualifying it as a major quake, and said it hit at about 8 a.m. EDT.

Severe damage was reported in the Vuna wharf area where the terminal building floor sank into the sea and the front of the wharf was cut off from the road and sank about two feet.

The side tower of the prime minister's residence was partly demolished and a tower on the Free Wesleyan church was also extensively damaged.

Damage to shops, government buildings and private residences is not yet fully assessed. The quake measured between 6 to 8 on the Mercalli scale indicating it could have caused: slight to moderate damage in well-built ordinary structures.

A South Pacific Island Airways plane was asked to fly over volcanic islands nearby to see if the quake had been triggered by a volcanic eruption.

Second Inmate Dead After Riot

Ernie Stefanuk, Victoria Union Hospital administrator, said the cause of death has not been established, but a post-mortem would be conducted.

An inquiry was opened and adjourned Wednesday into the death of another prisoner. Officials have said they suspect drugs were involved in both deaths. Names of the victims have not been released.

Herman Rolfes, Saskatchewan social services minister, said Wednesday he was considering a full-scale inquiry into the riot.

In a statement issued from his Regina office, Rolfes also commended city police, the RCMP and the prison guards for calmly handling a potentially explosive situation.

Authorities said a total of 24 prisoners were sent to hospitals suffering from drug overdoses.

The disturbance at the medium-security institution, which houses more than 300 prisoners, started shortly before midnight Tuesday night and ended Wednesday when the prisoners released the second of two guards taken hostage.

Simpler Land Laws

Attorney-General Garde Gardom Wednesday introduced a three-bill package designed to simplify and speed up the land dealing process in B.C.

The 115-page Land Titles Act will replace the 1921 Land Registry Act, streamline the registration process and phase in computerized systems at the province's land registry offices.

Gardom said the three-bill set, including the Land Titles Act, and amendments to the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act and the Execution Act, will not proceed beyond second reading stage at this session.

This is a procedure normally adopted with complex bills and gives the public the opportunity to study and comment on the legislation.

—Repeal of a requirement that a tax certificate accompany the transfer of land within municipal boundaries. It would be up to the purchaser to determine the state of the tax account;

—The Land Titles Survey Fund, created to offset excessive survey fees incurred by land owners through no fault of their own, will be increased from $10,000 to $100,000;

—A compulsory single-page form of transfer will be introduced;

An amendment to the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act provides for the abolition of some ancient rules affecting land transfers, one of them a "livery of seisen" which set up a common law procedure where a person could mark the transfer of land by such things as the delivery of a clod of turf, a twig or a key.

If Break-In Claim True Ottawa Will Act: PM

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday further action will be taken if there is truth to a former RCMP corporal's comment that illegal entry is nothing new to the federal police force.

Trudeau said in the Commons that the assertion by Jack Ramsay, who retired from the force in 1971, obviously contradicts assurances from former RCMP commissioner W. L. Higgitt that an illegal raid on the offices of a left-wing Montreal news agency in 1972 was an isolated incident.

"I am still going on the assumption that the RCMP acts constantly within the framework of the law and that the incident in Montreal was an aberration . . ." Trudeau said.

Ramsey, who lives in Wainwright, Alta., said in an interview this week that branches of the force specialize in lock picking, wiretapping and bugging.

In 1971, he said, the rules were changed so that an installation requiring a break into premises needed approval from the commissioners office.

Meanwhile, a Liberal source told United Press International that the government will call an election if the Conservatives move adjournment of Parliament on grounds debate about RCMP activities prevents it from working.

In the Commons Wednesday, Trudeau firmly rejected opposition demands for a federal inquiry into the allegations, saying Parliament is able to deal with a large part of the issue.

FLQ HIJACKING RAID MOTIVE?

TORONTO (CP) — The Sun says police sources have confirmed that the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) planned to hijack an Air Canada jet in 1972 and hold its passengers for ransom in exchange for the release of FLQ terrorists in prison in Montreal.

In an Ottawa story, the newspaper says the planned hijacking explains why members of three police forces, including the RCMP, broke into a Montreal building containing the offices of a left-wing news agency Oct. 6, 1972.

The Sun says it also explains why a judge last week praised the "noble and disinterested" motives of the three top-ranking officers who ordered the illegal break-in.

The Sun says police had placed an informer among the jailed terrorists.

The story says the informer told police a DC-8 would be hijacked between Dorval and Ottawa and held on the ground in Ottawa until the federal government agreed to free the FLQ terrorists.

The newspaper says the federal government knows the reasons for the break-in, but has been unwilling to come to the defence of the police forces.

However, it also says a second objective in the break-in was to prove a link between terrorists abroad and terrorists in Quebec and their relation with at least one foreign country, Cuba.

Gasoline to Rise 14 Cents

OTTAWA (CP) — Gasoline will rise by 14 cents a gallon and heating oil by 12.4 cents in the next two years as a result of higher crude oil prices announced today by Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie.

The minister said in a Commons statement the increases will come in four six-monthly stages starting July 1. Passing the increases along to consumers will be delayed 60 days beyond those dates.

Natural gas prices will increase by 17.5 cents a thousand cubic feet effective Aug. 1 and a further 17 cents next Feb. 1. Further increases for 1978 will be discussed with the Alberta government, the major producer, next spring.

The price of crude oil will increase by $1 a barrel this July 1. Gillespie said the oil companies will again be asked to delay passing the increase along to consumers for 60 days to use existing stocks of lower price products.

Further crude oil increases will come next Jan. 1, July 1, 1978, and Jan. 1, 1979.

Gillespie also confirmed in his statement the federal government intends to offer a national program to help insulate existing housing.

The program, to be outlined Monday, will cost about $1.5 billion in the next seven years. Homeowners will be offered grants and loans to help pay for the insulation.

Vandals' Naphtha 'Bombs' City

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A series of explosions, apparently triggered by 3,000 gallons of a highly volatile liquid dumped by vandals at a strike-bound rubber plant, roared through part of the city's sewer system today.

"Those streets look like they were bombed," Lt. Robert E. Lord, of the Akron Fire Department, said.

There were no reports of injuries although a section of the west side of the city was evacuated as a precautionary measure, said police dispatcher Sgt. Hugh Bennett.

Lord said the liquid, naphtha, which is used in the repair of tires, was traced to the Patch Rubber Co. where employees are on strike.

"The owner called us this morning and said three, thousand gallons of naptha, which is highly volatile, has been dumped by vandals," said Lord.

"They tied off the valves and it went into the city sewer system. Anything could have touched it off, a spark, a cigarette, anything."

"I saw a crater 80 to 90 feet across right after the explosion," said Police Capt. David Whitmire who was at the scene."

Whitmire said the explosion also broke a large water main and a gas main in the area. He said the sewers were flushed with water to clean them out.

Another fire department spokesman said the explosions caused "major damage" to the streets, damaged a church and blew manhole covers into the air.

"Some of the streets looked like a bomb was dropped on them" said the spokesman.

"We were in the basement of city hall and we heard one of the explosions down there," he said. "Manhole covers are blown all over the place."

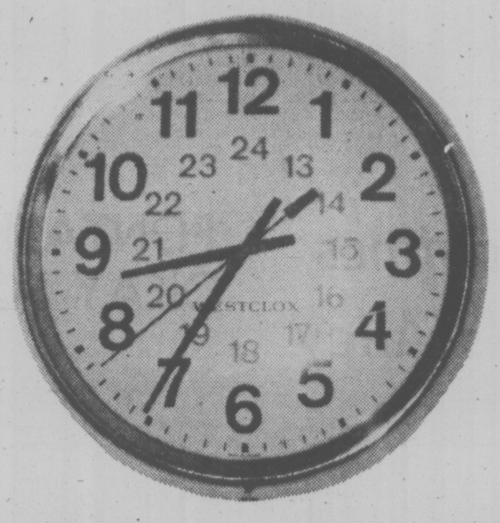
MINI-WEEK



But There's No Cheering From the Union Diehards Who Remember the Fight To Get the 8-Hour Day

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Sandra Goddard is a nurse at Victoria General Hospital and one of a steadily growing number of B.C. workers breaking out of the standard work week straitjacket.

For the past six years she has worked at the hospital and for nearly three of those she has been nursing in the intensive care unit on a modified work week.

This means she works mostly a four-day week, 12-hour day as opposed to the old system of 7½-hour shifts six or seven days a week.

"I don't know how I did it," the 30-year-old nurse says of the old system during a meeting with nurses who work the compressed work week.

All jokingly agree there would be mass resignations if the hospital ever opted out of the new arrangement and returned to the old system of three shifts a day instead of two.

Goddard says she would go to part-time work if the hospital switched back.

There is no more actual time off she explains, as the work week, averaged over nine weeks, still amounts to 37.5 hours, but there are more days off in a row.

Of the 400 registered nurses in the hospital, about 170 work the 12-hour shifts and they say the arrangement has improved patient care as well as added something positive to their private lives.

One nurse on a long-term care ward says as a result of the new shifts and the longer time spent with the patients, there has been a reduction in the amount of medication handed out.

The nurses say there is now an opportunity to get involved in the community, spend more time with the family, or take upgrading education courses.

EDGETT
. . . continuing trend

As a group, nurses in B.C. appear to be taking advantage of the modified work week more than others. The trend is hotly opposed by dyed-in-the-wool trade unionists.

Royal Jubilee Hospital jumped on the bandwagon abut a year ago and now has about 50 nurses working the longer hours in the intensive care, open-heart and pediatric units.

Woodward Stores employees this week went counter to the trend and voted down a proposal to allow them to work four 8¾-hour days.

A company spokesman attributed the rejection to the hardship the longer hours would have on working mothers and the fact the proposed system would require part-time workers to work four hours with no coffee breaks.

In 1975 the B.C. department of labor released the results of a survey which showed that from the tie such work weeks began in the early 1970s, until Jan. 15, 1975, 259 companies had been given approval for the compressed work week.

The information is available in the minutes of B.C. Board of Industrial Relations meetings. The board has to approve any arrangement where employees work more than eight hours a day.

The application for such a change has to be made jointly by employer and employees.

An examination of board minutes from Jan. 15, 1975, until the end of last month, shows there were 274 approvals given in that period.

However, there is no indication from the minutes how many employees were involved nor whether, after gaining approval, the companies adopted the longer hours and then reverted back.

The most popular arrangement is the four-day week, 10-hour day, with 58 companies adopting that system. The three-day, 36-hour week is also popular and there are a variety of other choices.

Jim Edgett, vice-chairman of the board of industrial relations, said the most that can be gleaned from the recent figures is that the trend is continuing steadily.

There has been no wild-fire adoption of the system, nor has it been kissed off as a bad experiment he said.

Edgett says the majority of companies that apply for the modified work week are small and mostly non-union.

He said the trade unions take a hard-line opposition to the extended hours because they fought so hard for the eight-hour day, 40-hour week.

Edgett said he feels there will continue to be an erosion of the standard 7½ to eight-hour day.

"I think people want their leisure time," he said, "They want extra time off."

Employers seem to like it because it improves the shifting and allows for better use of equipment and increased plant production.

Edgett said before the board approves such applications, it must be assured that working the longer hours is not going to be harmful to the health of the employees or result in unsafe working conditions.

The nurses at VGH said the longer hours did not result in poorer treatment for patients or a lack of care in such crucial places as coronoary units or intensive care areas.

Goddard said in the intensive care unit, the longer hours mean the patients get to know the nurses better and feel more secure in their treatment.

There is also better continuity of treatment, an effect which was backed up by Kathy Szadkowski, a nurse in the pediatrics department.

Holly Goldsmith, head nurse of VGH's emergency department, said the new system results in more stable staffing during the peak periods.

The nurses have more time for patient care and can get to know both the patient and the doctor, she added.

As far as the nurses are concerned, she said, when they come to work they are more dedicated because they know the job is going to take up all their time for the next three or four days.

"They are not trying to juggle their private life with work life," she said. "There's no time for partying."

Eaton's in Victoria is another company which has adopted the compressed work week for about 15 drivers at the warehouse at Royal Oak.

Jack Noble, the company's operations manager, said the company feels it gets good coverage with the system and employees "would be mad at me if I took them off it."

He said the employer initiated the move more than a year ago "in order to make economies and give a better deal."

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt policemen are also on the four-day week and a spokesman for the Saanich force said the system is working fine.

Public service employees have also won approval to work the extended hours but a union spokesman said there is no breakdown as to exactly how many are on the system.

Marg Arthur, a staff representative for the B.C. Government Employees Union, said there are between 2,000 and 5,000 employees working the longer hours or on a flexible hour system.

The so-called flex-time system allows employees to alter starting and quitting times as long as they work a set number of hours per week.

Arthur said many of the professional employees have been on the flex-time schedules for some time.

"I think the thing the employees enjoy most is the freedom to do their work and set their own hours," she said.

She said they would resent going back to the old system of set hours or longer work weeks.

The system is good for the employer, she said because it cuts down on overtime. She said more employees will be put on modified work weeks and the results monitored, something that hasn't been done to date.

Included in that group will be employees at the Provincial Archives in Victoria, who will switch over sometime this month.

There were only about three organizations from January, 1975, to the present which opted for the flex-time arrangement. One of these is the Vancouver Resources Board which has about 800 of 1,200 workers on the system.

However they started with a four-day work week but last month shifted to a nine-day fortnight because it seemed to be a better method of providing continual service.

U.S. civil service figures reveal that 50 per cent of the West German white collar work force has some say in the arrangement of its working hours, while 30 per cent of the French labor force and 40 per cent of all Swiss workers are on some form of flex-time.

The British government recently approved variable hours for half a million civil servants. Surveys estimate that more than nine million workers in 10 countries have some control over their job hours.

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labour Council, expresses the trade unions' opposition to the longer hours.

He refers to the blood, sweat and tears which went into bringing about the eight-hour day at the turn of the century, as well as the labor dictum:

"We require eight hours for our work, eight hours for our own instruction, eight hours for our repose."

Ryan said he worked long hours on the automobile assembly lines and knows "the limitations of the human machine."

As far as the nurses are concerned, Ryan points out that he was a member of the VGH board of directors when the longer hours were brought in and he was opposed to them.

He said the new system appears geared more to the nurses than to the patients.

He points out an article in the United Mine Workers Journal which says the five-day week is only a vague memory at many mines with most workers putting in six or seven days a week.

It was on April 1, 1898, that the mine workers' union won its first eight-hour day and now the workers appear to be reverting to the long working days as a result of the amount of overtime put in.

The union is questioning the effects of the overtime on health and safety.

Ryan suggests there be a ban on overtime as a means of putting more people to work and easing the country's unemployment problem.

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Home owners in outlying parts of the Capital district are learning they may be eligible for government-insured lower cost mortgages and it's giving the regional board a staff problem.

How the region is obliquelvolved in the mortgage business was explained Wednesday to the board by executive director Dennis Young.

In past years it has been the policy of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to restrict insured National Housing Act mortgages to houses on sewer systems. Last year the rules were changed to permit the cheaper mortgages on existing and new houses outside sewered areas.

But there are two conditions. First, the regional board must designate which areas it considers suitable and it has already done this for all electoral areas in the Capital district.

The staffing problem has arisen with the second condition. Before a homeowner or builder can apply for an NHA-insured mortgage, he or she must get a certificate from the regional board indicating that an inspection shows the septic tank system is working satisfactorily.

There's been an upswing of building in electoral areas, Young said, but he's been told it's just beginning and there will be a flood of applications for such certificates once word of the chance for cheaper mortgages gets around.

The region simply doesn't have the health inspecting staff to do more and has no money budgetted to hire more.

Young proposed the board designate only outlying areas where soil conditions indicate there's little chance for septic tank problems.

But directors, striving not to cut anybody off from a chance for an NHA mortgage, adopted another of his proposals instead. The board will ask the provincial health ministry for authority to charge for the certificates. That could produce the money needed for more inspection staff.

In other business:

The board will ask the Pollution Control Branch for permission to build a 600-foot outfall at McMicking Point, with communitor and diffuser, as a pilot project and compromise solution to a new trunk and pumping station at Shoal Bay, hotly opposed by neighbors.

The plan also calls for water quality monitoring before and for a year after construction. If the short outfall proves inadequate in dispersing sewage, the regional board is committed to a further two-stage program for diverting McMicking outfall sewage to a long outfall being built at Clover Point.

Directors gave three readings to a bylaw authoring borrowing up to $1.1 million to buy pipe and materials for a main water line up the Saanich Peninsula. The bylaw now goes to the provincial government for approval.

The board gave its blessing to Environment Canada's plan for a 40-acre specialized industrial park alongside the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Pat Bay, provided North Saanich council also approves.

The so-called marine technology centre is intended to be a place for companies working in fields related to the institute to locate.

9 MONTHS JAIL IN TRAFFIC DEATH

A 20-year-old driver whose truck caused the death of a woman on Sooke Road a year ago was sentenced in county court today to nine months definite and nine months indefinite in jail.

Kenneth Douglas Filgate of 7142 Grant was found guilty in May of criminal negligence in the death of Karina Flock, who was driving a car in the opposite direction in the 5300-block Sooke Road May 28, 1976.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart said every judge is troubled by the duty of sentencing a young man, "but my duty to society is much greater than to the individual involved."

He said he could not overlook the fact that Filgate's driving caused the "death of an innocent lady travelling on our highway," and the accused had a driving record.

CP Deal's Covenants 'Chintzy'

Victoria city council was expected to authorize today the purchase of property at the corner of Humboldt and Douglas from Canadian Pacific Hotels Ltd. for $550,001.

But at least one council member, Ald. Ron McKenzie, said he intended to oppose the motion presented at this afternoon's council meeting.

McKenzie said he has several reservations about the deal, including the protective covenants it would grant to CP Hotels, the fact that the purchase would deplete the city's tax sale land account, and the lact of any firm plan on what to do with the property.

Under the proposed covenants, no hotel could be built on the site for 15 years or as long as CP Hotels owns the Empress, whichever is the sooner. The company would also have first right of refusal to operate a restaurant at that location.

Ald. Larry Ryan commented this morning that the restrictions are "chintzy", and "very typical of the CPR".

Mayor Mike Young admitted to reporters that they would hamper the city to some degree in its future plans for the property, but said the deal is still worthwhile because it will consolidate virtually the whole Humboldt - Belleville - Douglas-Blanshard block under public ownership.

In particular, he said, it will provide flexibility in the plans to restore the Crystal Garden property.

Broken Halyard Ends Cup Trial

NEWPORT, R. I. (Reuter) — The New York Yacht Club abandoned Wednesday's race in the America's Cup preliminary trials after Enterprise was forced to drop out because of a broken halyard.

The mishap occurred 12 minutes after the start of her race against Courageous on Rhode Island Sound. The halyard in question was holding up the yacht's mainsail.

The two yachts were racing in the strongest winds of the series — 18 to 20 miles an hour with higher gusts out of the northwest. But officials of the New York Yacht Club's America's Cup committee, said the wind just before the mishap had not been nearly strong enough for his committee to consider calling the race off.

It was announced that the same two yachts, Enterprise and Courageous, would race again today while Independence, the third boat in the trials, gets an extra day off.

Enterprise has a 3-1 record against Independence while Courageous, which successfully defended the America's Cup in 1974, is 4-0 against both Enterprise and Independence.

Hobday Outlawed

LONDON (Reuter) — Simon Hobday, who was born in southern Africa and has played most of his tournament golf there but insists he is not Rhodesian, has been rejected in a bid to join the British Ryder Cup team for its matches in September against the United States.

Ken Schofield, secretary of the European tournament players division of the British Professional Golfers Association, said Hobday's requested that he be declared eligible for the team has been turned down for this year.

The leading amateur on the British circuit, Hobday says he is a British citizen and not a Rhodesian, as the British government has ruled. As a Rhodesian, he would be affected by government sanctions against nationals of the outlaw African country.

FOUR EVENTS IN BIKE MEET

Top-flight competitors will compete in the "A" class over 160 kilometres while the others will vie in "B" (106 km.), "C" (70 km.) and novice-veterans (36 km.) events.

Galento Loses Part of Leg

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxer Tony Galento, 67, who has been suffering from diabetes for several years, has had his left leg amputated at midcalf.

A few hours after his operation, Galento was talking about leaving the hospital and starting to work with young Italian light-heavyweights from Orange, N.J.

"Tony is tough; he's strong," said Dr. Victor Parsonett, who performed the operation. "He's already undergoing physical therapy and very soon he'll be fitted with an artificial limb. He'll be walking better than he was before."

Eben Gives Argos Fits

By The Canadian Press

Eben, the veteran wide receiver released by the Argonauts two weeks ago for being too slow, scored two touchdowns Wednesday night to lead Hamilton Tiger-Cats to a 21-12 exhibition win over their Eastern Football Conference rivals.

The win was the second in two games for the Ticats, who lost their first six games of the season in 1976, including two regular-season games. The Argos have a tie and a loss in their first two starts.

In other Canadian Football League pre-season games Wednesday night, Winnipeg Blue Bombers beat Saskatchewan Roughriders 27-19.

Eben scored on a 31-yard toss from quarterback Jimmy Jones to tie the game 7-7 in the first quarter.

His second touchdown, on a 28-yard pitch from Tom Shuman, sent the Ticats into a 13-8 lead late in the second quarter before 20,061 at Hamilton's Ivor Wynne Stadium.

Newcomer Dave Pegg of the University of Windsor accounted for the other Hamilton points, converting both of Eben's scores and adding field goals of 30 and 17 yards and a 32-yard single.

Running back John Harvey scored the Toronto touchdown on a 75-yard pass-and-run play with Matthew Reed on the first Argo offensive series of the game. Zenon Andrusyshyn converted the touchdown and added a 10-yard field goal and two singles, both off missed field-goal attempts of 38 and 35 yards.

Veteran Roughrider quarterback Ron Lancaster gave way to Eric Guthrie, who was unable to mount a serious attack. Harry Knight was the Winnipeg quarterback in the first half, leading the team to two field goals.

Molly McGee got the first Saskatchewan touchdown as the second quarter opened, scrambling six yards. Then Lancaster surprised every one with a gamble on a third-and-one situation. Instead of rushing for the yard, he threw 27 yards to Tom Campana in the end zone.

Bob Macoritti converted both Saskatchewan touchdowns while Winnipeg's kicker, Bernie Ruoff, was good on field goals of 23 and 21 yards.
